Grand Jury Scheduled to Meet Jan. 20—Information on FBI Study of Dairies Given to Justice Department.

A federal grand jury investigation into milk and other food prices in St. Louis was ordered today by Attorney General Tom C. Clark at Washington.

The grand jury, which is scheduled to reconvene Jan. 20 but may be called sooner, will be asked to investigate "especially the production, distribution and high price of milk" in the St. Louis metropolitan area, Clark said.

John Ford Baecher, acting chief of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, will direct the inquiry here, in co-operation with United States District Attorney Drake Watson.

Assisting Baecher are George B. Haddock, Walter B. Murphy and John R. Niesley. Murphy and Niesley were due in St. Louis today with letters from Clark authorizing them to make the inquiry.

Murphy was in St. Louis two months ago preparing material on milk prices here for the grand jury. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been making an intensive study of the milk situation and has turned over to the anti-trust division the results of its inquiry.

Part of General Campaign.

The St. Louis inquiry is part of the Justice Department's general campaign started late last year to begin action under the anti-trust laws in cases where it could establish violations contributing to the high cost of living.

Two months ago the Post-Dispatch disclosed that the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice was considering the possibility of seeking indictments against some dairy officers here on the basis of alleged price-fixing practices prior to 1942.

Demands for the investigation followed several successive increases in the retail price of milk in the last year, which have made the price here one of the highest in the United States.

A reliable authority informed the Post-Dispatch that the anti-trust division, in its 1941 investigation, found evidence of price fixing and obtained admissions of some dairy company officers that the retail milk prices were fixed by them at that time, first by consultation by telephone and later by secret meetings.

In the present inquiry, information gathered in 1941 for presentation to the grand jury in the spring of 1942 has been taken up again. A Justice Department spokesman said the department believes that the 1941 situation in St. Louis should have resulted in indictments.

When the earlier grand jury was disbanded, material subpenaed from dairies was returned to them. After the present inquiry began several months ago, investigators were told that the dairies' files had been cleaned out in line with usual business practice.

Consumers Urged Inquiry.

The present investigation came as a result of the demand of the Consumer Federation of St. Louis that federal and state officials inquire into the activities of dairies to determine if there have been violations of anti-trust laws. Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann last

Tiny Elephant, 'Nursemaids'

200-LB. ELEPHANT CHANGES TRAINS HERE; ILL 2 MONTHS

Smallest He Has Ever Seen, Says Circus Man of Butch.

Butch, a five and one-half month-old baby elephant that weighs only 200 pounds, was taking a bleak attitude toward life today when the train on which she was traveling stopped briefly at the road yards at Twentieth and Gratiot streets before being switched to another train for the last stage of a trip to Texas.

Butch, one of nine young elephants in the shipment, has been sick almost since leaving Madras, India, about two months ago. For the 56 days the animals were on the boat, she was seasick. Then, when the hatch was opened at Boston before she was wrapped in blankets, she caught cold. Since then, one of three Indian mahouts traveling with the elephants has been playing nursemaid constantly in an effort to avoid the possibility of Butch developing pneumonia.

"When Butch walked by with her mother while we were buying elephants at Mysore, we were attracted by her tiny size," Benjamin C. Davenport, head of a circus which owns the shipment said. "The owners threw Butch in as a sort of gift and mascot, but she's been a problem ever since, just like any other baby separated from its mother." Besides the elephants, the shipment includes three African zebras raised in India, five baby camels, 38 monkeys, and three rock pythons.

10 ELECTRIC FIRMS INDICTED ON PRICE CONSPIRACY CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12 (UP) — A United States grand jury indicted General Electric Co., Westinghouse and eight other electrical manufacturing companies today for an alleged price-fixing conspiracy.

The indictments charged that the alleged conspiracy had cost municipal and privately owned utilities millions of dollars.

The indictments coincided with the personal visit of the Justice Department's anti-trust chief, Assistant United States Attorney General John F. Sonnett, to Los Angeles.

"Our West Coast anti-trust investigations revealed noncompetitive action in the electrical industry affecting important equipment sold to such local bodies as the (municipally owned) Department of Water and Power (of Los Angeles) and the Imperial Irrigation District," Sonnett said.

ANDERSON LOOKS FOR MEAT CEILING DEMAND IN SPRING

Tells Senators Rationing Also Will Be Desired—Indorses Flanders's Control Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson told Senators today he believes "we will want both price controls and rationing on meat, and we will want them before this spring is over."

Anderson made this prediction to the Senate Banking Committee as it opened hearings on various bills which would restore wage-price controls and rationing.

He indorsed a bill to be introduced this week by Senator Flanders (Rep.), Vermont, which would authorize the Department of Agriculture to prepare for meat rationing. Flanders told reporters he would be joined in sponsorship of this bill by Representative Javits (Rep.), New York.

Under Flanders' plan, it would take a second act of Congress to put meat rationing into effect. The Senator said he contemplates that the program he and Javits are working on is based on the theory of providing meat at the rate of about 125 pounds of meat a person annually as compared

REHEARING ON MAC ARTHUR BRIDGE TOLL CASE IS DENIED

Division No. 1 of the Missouri Supreme Court today denied a motion for rehearing of the case in which it upheld last Dec. 8 the ordinance under which St. Louis collects tolls on vehicular traffic on MacArthur Bridge. The division also denied a motion for transfer of the case to the court en banc for rehearing, thus ending proceedings on the matter in the state courts.

No opinion was issued by the division, which merely noted its action in entries on the court minutes. The case was carried to the Supreme Court by the Automobile Club of Missouri, whose building manager, Edward M. Cavanaugh, refused to pay the toll in order to make a test case.

Two-Year Free College Courses Urged by Truman Commission

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—President Truman's commission on higher education today urged establishment of a nation-wide, state-supported system of community colleges to provide two years of free schooling.

The recommendation was contained in the third of a series of six reports by the commission of 28 civic and education figures.

The commission recommended that all states "enact permissive legislation under which communities will be authorized to extend their public school systems through the fourteenth year."

Most public school programs now embrace only the first 12 years—eight years of elementary and four years of secondary education.

The commission, headed by Dr. George F. Zook, chairman of the American Council on Education, suggested that a network of community colleges embracing the thirteenth and fourteenth grades be established in each state.

The report said there are now 180 local communities maintaining the thirteenth and fourteenth years as part of their public school systems.

Stressing the need for a general expansion of educational facilities in this country, the commission said, "the complex demands of social, civil and family life call for a lengthened period of general education for a much larger number of young people."

The educators pointed out that delay in choosing a profession is becoming increasingly wise and important for greater numbers of young people.

Extension of the public school system for an additional two years would cut the cost of higher education for most students, the report pointed out, because the community college system would permit many of them to live at home as they now do to attend high school.

The commission acknowledged that many communities would be too small to warrant maintenance of a two-year college. For this reason, the report urged that the junior colleges be planned on a state-wide basis and administered to avoid duplication wherever possible.

PAULEY ADMITS MAKING NEARLY $1,000,000 BY HIS TRADING ACTIVITY

Stassen Asks Truman If Oil Man Is Fit to Hold Army Post in View of Need to Level Off Food Prices.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Edwin W. Pauley, who declared in a public statement two months ago that he had sold most of his commodity holdings at "great personal sacrifice" and was "$100,000 worse off" than if he had not sold, last night corroborated Harold E. Stassen's assertion that Pauley had realized an over-all profit of about $1,000,000.

Pauley said that in three years of commodity trading he had made exactly $932,703.10. He did so, he asserted without benefit of "inside" Government information. In a telegram to Stassen, Pauley assailed the Minnesota presidential aspirant for his testimony Friday before the Senate appropriations subcommittee, asserting:

"Instead of openly admitting that it was I, not you, who had disclosed this figure, and that you were simply reading from certified figures which I had voluntarily submitted and which had been handed you for your use before and during your appearance before the committee, you attempted to mislead the public by making it appear that you had made a 'discovery' and were making a 'disclosure.'"

Stassen today challenged Pauley's right to his job as assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall today. In a statement through his Washington office, dictated by telephone from Sheridan, Wyo., Stassen said:

"Now that Mr. Pauley has admitted the extensive nature of his operations, I respectfully ask this question of the President. I ask it in particular view of the urgent need of leveling off food prices and of the anticipated heavy governmental purchases of food in 1948:

"The question is this:

"Does a man who has admitted under investigation that he made approximately $1,000,000 ($932,703 to be exact) in personal profit, by speculating since the war in increased prices of food and commodities, belong in the position of assistant to the Secretary of the Army for Procurement and Industrial Mobilization?"

The White House had no comment on Stassen's demand.

Charges 'Falsity.'

Earlier, over the weekend, Pauley had charged Stassen with "deliberate falsity" in his testimony that the wealthy California oil man had failed to disclose the "whole story" of his commodity transactions. In St. Louis at the time, Stassen pointed out that Pauley had not denied making about $1,000,000 profit, and Pauley's production of the exact figure followed this exchange.

Pauley's use of the word "voluntary" in referring to the submission of his trading figures to the subcommittee, in the telegram to Stassen, apparently was based on the fact that no subpena was issued against him. The subcommittee did, however, request him formally to furnish the figures, and sent him a reminder warning, together with a deadline, when Pauley delayed. His compliance came after this reminder.

Nothing was said by Pauley in his weekend public statements

WINTER RETURNING ON A NORTH WIND; 20 ABOVE LIKELY

Winter weather will return to the city on a north wind which is expected to force the temperature down to about 20 degrees by tomorrow morning, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said today. There is likelihood, he added, of occasional snow flurries.

The change in the weather, he pointed out, comes at an appropriate time since today is the anniversary of one of the coldest days on record here, Jan. 12, 1918, when 17 degrees below zero was recorded.

An indication of what to expect was given yesterday morning when there were traces of sleet, but the mercury rose deceptively to the 40s this morning.

Cold wave warnings were issued by the Chicago Weather Bureau today for Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska where temperatures as low as 25 degrees below zero were predicted for tonight. Holton, Me., with 21 degrees below zero was the coldest spot in the nation this morning, and the warmest yesterday was Brownsville, Tex., with 80 degrees.

HIS PATIENT WASN'T STALIN, SWEDISH CANCER EXPERT SAYS

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP)—Dr. Elis Bervin, the Swedish cancer expert who was called here from Stockholm on a special case, says his patient was not Prime Minister Stalin.

He did not identify his patient, but said he might have a statement after returning home today. Dr. Bevin came to Moscow last Tuesday.

Stalin, according to good authority, is in good health and is going about his business in a normal manner. Rumors about the state of his health crop up periodically (Swiss papers inquired last week if he was dead) and vanish again. He is 68 years old.

GAINS WORTH COST OF AIDING EUROPE, CABINET OFFICERS ASSURE CONGRESS

'Must Face Fact' of Inflation Problem, Says Harriman—Single Director Business-Like, Marshall Holds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Two Cabinet officers—Secretary of State Marshall and Secretary of Commerce Harriman—told Congress today the proposed multi-billion dollar European aid program would put burdens on the American people, but said the gains would be worth the cost.

Marshall testified before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. He spoke only in general terms of "burdens" from helping Europe. Harriman, talking to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, named high prices here at home as one of them.

"We must frankly face the fact," Harriman said, "that the European recovery program will add to our difficulties in trying to control inflation. . . .

"A program of the contemplated magniture will be costly and will mean sacrifice by the American people. The benefits to be gained, however, far outweigh the immediate sacrifices."

Marshall similarly said America's "most fundamental interests" argued for the program.

"Europe must be restored if a durable peace is to be attained. The United States has expended vast resources in the quest for peace. If by the expenditure of an additional amount, small in proportion to the investment already made, we can finish the job, certainly we should do so in our own interest as well as that of the world at large," he said.

Plan for Aiding China Soon.

Under questioning, Marshall told the House members that plans for helping China would be brought before Congress "very shortly."

"European recovery is the first order of importance," he said, "and should not be complicated now by introducing discussions of other parts of the world."

Marshall said the way is open for additional countries to come into the European aid program and there is no intention to draw a "western curtain" across Europe.

Lewis Douglas, United States ambassador to Great Britain, also was a witness before the Senate Committee. He said this country should be "prudent" in the exercise of any influence to change western Europe's political and economic customs.

This was in reply to a question from Senator Lodge (Rep.), Massachusetts, who asked if the 16 western European nations co-operating in the plan should be required to establish a customs union.

Douglas said that the countries had taken long steps towards "economic integration." He predicted they will take further steps if adequate aid is forthcoming from the United States. He said any "initiative" in this direction should come from the 16 nations, rather than from the United States.

The Senate and House Committees are holding hearings on the proposed program preliminary to votes on whether to recommend that Congress approve it. Generally, sentiment appears to favor a program of some nature. But

1019 M.P.H. SPEED REACHED BY LAND VEHICLES ON TRACKS

Rocket Sleds Used by Aircraft Firm in Sonic Barrier Experiments.

MUROC AIR BASE, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP)—Northrop Aircraft Co., probing conditions on "the other side" of the Sonic barrier, has sent land vehicles hurtling over tracks at a speed of 1019 miles an hour, the company announced today.

The Rocket-powered sleds moved over a standard-gauge railroad track near this United States air force base, covering the 2000 feet in less than two seconds, then skittering across the surface of thed esert as they ran off the rails at the far end.

The vehicles, of course, were unmanned. The sleds, which operate on slippers, or runners, were described as about 15 feet long and constructed of aluminum alloy tubing with magnesium axles. The purpose behind the experiments, which had been conducted in strictest secrecy, was to determine thep racticality of an "outdoor wind tunnel," on which Northrop could test advanced new airfoils at trans-sonic and supersonic speeds.

BUTTER UP ONE CENT AFTER 4 SUCCESSIVE REDUCTIONS

Price of 93 Cents Follows Rise of Cent in Chicago Wholesale Market.

The retail price of butter will be increased from 92 to 93 cents a pound tomorrow by Pevely and St. Louis dairies, spokesmen for both dairies said today.

The price had been 92 cents since Saturday, following decreases of 2 cents a pound on each of four successive days.

Tomorrow's increase reflects a rise of 1 cent a pound in the wholesale price in Chicago today.

6000 SAFETY VIOLATIONS IN COAL MINES IN 6 MONTHS

Report Submitted to Congress in Accordance With Law Passed After Centralia Disaster.

By JOSEPH HANLON
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Violations of the federal safety code in soft coal mines in the last half of last year totaled about 6000 in 1000 or more mines which were inspected, a report of the Interior Department disclosed today.

Exact figures cannot be stated because the inspections were made by three agencies, some of which duplicated the work of others.

The report was submitted to Congress in accordance with a law passed last year following the catastrophe at Centralia, Ill., when 111 miners lost their lives in an explosion.

Inspections were made by the Federal Bureau of Mines, some of the coal operators, and some of the State Mine Inspection agencies.

Included is a tabulation of what was done to correct the safety hazards found. The general tone of the report submitted by Secretary Krug gives the impression that much has been done to improve mine safety, but the statistics incorporated in it demonstrate that much needs to be done to improve conditions.

For instance, the law requests, but does note require, State Mine Inspection Agencies to report what they have done. Only 14 of 25 coal-producing states co-operated.

Probably the sharpest of all state responses was that of Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois who wrote, through the former director of State's Department of Mines and Minerals:

"It seems to me that at the present time the forcing of the federal mine safety code upon the state is a violation of state's rights."

Illinois did, however, submit a report on what its agency had done. It showed inspection of 108 mines in which 306 violations of the safety code were noted.

Something has been done to eliminate them, but only 173 have been wholly corrected.

BAR ON PICKETING IN MADISON ACT IS HELD INVALID

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12—The Missouri Supreme Court, in an opinion today, held unconstitutional and invalid that section of the Madison Labor Regulatory Act which prohibited picketing where no labor dispute exists between an employer and his employes.

The opinion, in the first test of the act, does not affect the act as a whole, but only Section 8 relating to picketing. The test was in the arrests of Arthur A. Hunn and Melvin Levan, St. Louis labor organizers, after separate picketing incidents, which were linked under one case.

In its opinion, written by Judge Albert M. Clark, the court held that "the statute, in so far as it attempts to forbid picketing when no dispute exists is unconstitutional and void."

"Under United States Supreme Court decisions, peaceful picketing as an incident of free speech is a constitutional right," the opinion continued. "A state may prescribe regulations, but has no power to ban peaceful picketing on the sole ground that no dispute exists between the picket and the establishment picketed."

The court held that Section 8 does not regulate picketing and does not define a picket.

"The section purports to abolish the right, not the abuse, of free speech as an incident of picketing unless a labor dispute exists," the court stated. "A penal statute creating a new offense must be sufficiently clear to inform those subject to it what conduct on their part will render them liable to its penalties."

Section 8 was also held void because the subject of picketing was not mentioned in the title of the act.

A provision of the act, under Section 8, prohibited "any person from picketing, or inducing others to picket the establishment, em-

PRINTING TRUMAN BUDGET IN $1 BILLS A 26-YEAR JOB

Bureau of Currency Can Turn Out Only 1,500,000,000 Pieces a Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—It would take the Treasury's bureau of printing and engraving more than 26 years to print enough one dollar bills to pay for President Truman's Government spending program in the next fiscal year.

The bureau said its production, on the basis of an eight-hour day, five-day week, is 1,500,000,000 bills a year. And the President said he expects to spend $39,668,000,000, in the 1949 fiscal year.

CREW ABANDONS ARMY TRANSPORT, AFIRE IN ATLANTIC

Rescue Ship Later Reports Sighting Stricken Vessel and Survivors in Lifeboats.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—The New York Port of Embarkation announced today that the S. S. Gen R. E. Callnan had radioed it had sighted the stricken Army transport Joseph V. Connolly "and the survivors in the lifeboats."

The Connolly caught fire early today in the Atlantic 900 miles east of New York and was abandoned by its crew of 45 and one passenger.

Hours later, a search plane reported it had sighted two lifeboats in the area where the Connolly was abandoned. Four Coast Guard planes from Kindley Field, Bermuda, had flown to the position given in the Connolly's SOS to search for the men.

The Coast Guard intercepted a message from the S.S. Union Victory reporting it had sighted the burning wreckage of the stricken transport.

Earlier, the S.S. Morrison R. Waite reported it had reached the area where the Connolly had been reported abandoned, but had found no sight of the lifeboats after searching for several hours. It reported that it was low on fuel, and suggested that it turn the search over to the S.S. Josephine Lykes, also in the area.

The Weather Bureau said winds up to 40 miles an hour and hail showers had been reported in the area.

The Connolly, carrying 5000 empty caskets to bring war dead back from Europe, sent its first call for immediate help at about 4:30 a.m. (3:30 a.m. St. Louis time).

The fire started in the engine room. The ship's radio went out of commission before the Connolly was abandoned, the Coast Guard said.

The ship, commanded by Capt. Ben A. Bostelman of New York, carried a crew of 45 and an Army officer passenger, it was reported by Maj. Anthony J. Lawrence, duty officer at the Port of Embarkation.

The Army officer was Capt. Charles H. Collins of Camp Kilmer, N.J., who was to be in charge of bringing back the war dead on the Connelly.

The 422-foot, 7176 gross-ton Connolly first radioed that it was adrift and out of control in the Atlantic. The message was intercepted by Radiomarine Corp. of America.

The Army and Coast Guard cooperated in directing ships to the rescue.

The Connolly, which brought 6248 war dead—the first World War II dead to be returned from Europe—to New York last Oct. 26, sailed from New York for Antwerp Jan. 8. The transport was built in 1945.

(None of the crew is from the St. Louis area.)

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 12 (AP)—The torch of the Statue of Liberty, which normally gleams a brilliant white, cast strange bluish-green rays last night.

Residents of this and nearby New Jersey shore cities flooded police headquarters with inquiries about the statue's new look.

Reported Superintendent N. H. Foster of the statue:

Six of the 13 1000-watt lamps which give the torch its gleam burned out over the week end, and maintenance men mistakenly replaced them with vapor lamps, normally used to floodnight the statue.

Foster said the lamps would be replaced today.

PRESIDENT PUTS CURRENT FISCAL YEAR'S SURPLUS AT $7,482,000,000

Estimates Next Year's Excess Will Be $4,808,000,000—Urges Debt Retirement With Marginal Funds.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President Truman sent to the Republican-controlled Congress today a budget for more than $39,668,000,000 in the fiscal year 1949. That is a proposed spending increase of about $1,941,000,000 over the current fiscal year.

In offering the budget, the President estimated that the Government would end the current fiscal year on June 30 with a surplus of $7,482,000,000. He said that if his recommendations are followed and if the national income remains at its present high level, the surplus at the end of the next fiscal year will be $4,808,000,000.

These surpluses, he warned, should be used to fight inflation by applying them to the national debt.

"As long as employment and income continue at record levels," he said, "and especially while inflationary dangers threaten, we must make the most of our opportunity for debt retirement.

"The retirement of public debt held by banks, other private institutions, and individuals will be considerably greater than the $12,000,000,000 reduction in the total, since trust accounts and other Government agencies will accumulate about $6,000,000,000 during the two fiscal years. The investment of these accumulations in federal securities will permit the Treasury to retire securities in the possession of other holders.

"In management of the public debt, the major goal will be the achievement of the maximum anti-inflationary effect. This has been our policy since the debt reached its peak in February, 1946."

Revelation of the huge surplus for the current year makes it virtually certain that the Republican controlled Congress will pass an individual income tax reduction bill this session and, if necessary, enact it over the President's veto. This would reduce the expected surplus for both years.

The administration's own personal income tax reduction proposal of a flat $40 "cost of living" credit for all taxpayers and each dependent theoretically would not cut down the estimated surplus because the President said that the loss should be made up by increasing the corporation tax levy from 38 per cent to about 50 per cent.

As to Corporation Taxes.

It was learned at the White House that the President and the Treasury Department are reconsidering the corporation tax increase recommendation and are looking into the alternative proposition of re-imposing the excess profits tax to make up the $3,200,000,000 loss on personal incomes. No decision has been reached.

Restoration of the excess profits tax would not put additional burdens on those companies that are making modest profits now and might lead to a reduction of prices—a deflationary action.

The President estimated that receipts during the current fiscal year will total $45,210,000,000 against which there will be expenditures of $37,728,000,000. At this time last year he thought receipts would reach only $37,700,000,000 and expenditures $37,500,000,000, leaving a surplus of only $200,000,000. He miscalculated by $7,500,000,000.

The estimated collections for this year would be the largest in our peacetime history and topped only by the $46,500,000,000 receipts in fiscal year 1945.

This year he, the Treasury and budget advisers think receipts in the next fiscal year will recede slightly to $44,477,000,000.

Assumptions of Calculations.

The 1948 and 1949 calculations of receipts assume, however, there will be no tax reduction bill affecting net collections. The disbursement figures assume that Congress will enact all of the President's recommendations, which is hardly likely.

These recommendations, for which there is at present no existing authorizations or appropriations, include the President's 10-point anti-inflationary program; $11,025,000,000 for national defense, including $400,000,000 for universal training, $7,000,000,000 for international affairs and finance, including the European recovery plan; a $100,000,000 increase in the social security program and $15,000,000 for starting a health insurance plan; further subsidies for housing, particularly publicly financed slum clearance; federal grants to states for elementary and secondary education; price supports for agricultural products and continued soil conservation benefits;

No new legislation is required for some of the natural resource projects for the Army Engineer Corps' civil activities, which include rivers and harbors works, the budget proposes expenditures of $314,000,000 this year and $449,100,000 next year against actual expenditures of $180,000,000 in 1947.

Although the President provided in the budget for many other recommendations mentioned in his State of the Union message, he did not include proposed expenditures for river authorities, such as the MVA, which he publicly has indorsed. The White House explanation for failing to implement these recommendations was that Congress had not acted on these bills, and as far as the MVA was concerned, it had not received a favorable committee report.

For several of the items not yet authorized, the President said he would send special messages to Congress. These will be on foreign aid other than that sought for the 16 European nations and China, a sea-level canal joining the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, further federal aid for highways, governmental reorganization, extension of social security benefits, and a health insurance program.

Despite the many "ifs" that occurred throughout the message and calculations, the President said that the 1949 budget was "even more realistic and hard-boiled than the 1948 budget."

Three themes ran through the message—the dangers of inflation, the need for American aid to Europe and national security. In defending the proposed increase of expenditures over the current year, the President told Congress:

"The realities of our existing international and domestic requirements account for the size of this budget. It affords essential support to the foreign policy of the United States by encouraging widespread international economic co-operation while maintaining our armed strength. It affords essential support to our domestic policies by advancing the development of human and material resources within a fiscal plan designed to help combat inflation."

He said that if no new legislation were required, the 1949 expenditures would not exceed $34,000,000,000.

"The plain fact is that our budget must remain high," he said, "until we have met our international responsibilities and can see the way clear to a peaceful and prosperous world. Prudence demands that we plan our national finances in full recognition of this fact."

The War's Aftermath.

As in his message last year, the President pointed out that Government expenditures inescapably are dominated by the war and its aftermath.

"In the fiscal year 1949," the message said, "79 per cent of our expenditures directly reflect the cost of war, the effects of war and our efforts to prevent a future war; national defense, international affairs, veterans benefits, interest on the public debt, tax refunds. This should be a sobering thought to all of us as we strive for the creation of lasting peace among the nations of the world."

The President noted that the $7,000,000,000 asked for international affairs and finance accounted for 18 per cent of the 1949 budget as compared with 15 per cent in the current year.

"The budgetary implications of failure to achieve recovery in Europe and other crucial areas deserve additional emphasis," he said.

"Should failure of these programs result in a further extension of totalitarian rule, we should have to re-examine our security position and take whatever steps might be necessary under the circumstances. The costs of added military strength, if Europe should succumb to totalitarian rule, would far exceed the costs of the program of economic aid now before the Congress."

Security Position.

The message disclosed that a re-examination of our security position is already in progress, with emphasis on air power. The President disclosed that in addition to an appropriation of $10,300,000,000 he was requesting strictly for national defense, he also was asking for new authority to obligate a total of $10,900,000,000 expenditures in 1949 and later years.

"Of this amount, he said, nearly 50 per cent will be devoted to defense aviation."

At another point he said:

"Appropriations for major activities of the air force and the Army have not been separated. In addition to obligations under direct appropriation to the Department of the Air Force, about half of those by the Department of the Army in the fiscal year 1949 will be for the air force. The complete recasting of the appropriation structure necessary to separate the accounts of these two departments is now in progress but could not be completed in the short time since the passage of the National Security Act."

Move for Atomic Energy.

In addition to increased expenditures on atomic energy, from $456,000,000 in 1948 to $660,000,000 in 1949—which are included in the "natural resources" rather than the "national defense" classification, the budget retained the disbursement of $550,000,000 on military research and development.

"A large proportion of these expenditures," it reported, will be in aviation and related fields."

World economic recovery, however, was put before strategic materi stockpiling. On this point the message said:

"Aside from the national defense establishment, the most important expenditures for national defense activities in 1949 will be for military stockpiling, particularly to build up reserves of those raw materials and supplies which must be obtained from overseas sources that might be cut off in time of war. Although procurement of materials for strategic stockpiles is behind schedule, the estimated expenditures for procurement in fiscal year 1949 are held to $285,000,000 because of the urgent need of such materials to promote world recovery and the prevailing shortages with attendant high prices."

Universal Training.

Establishment of universal training, the President said, would supply "one basic element of a balanced national security program" that is still lacking.

"A national program of broad training for all young men is necessary to provide a firm base for small standing forces to be augmented, when necessary, by trained reserve components. Such training should make possible an ultimate reduction of our standing forces."

The initial appropriation for this item was placed at $500,000,000, with an initial expenditure of $400,000,000 in 1949. The President said that this would be only the first year cost; in full operation it would cost about two billion dollars annually.

Henry Wallace has made opposition to universal service one of the major planks in this third party platform. More effective opposition is coming from economy-minded Congressmen, church and labor groups, and it is not likely to be approved in a campaign year.

The President promised that wherever possible the Administration would avoid increasing the inflationary pressures through the enlarged expenditures.

Risk to Resources.

The disbursements contemplated by his new proposals, he said, were necessary now, because:

"Failure to improve our educational system or to expand flood-control work would mean risking the loss of precious resources—human and material. Failure to adopt a program of health insurance would mean that many families will continue to go without adequate medical care. Failure to broaden the coverage of present social insurance and to increase benefits on a permanent basis would mean too much reliance upon relief, whereas more reliance on insurance is our national objective. Failure to adopt a long-range housing program would mean further delay in achieving decent housing standards. Failure to devote needed sums to our atomic plant would mean that we would be derelict in the use of one of our most valuable resources.

"Each of these proposed new and expanded program has been carefully weighed. All these programs directly support the two fold objective of building economic and individual strength and health in this nation, and of better preparing this nation to discharge its increased responsibilities in the family of nations."

The Truman "New Deal."

This may be called the Truman "new deal" part of the message and is the part most likely to arouse the opposition of the Republican controlled Congress which will have its own ideas, political and economic, as to what should be done with the billions of Government receipts and expenditures.

Barge Lines.

The Federal Barge Lines, with offices in St. Louis, reported a gloomy picture of present financial operations and pinned hopes for the future on plans for new equipment.

The Inland Waterways Corporation, operator of lines on the Mississippi, Illinois, Missouri and Warrior rivers, estimated an operational loss of $825,900 for the fiscal year ending next June 30. This would be less than half the $2,089,552 lost during the year ended last June 30. The corporation said, however, the situation will not change to a bright one until the lines get new barges—which it hopes to acquire in 1949 and make a profit of $1,145,300.

The revised budget for 1948 and the new budget for 1949 are predicated, the Treasury said, on a national income of $192,000,000,000. That income is now running higher than an annual rate of $200,000,000,000. There is a possibility that the 1948 collections will be even greater than the estimated $45,210,000,000. There is also a possibility that 1949 collections will be less than $44,477,000,000.

Bursting of the inflationary boom would blow 1949 estimates into the air. It may be noted that the President and his advisers have made detailed guesses on what will happen during the next 18 months—a long time in this ever changing present world. The next long range guess is up to Congress.

Tabular Summary of Budget

ployes, vehicles or customers of anyone engaged in business, when no dispute exists between an employer and his employes." Violation of the provision was termed a misdemeanor.

Hunn, who is secretary of the St. Louis Building Trades Council, picketed the non-union construction job of Samuel D. Caldwell in the 3200 block of McKibbon road, St. Louis county, last Sept. 11. He was arrested on an information issued by the St. Louis County Prosecuting Attorney's office and the case went to the Supreme Court on an application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by union attorneys. The Caldwell construction job was selected for the test because no dispute existed between the builder and his employes, who were reported to have refused to join AFL unions.

Levan, secretary of Journeyman Barbers' Local 102, was arrested by St. Louis police Sept. 15 when picketing the Rex Barber Shop, 205 North Seventh street. The circumstances were comparable to those in the Caldwell situation. The court upheld the applications of both labor men for discharge under writs of habeas corpus.

Brothers Trap 28 Foxes.

The Loellke brothers continue to hold the lead in the county this season as trappers of foxes. William and Frank Loellke have caught 28 of the animals and the pelts are at the farm west of Jerseyville. Foxes in some parts of Jersey county have been described as more numerous than rabbits in former normal seasons.

BUDGET ASSAILED AS HIGH, DEFENDED AS REASONABLE

Bridges Calls It 'Extravagant,' Lucas Is Encouraged by Message—Support for Defense Program Indicated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Republicans ripped into President Truman's $39,668,000,000 budget today as "extravagant" and "political" while Democrats defended it as "reasonable," considering problems at home and commitments abroad.

But even among critical Republicans there was clear indication that the President's request for 11 billion dollars for the Armed Forces has widespread support.

Chairman Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, of the Senate Appropriations Committee said the President had presented "an extravagant program beyond the means of the nation to meet this year."

"He has played politics in an attempt to make the budget appear as an economy measure," Bridges declared in a statement. "But no politics, however stated, can avoid the fact that he is suggesting an increase of two billion dollars in federal spending at a time when the security and well-being of the nation demand reduced expenditures."

Bridges said he regards the proposed expenditures for defense as "realistic even though the sums will appear staggering to many Americans." But he promised that these items will be "reviewed most carefully."

Senator Taft, of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told reporters that Truman's budget total "looks high to me." He added, however, that he wanted time to study it before commenting further.

"Padding" Charged by Taber.

Chairman Taber (Rep.), New York, of the House Appropriations Committee, said that every departmental item in the President's budget has been "padded to the limit with less to do."

"We were able last year to cut $2,967,000,000," he told the House. "It is my expectation and my hope we can do better this year."

Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, said: "A budget of nearly 40 billions three years after the war, compared with nine billions before the war, is a dangerous gamble with our national solvency, especially with the continuation of imprudent and wasteful expenditures which are contemplated.

"The failure of the President to recommend retrenchment in the existing bloated federal spending places the job of eliminating wasteful and unnecessary expenditures squarely upon the shoulders of Congress, and unless there is a reduction in federal expenditures a financial crisis in America, such as now exists in England, is within the realm of possibility. This would mean world chaos."

Senator Lucas of Illinois, who as the Democratic whip is an assistant floor leader, said that while he regrets "the necessity to have such a large budget" he is "encouraged to know that once again we can balance the budget and have a surplus to apply on the national debt." Lucas said he hopes expenditures can be cut some, without "crippling the national defense—involving our foreign policy."

Truman predicted that if revenue yield is not reduced by tax cutting the surplus will be $7,728,000,000 in the year ending June 30, and suggested that it all be applied on the debt.

House Republican leaders already have scheduled passage by that body of a $5,600,000,000 tax reduction bill which would more than eat up the President's estimate of a $4,808,000,000 surplus for the year beginning July 1.

Senator Brooks (Rep.), Illinois, told a reporter he thinks the seven billion dollars in new foreign expenditures proposed by the President can be cut, although he declined to estimate how much. As for Truman's prosposal to spend nearly two billion dollars more money than in the current year, Brooks said:

"Any substantial increase in the budget ultimately will increase taxes, increase the amount of money competing for consumer goods in this country, create further scarcities and boost prices."

Senator Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, said "I think the President has figured expenditures just about as closely as they can be trimmed."

"Has to Be Cut," Wherry Says.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican whip, insisted the over-all outlay "has to be cut if there is going to be any debt or tax reduction." He added, however, that he would "hesitate" to reduce the proposed defense outlay.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, said the Republican-controlled Congress probably will cut expenditures back to about 34 billion dollars before it is through. He said he thinks two billion dollars can "come off foreign aid."

Other comment:

Senator Ives (Rep.), New York: "The amount seems high and I hope that it can be reduced without impairing the essential functions of Government."

Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas: "I don't see how we can avoid a heavy outlay for military and naval preparedness. The world is in a state of chaos and we can't afford to lay down our arms until we know where we are going."

GRAND JURY INQUIRY IN DEATH OF PEVELY (MO.) GIRL OPENS

An investigation into the death of 16-year-old Juanita Margaret Jones of Pevely, Mo., was started by a Jefferson county grand jury impaneled at Hillsboro, today by Circuit Judge Edward T. Eversole.

The partly clad body of the Jones girl was found Nov. 23 in an automobile in which she had ridden with friends on a round of taverns. After a pathologist testified he had found a lethal amount of carbon monoxide in the girl's blood, a coroner's jury returned an open verdict which listed carbon monoxide as the "primary cause of death."

Prosecuting attorney Harry L. C. Weier said he was not satisfied with the coroner's verdict, however, and after a preliminary hearing at Hillsboro Dec. 10, Ronald Gulat, 18, of Pevely, and Ivan Schubert, 25, of Festus, who admitted being with the Jones girl on the night of her death, were charged with first degree murder and bound over for the grand jury.

TRUMAN SEEKS $63,900,000 FOR MISSOURI BASIN

Amount Is Nearly Three Times Sum Appropriated for River for Current Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—President Truman today asked Congress for $63,900,000 for fiscal 1949 Missouri river basin development by the Department of the Interior.

This sum was nearly three times what Congress appropriated for the department for the current fiscal year's Missouri river work.

Besides this largest single item budgeted for reclamation spending, the Missouri river basin was certain to be earmarked for a big chunk of the $375,000,000. Truman asked for the Army Engineers' flood control work. This figure was not broken down in his budget message to Congress.

The big basin development is a joint project of the Reclamation Bureau and the Army Engineers.

This year Truman, apparently at the recommendation of the bureau, asked Congress to eliminate the usual appropriation of bureau funds on a project-by-project basis. The requested appropriation will be sought in a lump sum. During congressional appropriation hearings the bureau presumably will divulge its tentative fund allotments within the sprawling project.

For this fiscal year, Truman asked $27,815,000 for the Reclamation Bureau's part of the basin work. He got $23,400,000.

For next fiscal year he asked Congress to give the Reclamation Bureau $63,900,000 for its basin work. His budget indicated the bureau would spend $48,000,000 of that sum. The remainder the bureau will farm out to other agencies within the Department of Interior for related basin work. The farmed-out sum has no relation to whatever sum Congress gives the Army Engineers for their Missouri basin work.

Included in a list of flood control and river construction estimates was $2,000,000 for the Wood River drainage and levee district and $1,000,000 for East St. Louis and vicinity.

J. H. H. Mote Dies.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Jan. 12 (AP)—J. H. H. Mote, 70 years old, Jasper county treasurer and former Missouri prison farms commissioner, died yesterday. He was a former member of the Missouri Penal Board. He was ordained a Baptist minister in 1938.

BUDGET SHARE IS $274 PER CAPITA; $69.15 IN 1939

International Expenditures Up From 15 Cents to $48 a Person.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Your personal stake in the high cost of government will be $274 in the new fiscal year if you are an average American.

This is the cost per man, woman and child of running the nation's business at home and overseas, as shown today by a statement released with President Truman's budget for the year starting next July 1.

The cost was only $69.15 per American 10 years earlier—in fiscal 1939, which ended just before war broke out in Europe.

International expenditures then were 15 cents per capita; under the new budget they would be $48. National defense, which in 1939 cost $8 a person, would go to $75. The outlay for veterans was $4, now it is set at $42. Interest on the national debt and tax refunds accounted for $8, compared with $49.

By contrast, Truman pointed with evident pride to the "comparatively small increase" for all other expenses of government. He said it has risen "only $7—from $49 in 1939 to $56 in 1949."

The average share of the national debt today is $1772.54. If Congress follows Truman's budget recommendations, it will be down to $1699.98 on June 30, 1949.

SUM TRUMAN SEEKS WOULD SUPPORT 11,660,000 FAMILIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Government expenditures in the next fiscal year would support 11,660,000 American families of four persons if they divided up the $39,669,000,000 President Truman wants to spend.

That is figured on the basis of a recent Government survey that a family of four—two children, father and mother—needs about $3400 a year to live adequately, with few frills or luxuries, in most cities.

ASSESSED REALTY VALUE UP 10 PCT. HERE; RISE IN MOST CITIES IS STEEPER

Average Increase During 1947 Put at 15.7 Pct. in Survey—St. Louis Tax Rate Jumped Contrary to General Trend.

Assessed valuation on real estate increased less in St. Louis last year than it did in most American cities, according to a survey published in the current issue of the National Municipal Review. The increase here was 10 percent, compared to a per capita average increase of 15.7 per cent for 321 cities.

However, the St. Louis tax rate, contrary to the general trend, was increased one cent to $2.74 per $100 valuation in 1947. For the 321 cities as a whole, the tax rate decreased half a cent, the first drop in four years.

The tax rate of St. Louis was below that of six of the nine cities in the 500,000 to 1,000,000 population group. Cities in this group and adjusted tax rate on the basis of 100 per cent assessment were listed as follows:

Boston, $4.65.
Buffalo, $4.03.
Pittsburgh, $4.03.
Milwaukee, $3.34.
Baltimore, $3.06.
San Francisco, $2.81.
St. Louis, $2.74.
Cleveland, $2.23.
Washington, $2.00.

Listing of Cities of Million.

In the cities with population of 1,000,000 or more, the listing in order of adjusted tax rate was: Detroit, $3.39; New York (Manhattan rate), $3.01; Philadelphia, $2.87; Chicago, $2.75; Los Angeles, $2.57.

In the 250,000 to 500,000 population group, the listing was: Jersey City, N. J., $3.41; Minneapolis, $4.19; Indianapolis, $4.06; Rochester, N. Y., $3.95; Newark, N. J., $3.89; St. Paul, $3.26; Kansas City, $2.88; Atlanta, Ga., $2.50; Louisville, Ky., $2.42; Providence, R. I., $2; Cincinnati, $1.79; Toledo, O., $1.47; Memphis, Tenn., $1.45; Birmingham, Ala., $1.44; Columbus, O., $1.13.

Replies from 177 cities showed that on the average 17.3 per cent of their property carried on tax rolls was exempt by virtue of ownership by government, religious, charitable and non-profit organizations, special privileges to industries and homesteads.

Burden of Tax Exemption.

"It is obvious," the review said, "that the privilege of tax exemption is fostering a heavier burden on 'paying' property, that the basic revenue source of local governments is being shrunk by the process, and that the entire problem requires some careful attention and extensive study."

Partly responsible for the large national increase in assessed valuation was a recent Illinois statute requiring that property be assessed at 100 per cent of true value. This increased the valuation of assessments in 20 Illinois cities surveyed by 47 per cent, Chicago's assessment alone jumping $2,800,000,000. But even omitting Illinois cities from the calculation, the increase was 12.7 per cent.

The survey was prepared by the Bureau of Governmental Research in Detroit, a non-profit organization, with the assistance of fellows of the National Training School for Public Service at Wayne University. The National Municipal Review is the publication of the National Municipal League, a non-profit organization dedicated to improvement of local and state government.

with an estimated per capita consumption of about 146 pounds at present. Flanders said determination of the actual rationing would be left to the Department of Agriculture.

Anderson told the committee he would prefer legislation which gave the Administration authority to put meat rationing into effect. But, he added, he is "satisfied" that Flanders' plan to vest such power in Congress would work out all right.

Anderson already as an assistant at work on preliminary plans for meat rationing.

Senator Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, wanted to know under what conditions Anderson would impose the rationing.

"When meat has virtually disappeared from the counters, or when the supply dropped to 120 or 125 pounds per capita," Anderson said.

He previously had predicted that point might be reached in the spring.

He said also that he feels wholesale price ceilings on meat would be sufficient and there will be no need for retail price lids, although he would prefer both.

He did not make it clear whether he favors ceilings on live cattle, such as were in effect under OPA, or whether he believed controls should be applied only to meat sold by packers.

Chairman Tobey (Rep.), New Hampshire, said in advance of the committee meeting that it "may be necessary to do some unorthodox things" and mentioned the possibility of rationing next spring.

Before the hearing started, Senator Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, predicted that Congress will enact some form of standby system for meat rationing at this session.

Post-Dispatch Annex Goes Into Full Operation With New Presses--- $2,500,000 Investment

Looking east down one of the two lines of printing units, Olive street windows to the right. There are 15 printing units in this line—the black metal-incased objects that appear at bottom at left. The first unit shown is really No. 3 as shown. There are 12 additional printing units in a parallel battery to the left or north of this one. Paper is fed into the printing units from the basement. It is unrolled and assembled by the machinery above, which then carries the paper to a series of folders and conveyors which take the papers to the mailing room on the second floor. A folding and conveying unit appears between the second and third printing units shown in the picture. Guard rail at right protects an opening into the basement. Through the opening can be seen part of the tracking of a miniature railway for moving the rolls of paper into position for feeding to the presses.

Maximum Capacity of 270,000 Papers Per Hour—Public Soon May Look Through Olive Street Windows — Page Length Increased by More Than 2 Inches.

The Post-Dispatch today placed in full operation its new mechanical building on Olive street, east of the main Post-Dispatch building. New presses (27 printing units) represent, with other new machinery, a $1,500,000 installation in the $1,000,000 Annex structure.

Today, as every reader will notice, the Post-Dispatch is longer, by more than two inches, than its previous issues. The page length has been increased from 21½ to 23 9-16 inches. This change made it impossible to use the old presses, in the main building, geared to the old page dimensions, for any part of today's job of publication, and required the new equipment to assume the entire load on its first day.

270,000 32-Page Papers Per Hour.

When the first-floor windows of the Annex, now blacked over, are cleared a few days hence, the public will be able to see the new presses running, at speeds which give the entire battery a maximum capacity of 270,000 32-page papers an hour.

The public's view will include the upper press structure, with its gleaming array of pipe rollers guiding webs of paper to the assembly and folding mechanisms; the printing units, at first-floor level, covered by black steel casings and looking not unlike boilers; the handling of paper in the basement to replace the rapidly unwinding rolls, with no stop for the necessary paste-up connection—all now done by machinery without diminution of speed; and the constant ascent of the finished product to the second floor mailing room.

With the shift from the old press equipment, in the main building, to the new presses in the Annex, the transfer of mechanical branches of the Post-Dispatch to the new quarters was completed. The composing room and stereotyping plant moved into the third floor of the new building on one of the hottest days of last August. The photo-engraving plant remains in the main building, and there is no present plan for its removal. Except for it, the main building will be used entirely by the editorial, news and business departments, and by Radio Station KSD, whose 546-foot television tower is on top of the Annex.

Work Interrupted by War.

But for the war, the change made today would have come four or five years sooner. Plans for the Annex were begun near the end of 1940, and construction was completed late in 1942. The new presses, ordered in March, 1941, were in process of construction at Wood Newspaper Machinery Corp. plant in Plainfield, N.J., when Government orders converted that establishment to war production.

The press parts were placed in storage at Plainfield, and the new building, with 206 feet front, transforming the appearance of the Olive street block, was used for paper storage. This use was timely, for the Government had taken over a building leased by the Post-Dispatch for storing its paper supply.

The only public use of any part of the Annex, in the war and immediate postwar periods, was the displaying on the first floor, in May and June, 1945, of photomurals of the German concentration camp atrocities. The pictures, viewed here by more than 80,000 persons, were shown later in the Library of Congress, Washington, and in several Missouri and Illinois cities in addition to several cities in the east.

New Battery of Presses.

Twenty-one standard black and white printing units, six units for either black-white or color printing, and six folding mechanisms, compose the new battery of presses. The color units make possible the use of four colors in the daily paper. The equipment includes the original order placed with the manufacturers in 1941, and additional units made necessary by the circulation growth of the Post-Dispatch, notably its increase on Sunday from 310,000 to 410,000.

Miniature railroads convey the stereotype plates to the press beds on the first floor, and the rolls of paper to their basement starting points in the printing process. Auto-pasters, in the basement, attach new rolls to the end of rolls completing their cycle; this change may come as frequently as every 20 minutes, and it is now made without lessening speed. If a web of paper breaks, the sensitive press mechanism stops immediately, and the tangling of a mass of paper with the rollers is avoided.

For each of the two lines of presses, four motors furnish 600 horsepower, a total of 1200 horsepower for both lines. The presses rest on concrete slabs 154 feet long and 18 inches thick, which are independent of the building floor.

By an odd mechanical trick, every fiftieth paper printed—this applies to 32-page papers—is laid slightly on the bias in the pile of finished papers; this for the convenience of the mailing room in filling circulation orders. If a 64-page issue is being printed, every twenty-fifth paper is thus distinguished from the others.

The new presses will be manned by members of St. Louis Web Printing Pressmen's Union No. 38 (AFL), whose officers are: President, Floyd Carter; vice president, Joseph Foerstel; secretary-treasurer, David Biasella. The local union is affiliated with the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America with headquarters at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., whose officers are: President, George L. Berry; vice presidents, F. W. Moxted, J. H. DeLaRosa, C. V. Ernest and A. G. DeAndrade; secretary-treasurer, William H. McHugh.

Preparation of the type and forms for printing is done in the new composing room by members of Local No. 8 of the St. Louis Typographical Union whose orricers are: President, William J. Gibbons; vice president, Stephen Tammany, and secretary-treasurer, H. T. Collins.

The new mailing room, where papers are handled as they leave the presses, is manned by members of the St. Louis Mailers' Union, Local No. 3, headed by President David Quarles. Other officers are: Vice president, Sylvester Katz; secretary-treasurer, Walter Whitaker, and recording secretary, William Sturgeon. The mailers also are affiliates of the International Typographical Union with headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., with Woodruff Randolph as international president.

The stereotyping, also done with new and improved equipment, is performed by members of the St. Louis Stereotypers' Union, Local No. 8. Officers of the local, which is an affiliate of the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union, are: President, Herman Brown; vice president, Clyde Rains; secretary, J. B. Heskett Sr.; treasurer, Frank Schaab, and financial secretary, Aaron Barnett.

Newsprint handling is by the St. Louis Paper Handlers' Union, Local No. 16, an affiliate of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America. Officers of the local include: President, Joseph Kovarik; vice president, James Douglas; secretary-treasurer, Chester V. Talbert, and recording secretary, Donald A. Landis.

All of these unions are affiliates of the American Federation of Labor.

The old presses, sold to several midwest publishers, will soon be removed from the main building basement, which will thereafter be used for storage.

NIGHT CLUB MAN KILLED BY RIVAL IN STREET FIGHT

Sam Moncado Shoots Vic Giamarino—Says Victim Recently Threatened His Life.

Vic Giamarino, night club operator, was shot and killed by Sam Salvatore Moncado, manager of the Seventeenth Ward Democratic Social Club, in a fight early yesterday which started when Moncado refused Giamarino admission to the club at 3946 Olive street.

Police, arriving at the scene minutes after the shooting, found Giamarino, shot three times in the head and twice in the chest, lying on the sidewalk and Moncado standing beside him with an automatic pistol in each hand.

Officers said Moncado told them the shooting culminated a series of disputes between the two over the operation of their respective clubs. Giamarino, who owns Club Avalon at North Grand and Delcar boulevards, Moncado said, recently had threatened to kill him.

Barred Giamarino From Club.

Moncado said he refused to admit Giamarino to the Democratic club at 1 a.m. yesterday.

"What are we, friends or enemies?" Moncado told police he asked him. "You have been causing me trouble in the club and I can't let you up there."

Giamarino, he said, cursed him and threatened to kill him, then grabbed him by the shirt front and started to drag him across the street.

"I pulled my guns and started shooting and I kept on shooting until the guns quit firing," Moncado said.

Eyewitness's Story.

Peter Puzzo of Pattonville corroborated Moncado's version of the fight. He said he saw Giamarino, also known as Marino, holding Moncado against a wall with both hands around his neck as though he were choking him. A few seconds later he heard a series of shots.

Police said they were told Giamarino had accused Moncado of having instigated his recent arrest for violation of liquor laws at Club Avalon, and there had been bad blood between the two over attempts to lure night club patrons away from each other. Last Thursday Giamarino had a fight at the Democratic club with a waiter whom he claimed had overcharged him, police said.

After the shooting, Carl Marino, a brother of Vic, was arrested suspected of carrying concealed weapons when he went to the Newstead Avenue Station to inquire about his brother's death and was found to have a loaded revolver in the glove compartment of the automobile he was using. Police also found a loaded automatic pistol in Vic Giamarino's machine.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Andrew J. Reis refused to issue a warrant against Carl Marino for having a concealed weapon on the ground that the automobile in which the revolver was found did not belong to Marino and he had disclaimed any knowledge of the weapon's presence.

Moncado, who told police he lived in the 4500 block of Maffitt avenue, was booked suspected of homicide and held under bond. An inquest in Giamarino's death, which was started today, was continued until next Friday at 9 a.m.

PROWLER IN RESTAURANT SHOT IN BACK BY NEIGHBOR

A man who said he was William A. Clyce, Negro, 4454A Evans avenue, is in serious condition at Homer G. Phillips hospital today with a gunshot wound of the back suffered early yesterday when he was discovered prowling in a closed restaurant at 4583 Easton avenue.

Clyce was seen inside the restaurant by Eugene Payne, Negro, operator of a filling station across the street at 4582 Easton. Payne called police, then took a pistol and crossed to the restaurant. He fired six shots at Clyce when the latter produced a pistol and threatened to kill him, Payne said.

DRIVER PLACED ON PROBATION

On advice from the parole office, Police Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro stayed a fine of $150 against Frank C. Hunter, 3948A Castleman avenue, and accepted payment of $50, placing Hunter on probation for one year. Catanzaro said that Hunter's previous good record was the reason for clemency.

Hunter had pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and was found guilty of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested after a machine he was driving collided with another automobile on Russell boulevard near Nebrbaska avenue Dec. 24. His driver's license was suspended for one year.

DRUG STORE ROBBED OF $450; ARMED MAN THREATENS OWNER

Same Stone, proprietor of a drug store at 925 Goodfellow boulevard, reported last night that a robber who threatened him with a revolver took $450 from the store.

His wife, Mrs. Blanche Stone, said the man entered and had bought a package of cigarettes when he suddenly produced the weapon and forced her to open the cash register drawer, from which he took $200. He then ordered Stone to open a safe, and took from it a canvas bag which Stone said contained $250. The man then directed the Stones and Donald Dwyer, a delivery boy, 5020 Cates avenue, to go to the basement of the store, after which he escaped.

HAROLD D. CONNER DISBARRED FOR MISUSE OF FUNDS

Missouri Supreme Court Orders St. Louisan's Name Stricken Permanently From Rolls.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12—Harold D. Conner, St. Louis attorney, was ordered permanently disbarred for misappropriation of funds from an estate for which he was administrator, in an opinion handed down today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc.

Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood on April 30, 1946, had suspended Conner from the practice of law for 90 days, but the Bar Committee of the Eighth (St. Louis) Judicial Circuit contended the penalty was "inappropriate and inadequate" and appealed it.

Division 2 of the Supreme Court had dismissed the appeal on the ground it was not authorized by state law, but a rehearing was obtained.

In an opinion written by Judge Roscoe P. Conkling, the court upheld the right of a bar committee to appeal a penalty it considers inadequate, and ruled a disbarment proceeding is subject to review. All of the judges concurred in the entire opinion except Judge C. A. Leedy Jr., who concurred in the result.

Conner, administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. Josie B. Gregor, had been charged with failing to distribute $695 of a $1070 balance ordered paid to heirs of the estate. The attorney testified he sent $775 in estate funds to his soldier brother after the brother told him he needed the money to settle a personal difficulty. Conner said the brother promised to repay the money within 60 days, but failed to do so.

5 BOYS, GIRL CAUGHT IN THEFT

Five boys and a girl from St. Louis were held today at the Jackson County Parental Home after they were captured by state highway patrolmen as they robbed a grocery near Lone Jack, Mo., the United Press reported from Kansas City.

The patrolmen said the six, ranging in age from 14 to 16, had broken a plate glass window in the store to get some candy. They had stolen an automobile in St. Louis Sunday to take a trip, they said.

Cut Down on Those Luxuries

Sure, you're making good money now. But that doesn't mean you have to spend it all.

Try hard. Do without a luxury or two. Save something for later.

Then you'll have the money when the time comes to plunk down the first payment on a new home — or to put the boy in college — or when you want to take life easy.

Save it at INDUSTRIAL. Your money earns interest from the day of deposit and there's no top limit on the amount that earns interest.

You can do it.

PAULEY ADMITS PROFIT OF NEARLY MILLION DOLLARS

about the disclosure, in the Department of Agriculture listings, that his father, brother, sister-in-law, mother-in-law and his own business manager, Claude L. Cameron, were heavy traders in the commodity markets.

Davies Also Named.

Stassen has asserted that Pauley was one of 11 top Government insiders who profiteered in food since the close of the war, a statement that Pauley has challenged vigorously. Stassen named also Ralph K. Davies, wartime Deputy ePtroleum Administrator, who is a close friend of Pauley's.

Chairman Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, of the Senate appropriations subcommittee, said he must reject Pauley's demand that he be given the right to confront Stassen and cross-examine him at open hearings, but, he said, Pauley will be permitted to submit written questions to committee members for submission to Stassen. This dramatic session probably will be held late this month, when Stassen concludes his current campaign tour.

Tomorrow the committee will question Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, White House physician, who has acknowledged trading in grain. Graham is on record as saying he sold his holdings Oct. 7, on learning that his broker, Bache & Co., had invested his funds in grain. Stassen asserted that Graham actually did not order his account liquidated until December, after Stassen had openly charged that speculators reached into the executive branch of the White House.

Holding On to Army Job.

Pauley, meanwhile, was holding fast to his post as special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall. When the feud with Stassen developed, Pauley told reporters he had accepted the job on a temporary basis, and that he would depart only when it was completed, indicating this would be a maximum of three to four months. The four months expired Jan. 3, but Pauley has said nothing about resigning, despite unconfirmed rumors that the White House would feel relieved if he did so. Pauley did quit last month as Democratic national committeeman from California.

The Pauley telegram to Stassen said, in part: "Why not stop evading? Under oath before the Senate appropriations subcommittee you said I made $1,000,000 following a pattern of Government purchases. When you were not under oath, you merely said that I had not denied making $1,000,000.

"Why not stop the pretense as well as the evasion? When you return before the committee, if you do return, I intend . . . to expose you."

Meanwhile, Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, yesterday volunteered to submit his records on commodity trading to any congressional committee, and the offer was taken up by Ferguson. Thomas made clear his purpose was to prove he had not taken advantage of any inside information in his dealings. He has not yet been able definitely to establish, he said, whether the "Edith Thomas of Washington, D. C.," listed by the Government as a trader, was his own wife, named Edith.

He emphasized that he was not denying the listed holding of 300 bales of cotton futures, credited to Edith Thomas as of July 1946, and that he has asked his brokers for a detailed record of the transaction. Ferguson said he thought his colleague's action in volunteering to submit his records was "commendalbe" and that his committee would be glad to study them.

GAINS WORTH COST OF AIDING EUROPE, CONGRESS IS TOLD

there are sharp differences of opinion over the amount of aid and how it should be handled.

Dispute Over Management."

One idea getting attention in the House committee is to put the program under a special eight-member board. Those backing it say it would mean a "business-like" administration.

Marshall hit at that. He said a "business-like" administration is important and the way to get it is to put the program under a single administrator.

As he did when testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week, Marshall urged that Congress authorize a European aid program adequate to provide "genuine recovery."

The Administration is asking Congress to authorize a four-year program of aid for Europe's economic recovery and to vote $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months of the program. The amount of later spending would be up to the Congresses of the future.

Reasons for Aid Program.

Marshall told the Congressmen that the proposal to help Europe inevitably raised these questions: "What does the United States get out of this? Why should the United States accept European burdens in this manner?"

He gave these answers:

"European economic recovery, we feel sure, is essential to preservation of basic freedom in the most critical area of the world today.

"European economic recovery is essential to a return of normal trade and commerce throughout the world.

"The United States is the only nation today with the strength to lend vital support to such a movement.

"We want peace. We want security. We want to see the world return to normal as quickly as possible. A great crisis has to be met. Do we meet the situation with action or do we step aside and allow other forces to settle the pattern of future European civilization."

Marshall said he had never intended that administration of the program should be hampered by "unnecessary controls or interference" from the State Department.

"I have said before that I have an open mind both on the specific machinery of administration and on the wording of legislation," he went on. "I believe, however, that the authority for the administration of the program should be vested in a single individual and not in a commission or board and matters of foreign policy must be subject to control and direction of the Secretary of State."

Chairman Eaton (Rep.), New Jersey, told Marshall he wanted these two questions answered:

"How will the program be handled without invading the sovereignty of 16 European nations?

"How do we meet the assertion of a certain ideology in government that if we follow this program we will enslave the people we set free?"

In answering the first, Marshall went over many of his arguments for a single administrator.

In reply to the second, he said, without naming Russia:

"Well, Mr. Chairman, pure propaganda is very hard to meet as such. It takes a period of time to establish that you are clean minded in your procedure, decent in your desires and dependable. Certainly if this involved a conspiracy of economic imperilism it would have to have a more machiavellian approach than public procedure and public hearings.

"Instead of being engaged in a conspiracy as alleged, it is quite evident we are trying to have the public understand the situation."

He agreed with Eaton that "our action will be carried on with the full knowledge, consent and approval of the nations we are trying to help."

Compromise Predicted.

Meanwhile, there were predictions of a compromise over the disputed issue of how to run the recovery program as a hard-headed business venture without disturbing Marshall's position in foreign affairs.

Representative Vorys (Rep.), Ohio, told a reporter that while the whole issue is in the advanced "talking stage," Republican leaders in the House have mentioned three billion dollars as a possible substitute for Marshall's figure of $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months.

However, Representative Judd (Rep.), Minnesota, another member, declared in a separate interview that Congress must be prepared to spend whatever is needed "to do the job right." Judd and Vorys are members of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Judd agreed with Vorys that a powerful Republican bloc on the House committee will oppose Marshall on his bid for over-all control of the recovery program.

In this connection, a Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said efforts already are under way to work out a compromise on this issue. He added that State Department officials are agreeable so long as Marshall's authority is preserved.

Requests Cut Two Billions.

The State Department disclosed yesterday it has cut by more than two billion dollars the amount of financial help originally requested by Britain, France, Western Germany and Greece in the first year of the European recovery program. Smaller cuts were made in analyzing the needs of Italy, Denmark and Sweden, while slight increases were judged necessary for the Netherlands, Belgium-Luxembourg and Norway.

A hitherto undisclosed comparison shows these estimated reductions in the 12-month requirements of the major European countries from the United States, Canada, Latin American and the World Bank:

United Kingdom, estimated deficit cut from $2,630,000,000 to $1,923,000,000; France, $1,888,000,000 to $1,090,000,000; western Germany, $1,150,000,000 to $750,000,000; Italy, $930,000,000 to $780,000,000; Greece, $510,000,000 to $157,000,000; Sweden, $150,000,000 to $65,000,000, and Denmark, $210,000,000 to $162,000,000.

The Netherlands requirements were boosted from $630,000,000 to $659,000,000; Belgium-Luxembourg from $320,000,000 to $439,000,000 and Norway from $50,000,000 to $76,000,000.

CLAYTON MEETING TONIGHT ON BUS ROUTE PROPOSAL

A meeting of residents in the southeast section of Clayton will be held at 8 p.m. today under the direction of Mayor C. Kenneth Thies of Clayton. The meeting, which will be held at the DeMun School, DeMun and Northwood avenues, has been called to study a bus-routing proposition of the Public Service Co. concerning the discontinuance of the City Limits street car.

The company has proposed to extend the route from Skinker road, west on North Rosebury avenue and south on DeMun to Clayton road. The return route would extend north on DeMun avenue, east on South Rosebury avenue to Skinker.

The company has agreed to route the busses over the proposed route if the persons attending the meeting so direct. If the proposal is not accepted the busses will go directly to Clayton road over Skinker road.

G.L.K. SMITH AID HECKLES ETHICAL SOCIETY SPEAKER

He, Two Others Pictured as Trying to Monopolize Question Period After Services.

Don Lohbeck, chief lieutenant of Gerald L. K. Smith, head of the America First movement, and a companion interrupted repeatedly a question and answer period following yesterday's morning's services at the Ethical Society, 3646 Washington boulevard, by attempting to make a series of speeches of a heckling nature.

The meeting had been addressed by Kurt Singer, wartime publisher of an anti-Nazi underground newspaper in Europe, who described Smith as "one of the grave-diggers of democracy." Singer had criticized also Dr. Harvey Springer of Englewood, Colo., as Smith's western representative.

"The interruptions in the question period started when a man who said he was Kenneth Goff of Denver, who was with Lohbeck and Homer Loomis Jr., organizer of the Columbians, Inc., in Georgia, shouted, 'we have a warrant for your arrest in Denver for your lies about Dr. Springer,'" R. Walston Chubb, attorney and chairman of the meeting, said.

"Singer replied, 'Why don't you serve the warrant here,' and I called Goff on a point of order for attempting to make a speech instead of asking a question. When he and Lohbeck tried to make speeches several times later, the same thing happened.

"Lohbeck then said he had four questions. I told him he could ask only one at a time. It was apparent the three were trying to monopolize the meeting, so I announced I would entertain a motion to pay no more attention to them, and it was carried."

Chubb said that, before silencing Lohbeck and his companion; he pointed out that as a member of the Civil Rights Committee of the St. Louis Bar Association he had upheld the contention last year that Smith and his followers had a right to meet here.

"Loomis was very well-behaved," Chubb added. "I don't recall that he said anything until the meeting was adjourned. Then he took part in some discussions among members of the audience. The interruptions were one of those things that happen. It's too bad Smith has moved his headquarters to St. Louis. This just isn't that kind of a hick town."

The headquarters were moved recently from Detroit to 340 North Vandeventer avenue. Lohbeck returned to St. Louis Saturday night from Washington, where he pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging he had posted derogatory signs at the Russian embassy. Goff was indicted on a similar charge.

PILOT'S LICENSE SUSPENDED FOR 4 MONTHS FOR 'BUZZING'

The private pilot's license of Walther L. Michener, 1709 Dyer avenue, Overland, was suspended for four months today by Examiner James Constantine of the Civil Aeronautics Board, following a charge that he "buzzed" the area in the vicinity of his home last July 23.

The suspension was ordered after a neighbor testified that Michener flew lower than the 1000 feet fixed at the time as the minimum altitude for such congested areas.

Michener, who admitted he made three low flights over the area, surrendered his license and waived right to appeal. He said he was unemployed.

WAR SURPLUS SALE STARTS

A sale of surplus equipment and clothing is being held today through Friday at the Scott Field Salvage Warehouse. Bids of the "closed" or "sealed" type are being accepted.

Included in the sale are flying and WAC type of clothing; electrical equipment; drafting sets and ink; radio receiving sets; tools and plumbing supplies.

FEDERAL INQUIRY ON MILK PRICES HERE ORDERED

September asked the Attorney General to investigate high food costs here.

The statute of limitations has not run against violations which may have occurred late in 1941, because Congress, by an act of Oct. 10, 1942, suspended operation of the act on anti-trust prosecutions from that date to June 30, 1946, when it began to run again.

Heads of Pevely Dairy Co. denied to Post-Dispatch reporters recently that their company fixed prices with other dairies. Top officers of St. Louis Dairy refused to comment.

Pevely and St. Louis dairies, which handle about 75 per cent of the retail milk sold in the city and St. Louis county, have changed prices six times since OPA controls were removed June 30, 1946. Five times the price was increased and once it was lowered. Each time the price alteration was identical. Present price is 21½ cents a quart for Grade "A" and 22½ cents for homogenized milk.

Similar Cases Elsewhere.

A similar grand jury inquiry into food prices, particularly milk, is under way in Washington and a federal grand jury in Chicago is investigating meat and milk industries there. A Boston grand jury last month indicted the Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange and 12 egg dealers, charging them with conspiracy to fix egg prices throughout New England.

All these investigations stem from Clark's, directive to the anti-trust division to take prompt action against any evidence of "conspiracies to maintain or to increase present prices in the food, clothing and housing fields."

Court Rejects Borden Co. Challenge of Grand Jury Subpena.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (UP) — United States District Judge John P. Barnes today denied a petition from the Borden Milk Co., challenging a subpena for records issued by a special grand jury investigating prices.

The company, citing numerous federal inquiries into milk price structures in recent years, objected that it was being subjected to "harassment" in producing the records. Company attorneys argued that the Borden company in Chicago was only one branch of the parent company, and that records were kept in New York.

Barnes said his regard for a federal grand jury was such that he felt compelled to overrule the company petition.

What else do you buy today that costs less than pre-war?
You may be surprised at some of the present prices on General Electric lamps. On the 100-watt bulb it is the same price that you were paying before the war. Prices on some types of lamps are higher. Prices on many lamps are substantially lower than they were in 1941.
But, the average for all G-E Lamp prices is below the December, 1941 level, excluding the present excise tax which the government collects. That's a remarkable accomplishment of the folks who make and sell G-E Lamps—one that is helping to hold the price line today.

All prices subject to applicable taxes.
General Electric's policy has always been to develop and make the best possible lamps for every lighting need and to sell them at the lowest possible price. The constant aim of G-E Lamp Research is to make G-E lamps Stay Brighter Longer.

"Please accept the enclosed $25.00 as a gift to the Treasury of the United States as a token payment for the services rendered by our Government to me as a citizen for the year of 1947.

"I have today been informed by one of your deputies that I owe no tax on the small income I had for the year. This is given of free will and no claim whatever will ever be made."

Dallman did not disclose the satisfied citizen's name.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH, MACHINISTS CONTINUE WAGE TALKS TODAY

Negotiations between officers of Anheuser-Busch Inc., 721 Pestalozzi street, and members of the International Association of Machinists, District 9, were scheduled to continue today, A. L. Armantraut, labor director of Anheuser-Busch announced today.

A wage increase offer of 12½ cents an hour, retroactive to Jan. 1, was rejected yesterday by the union at a meeting at its headquarters at the St. Louis House, 2845 Lafayette avenue. The machinists, who did not vote to strike, have been asking for an increase of 37½ cents an hour. The present scale is $1.87 cents an hour, Armantrout said.

LAWYER INDICTED WITH GANGSTER IN PAROLE CASE

Pair in Chicago Charged With Making False Statements to Government Agency.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP) — A former Capone gangster and a Chicago attorney were indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of making false statements to a Government agency and conspiracy in connection with the paroles of four other former Capone associates from federal prison last August.

Named in the true bills were Anthony J. Accardo and Attorney Eugene Bernstein.

The indictments charged that Accardo, who used the name Joe Batters at times in the prohibition era, had impersonated another Chicago attorney, Joseph Bulger, on nine visits with Bernstein to Louis Campagna and Paul Delucia at Leavenworth penitentiary.

Campagna, Delucia and two others, Charles Gioe and Philip D'Andrea, were released from prison on parole last August after serving three and one-third years of 10-year sentences for participation in a $1,000,000 extortion plot.

Warden Reported Convinced Cash Aided Prison Transfer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Representative Busbey (Rep.), Illinois, said today the warden of Atlanta Penitentiary told him he was "convinced" that money had been paid for the transfer of four Chicago gangsters to Leavenworth Prison from the Southern prison.

Busbey said also that "different people" had urged him to "go easy" in the i ion of the subsequent parole of the four gangsters.

Busbey quoted the warden in a verbal report to a House executive expenditures subcommittee investigating the paroles. Busbey has just returned from a trip to Atlanta, where he interviewed Warden Joseph Sanford.

"The warden said that while he didn't have any actual proof, he was convinced in his own mind that money had been paid for the transfer," Busbey said. He said Sanford had named a New York attorney, as involved in the transaction. Busbey did not say what role the lawyer had in the alleged incident.

The subcommittee is investigating the parole from Leavenworth last August of Charles Gioe, Paul Ricca, Louis Campagna and Phil D'Andrea.

Busbey, a member of the subcommittee, went to Atlanta to find out why the four convicts, who had originally been sent to that penitentiary, were transferred to Leavenworth.

A later trip to Leavenworth was fruitless, Busbey said, because the records there ad been sent to the District Attorney of Chicago. He said he had been trying to find out whether the convicts had been visited by certain individuals under an assumed name. They were not named.

"Different people have approached me and wanted to know how far I am going to go in this parole thing and suggested I go a little easy," he said.

"Do you want to name anyone?" asked Chairman Hoffman (Rep.), Michigan.

"Not at this time," Busbey replied.

Hoffman had been trying to obtain a full copy of the report of an investigation of the paroles by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The committee has received a confidential summary which members say is inadequate.

"It looks as if the Department of Justice is siding with these gangsters, or whatever they are, against this committee of Congress," Hoffman commented. "I want to call Mr. Tom Clark (Attorney General) up here and find out what side he is on."

Paul Dillon, St. Louis lawyer and politician, was revealed before the congressional committee at Chicago last September as a power behind the parole of the four gangsters.

Dillon, who testified as a committee witness, asserted he "didn't get a nickel" for his efforts on behalf of the men. He said his connection with the case came after the wife of one of the men complained about the hardships of going to Atlanta to visit her husband.

Dillon said that on his next visit to Washington he asked that the prisoner, Campagna, be transferred to Leavenworth. Subsequently, Mrs. Campagna went to St. Louis and conferred with Dillon, who said he refused to represent the men as attorney, but promised to do what he could for them.

Dillon, who is attorney for Sheriff John F. Dougherty of St. Louis, subsequently appeared before the federal parole board and made representations for a parole for the four men.

$2000 FIRE IN APARTMENT AT VETERAN HOUSING PROJECT

A fire in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Clark, 1142 Sherman avenue in the Jefferson Barracks housing project for veterans, caused damage yesterday estimated at $2000 by V. O. Karsnick, fire protection engineer for the War Assets Administration. Cause of the fire has not been determined. Mrs. Clark was overcome by smoke and was taken to Deaconess Hospital.

The fire burned out the Clark's five-room apartment, located in a one-story frame building that houses four other apartments. Neighbors assisted occupants of the other units to move furniture from the building. Apparatus from the WAA fire department at the project and the St. Louis county station house there fought the blaze.

REPORT OF $10CO THEFT INVESTIGATED BY POLICE

A report of the theft of $1000 and business papers from a safe in the office of the Acorn Lumber Co. on the fourth floor of the International Building, 722 Chestnut street was being investigater by police today.

Jay Gruner, vice president of the company, said the theft was discovered by his secretary, Clarice Volker, 4022 Darby avenue, when she opened the safe this morning. Police said there was no evidence of forced entry to the office or to the safe.

80 FISHERMEN ESCAPE FROM BIG LAKE FLOE

STURGEON, Wis., Jan. 12 (UP)—A floe containing 60 or 70 fishermen's shacks, a tractor, a jeep and automobile was adrift offshore here today after the ice broke yesterday. Eighty fishermen were marooned on the drifting ice yesterday but all managed to get off later.

There was a possibility that a shift in wind direction might return the floe to shore today. The floe covered several miles.

BURGLAR HANNON CAUGHT; HUNTED IN K.C. BALLOT THEFT

Held in Quincy (Ill.) Jewel Robbery—Jumped Bail in Missouri Last February.

Richard S. Hannon, notorious St. Louis burglar for whom authorities and professional bondsmen have been searching for nearly a year, has been in custody under another name at Quincy, Ill., since last Wednesday and was arraigned there today on a series of charges growing out of the $16,000 robbery of a jeweler.

Among other matters, Hannon was sought for questioning by federal officers in the sensational theft of vote fraud evidence from the election board vault at Kansas City, Mo., last May 28.

Arrested at Havana, Ill., where he had lived under the name of Kenneth Shepard and worked for the city plumber, Hannon admitted his identity yesterday after he was viewed by Missouri Highway Patrolmen, who recognized him.

He was identified as the leader of a gang of five men, who forced their way into the home of R. M. Hurdle, Quincy jeweler, last Monday night, terrorized the Hurdle family and forced the jeweler to accompany them to his store. A diamond wrist watch and tags from two diamond rings, all part of the loot, were found in Hannon's room.

Had Been Reported Killed.

Search for Hannon, who was associated with a safe-cracking gang, began last February after he failed to appear at Jefferson City to answer a burglary charge. Reports were current at that time that he had been killed in gang fashion and buried in St. Louis county. His $6500 bond, signed by William J. Dietrich and Charles Deibel, St. Louis professional bondsmen, was ordered forfeited.

Hannon is under sentence of 15 years in the Missouri penitentiary, imposed at Hillsboro in 1945 for the theft of a juke box in a tavern burglary. His $4000 appeal bond was ordered forfeited last November, after the State Supreme Court affirmed the sentence. Henry P. (Butch) Sommers, a bondsman of St. Louis county, paid the forfeiture.

Hannon was known to have been in Kansas City shortly before the courthouse safe was blasted open and the vote fraud evidence stolen. Authorities said he had a woman friend there, and he used tools bought in Kansas City in several of his burglaries. Investigators believed a professional safecracker was employed on the courthouse job, and they wanted to question Hannon about it.

The bondsmen, Dietrich and Deibel said they spent about $3000 in their unsuccessful search for Hannon. In addition to the $6500 forfeiture at Jefferson City, Dietrich and Deibel had signed two $4000 appearance bonds, which were defaulted here last March when Hannon failed to appear on a burglary charge. Recently the search for Hannon had turned to St. Louis county, following a report that the fugitive was hiding in quarters above a roadhouse on Olive Street road. The place had been watched, but Hannon failed to make an appearance.

There have been reports at various times that Hannon was associated with members of the Chicago Capone syndicate in the juke box rivalry in this territory. During the war years, when juke boxes were difficult to obtain, Hannon made a business of stealing the machines from rural taverns and peddling them in St. Louis. The case in which he was convicted at Hillsboro involved the sale of the stolen juke box in St. Louis.

Hannon's identity came to light at Quincy after State's Attorney John T. Reardon became suspicious because professional bondsmen showed no interest in signing a bond for the prisoner, although two other men identified in the Hurdle robbery readily obtained release on $15,000 bonds. Reardon started an investigation, which led to Hillsboro, where he obtained a description of Hannon. Identification by two Missouri highway patrolmen, who were sent to Quincy, followed.

Hurdle and his wife and daughter pointed out Hannon as leader of the gang, which held them in the Hurdle home and later drove the jeweler to his store to open the safe. Hannon, who worked part time as a steamfitter for the city plumber at Havana and spent his nights as a dealer in a dice game, had made the acquaintance of an Illinois State Highway patrolman, who arrested him.

Apparently because of the intensive search for him, Hannon carried a revolver when arrested, an unusual circumstance. In previous arrests he was habitually unarmed and was known by police to be opposed to "rough stuff." He made no effort to use the weapon, however.

Warrants were issued by Reardon charging Hannon and his two accomplices with armed robbery, conspiracy, kidnaping, burglary and larceny. Several of the charges carry a life sentence. The other men, also identified by the Hurdle family, are Frank Pebote and John Volk, both of Peoria. They were arrested last Wednesday at Rushville, Ill., and had a quantity of the jewelry store loot in their car, officers said.

Reardon said it had not been decided whether Hannon will be prosecuted in the Quincy robbery, or turned over to Missouri authorities to begin his 15-year prison term. For the present he will be held at Quincy, pending the search for the two members of the robbery gang still at large.

Three St. Louis detectives, Lt. Albert Detert, Cpl. James Ogden and William Edler, went to Quincy today to question Hannon.

Hannon served two five-year terms in the Missouri penitentiary, the first on a statutory charge and the second for robbery. Following his release in 1942 he became associated with Harvey Miller and other notorious burglars in a safe-cracking ring.

RED MOVE TO OUST U.S., BRITAIN FROM BERLIN INDICATED

Russian-Controlled Press Hints at Effort as Result of New Economic Setup.

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (AP) — The Russian-sponsored press indicated strongly today that a Soviet attempt to force out Britain and the United States as joint occupiers of Berlin might be presented to the next session of the four-power Allied Control Council for Germany Jan. 20.

This coincided with disclosure that Dr. Herman B. Wells, president of Indiana University, was arrested and held for three hours by Soviet occupation authorities yesterday in the Soviet sector of Berlin.

Four other Americans with Dr. Wells also were held, in violation of Allied agreements providing for the free movement of Allied personnel in all four sectors of the city.

American authorities disclosed today that a total of 17 Americans, including 12 soldiers, had been arrested and detained by the Russians in recent weeks.

Dr. Wells is on leave of absence from Indiana University to serve as adviser on cultural affairs to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor. Arrested with him yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rotstein, Peter A. Fraenkel and Wade E. Ferris, soldier driver for the party. Fraenkel and Rotstein also are Military Government employes.

The Russia-controlled Taegliche Rundschau charged that establishment at Frankfurt last week of a German economic administration for the British-American zones never would be agreed to by the U.S.S.R. and that a "necessary consequence" must be a change in the statute of Berlin which places the capital under four-power control.

Commenting on a statement by Gen. Clay that he would report on the Frankfurt action to the Control Council, the newspaper said this would never be accepted and that the Western powers would be held accountable.

The report, drawn by by Clay and Lt. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British occupation commander, is expected to be ready for the Jan. 20 session of the council.

The editorial asserted that the Frankfurt "conspiracy" represented the construction of a German "pseudo government" and creation of a separate state of western Germany in violation of the Potsdam pact.

It further accused Clay and Robertson of imposing upon the Germans "secret plans for a puppet government" prepared by Secretary of State George C. Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Informed sources in Munich, meanwhile, said a vast movement of American personnel from Berlin to Frankfurt was expected, with only a skeleton military government remaining in Berlin.

There has been a sharp increase in Soviet arrests of American soldiers in the Russian sector of Berlin since the breakup of the Foreign Ministers' conference in London. A liaison officer who negotiated for their release said some had been held for as long as three days without notice to United States authorities.

He said American protests had effected an improvement and that the Russians "now report to us fairly promptly whenever they pick up any of our personnel."

Your best buy in the fine-car field!

—the FRAZER MANHATTAN

Have you inspected the Frazer Manhattan? If not, you owe it to yourself to do just that — to discover why this ultra-fine car has in less than ten months taken the lead in its price class. And against rivals holding the oldest and proudest reputations in motordom!

You will see the stunning beauty of line, the interior roominess and splendor of upholstery and appointments which have earned international honors. But it has taken far more than dramatic styling and luxurious interiors to win leadership for the Frazer Manhattan among America's most discriminating group of buyers!

You must get behind the wheel to learn the whole story! The first ten minutes will tell you nearly everything you need to know.

Especially if you try the roughest street in town! And if you "let it out" over a few miles of open highway — regardless of surface or curves — you will discover the sure feeling that car and road are made for each other. Ease of control and nimble responsiveness will astound you most if your experience has included the world's finest prewar cars.

There is one characteristic of your Frazer Manhattan which the years and miles will prove. That is lasting value — the result of pace-setting style that means low depreciation, and advanced engineering that means long life. Yes, from your first look to your last mile, today's Frazer Manhattan is your best buy in the fine-car field! Come and see it today!

Hear Newsweek with Wendell Noble, 4 times weekly over Mutual

HERE ARE SOME OF THE REASONS WHY THE FRAZER MANHATTAN IS NOW THE LARGEST SELLING CAR IN ITS PRICE CLASS

Undisputed Style Leadership! The Frazer Manhattan has been paid the ultimate compliment — attempted imitation by other manufacturers as they get around to announcing their postwar models. This means lasting protection for your motor car investment!

Matchless Gliding Ride! By redistribution of mass and load and cradling both seats between the front and rear wheels, Kaiser-Frazer has created a soft, level, gliding ride previously unknown.

Superb Interiors! A wide variety of gloriously rich color combinations in the costliest broadcloth obtainable, makes Frazer Manhattan interiors the finest and the most luxurious in any motor car.

Phenomenal Performance! Fully postwar engineering gives the Frazer Manhattan an unusually high power-to-weight ratio. This, plus standard overdrive, means power to spare and ECONOMY beyond owners' fondest expectations!

KAISER SERVICE FRAZER

NAMED AIR FORCE LIEUTENANT

William T. Lunsford, a graduate of McBride High School, became the first warrant officer to be commissioned as a lieutenant in the Eleventh Air Force, Col. H. P. Bonnewitz, adjutant general of the force, with headquarters in Harrisburg, Pa., announced today.

Lunsford, who was born in St. Louis, entered the service at Jefferson Barracks here in 1940. In the war he served in the North African and the China-Burma-India theaters of operation.

OKLAHOMA U. TOLD BY COURT TO ADMIT NEGRO

Supreme Tribunal Says School Was Only One Available to Girl for Free Education.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—The supreme court today in effect unanimously directed the traditionally-white University of Oklahoma to admit as a law student, Ada Lois Sipuel, a Negro girl, who previously was denied admission solely because of her race.

"The justices heard the last arguments in the case only Thursday.

"The petitioner is entitled to secure legal education afforded by a state institution, the court said in an unsigned opinion. "To this time, it has been denied her although during the same period many white applicants have been afforded legal education by the state.

"The state must provide it for her in conformity with the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment and provide it as soon as it does for applicants of any other group."

Only School Available.

The opinion noted that the University is "the only institution for legal education supported and maintained by the taxpayers of the state."

Oklahoma law makes it a crime for Negroes to attend white schools or white persons to attend Negro schools. The state attorneys told the court at the hearing, however, that the state board of regents has the authority to direct her admission to the white university.

The court agreed to rule on the legality of rent controls in peacetime. It granted a Justice Department request that it review a decision by United States District Judge Paul Jones in Cleveland who held that the 1947 rent control act is unconstitutional on the ground that Congress cannot control rents under its war-powers because the country is now, "in fact," at peace.

Conviction Set Aside.

In a 5-to-4 ruling the court set aside the conviction of a 15-year-old Negro school boy who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the murder of a Canton (O.) confectioner in 1945.

Justice Douglas, speaking for the majority, said that methods used in obtaining the boy's confession cannot be "squared with that due process of law which the Fourteenth Amendment commands."

According to trial evidence, John Harvey Haley acted as "lookout" for two other boys when they attempted to rob a confectionery store Oct. 14, 1945. The owner, William Karam, was shot and killed.

Haley's attorneys said a confession was extorted from him after alleged severe beatings by the Canton police. The youth appealed after the State Supreme Court upheld his conviction.

Wrong Use of Custody.

"The Fourteenth Amendment prohibits the police from using the private, secret custody of either man or child as a device for wringing confesions from them," Douglas said.

Justice Burton dissented in an opinion joined by Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Reed and Jackson.

Douglas noted that Haley was arrested Oct. 19 and signed the confession perhaps six hours later. He then was held incommunicado from his mother or a lawyer until Oct. 25. He was formally charged with the crime on Oct. 23.

Douglas said "this disregard for the standards of decency" was underlined by the fact that Haley later was kept incommunicado.

He said that "such a callous attitude" on the part of the police "compels that we take with a grain of salt their apologia" that the grilling was conducted in a fair and dispassionate manner.

Darkly Suspicious.

When police are so unmindful of basic standards, he said, "their secret treatment of a 15-year-old boy behind closed doors in the dead of night become darkly suspicious."

The court refused to hear an appeal filed by Benjamin F. Fields, war surplus broker, who was accused of failing to produce records before the House surplus property committee during an investigation of a bronze wire screen transaction. Fields was sentenced to serve 90 days and pay a $250 fine for contempt.

The court today agreed to examine a complaint of Andrew W. Comstock, representing himself and 14 other holders of the Missouri Pacific's 5¼ secured serial gold bonds.

Comstock objected to a $10,565,227 claim by the Missouri Pacific against a subsidiary, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway, which the United States district court at St. Louis ruled was valid and had a higher priority than Comstock's class of security holders in settlement of the financial reorganization.

MAC ARTHUR MAY ENTER ILLINOIS G.O.P. PRIMARY

Five-Man Race Possible Between Stassen, Taft, Dewey, Eisenhower and General.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Reports that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's friends intend to enter his name in the April 13 Illinois primary spurred speculation today that Senator Robert A. Taft and others may make that contest another Republican presidential testing ground.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, an announced candidate, is considered almost certain to challenge MacArthur there, as he expects to do a week earlier in Wisconsin.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York is represented by delegates running in Wisconsin. While he had indicated earlier he would stay out of Illinois, a rush of other candidates might force him into that race.

Senator Tobey (Rep.), New Hampshire, new Capitol Hill champion of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, said it is "entirely likely" that the name of the Army Chief of Staff will be placed on the Illinois preferential ballot.

Taft, who has planned to remain aloof from all primaries except the May 4 balloting in his home state of Ohio, was said to be giving new consideration to the Illinois situation as the result of private polls made there. These were described by the Ohioan's backers as "encouraging."

If a five-man race should develop in Illinois, it probably would offer the first test of strength for all major G.O.P. candidates, since the earlier New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries and a vote in Nebraska the same day are not expected to attract the entire field.

The Illinois preferential vote is not binding on that state's 56-member delegation to the June Philadelphia convention. Without major opposition, MacArthur won it with 550,354 votes in 1944, but Illinois cast its votes for Dewey on the first ballot that year.

Some Republican leaders have been planning a convention endorsement of Gov. Dwight Green as a "favorite son," a device that would keep the delegation available for developments at this year's convention.

If Eisenhower's name actually is entered, as Tobey suggested, it will pit him directly against MacArthur in a popularity test of the two wartime military leaders.

Eisenhower Not Commenting on New Hampshire Vote, Army says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Army said today that Gen. Eisenhower will have nothing to say about the New Hampshire primary.

A slate of delegates pledged to the Army chief of staff for Republican presidential nominee has been entered in the election there March 9.

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of the Army public information division, issued this brief announcement:

"General Eisenhower will make no statement regarding the New Hampshire primaries. He has reiterated on many previous occasions that he wants nothing to do with politics. He has not changed his mind."

Parks had his announcement handed out through public relations aids who said he would have nothing further to say. They added that Parks was making this terse announcement in response to queries.

CAT, OBVIOUSLY NOT OF TIN PAN ALLEY, ON CONCERT STAGE

An alley cat with a taste for music above the tin pan alley variety strolled onto the stage of the Kiel Auditorium Opera House yesterday as Jesus Maria Sanroma, pianist, was presenting Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

There was no interruption of the performance, although the attention of the audience shifted rather abruptly from the soloist and orchestra to the cat, which pased in front of the musicians, its upraised tail waving rhythmically.

At the conclusion of the number, Sanroma gave the first indication he had been aware of the cat's presence. "I will play a composition in honor of our non-union member," he announced, and presented, as an encore, Aaron Copland's "The Cat and the Mouse."

GASOLINE MADE OF GAS DOWN TO COMPETITIVE COST

Announcement Marks Step Toward Self-Sufficiency if Crude Oil Were Cut Off.

By ROBERT A. DUNLAP
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 12—The cost of synthesizing oil products from natural gas is now competitive with production from crude oil, it was announced today by E. V. Murphree, president of the Standard Oil Development Co., at the dedication of the control panel of the company's laboratory here.

While exact figures on cost will have to await actual full-scale production, it has been estimated, Murphree said, that synthetic gasoline, from natural gas, would cost the average motorist about 10 cents more a day than conventional gasoline in the operation of his automobile.

The announcement marks a long step toward national self-sufficiency in the matter of gasoline, a consideration of the utmost importance in the event this country ever were cut off from world sources of crude oil in the Middle East or Venezuela.

Plants Being Built.

At the present time, two commercial plants for synthesizing oil products from natural gas are under construction by other companies, one near Brownsville, Tex., and another in the Hugoton gas fields in Kansas. They will have a combined capacity of about 14,000 barrels of gasoline daily.

The "fluidized solids" technique, developed by the Standard Oil Development Co., research affiliate of the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), in its laboratory here, is responsible in large measure for the construction of the two plants mentioned.

This process, a refinement of the catalytic cracking process used in the production of high octane gasoline from crude oil, makes use of a finely powdered catalyst which is introduced in the reactors with the synthesis gas, which in turn is generated from natural gas, coal or almost any organic compound.

The technique has one great advantage over the Fischer-Tropsch process invented in Germany before the war. That advantage is in the reduction of the number of reactors necessary. A plant with a capacity of 10,000 barrels daily required only four reactors using the "fluidized solids" technique and only 20,000 square feet of cooling surface. The Fischer-Tropsch process requires 128 reactors employing cooling surfaces of 6,000,000 square feet.

Economies Made Possible

The development has made possible greater economies in the production of gasoline, not only from natural gas but from coal and oil shale, thus assuring this country a supply of liquid fuels for at least 1000 years, in Murphree's opinion. A pilot plant for the synthesizing of gasoline from coal is now under construction at Louisiana, Mo. The Office of Synthetic Fuels of the Department of the Interior is in charge of this plant.

While the cost of producing gasoline from natural gas is less than of producing it from coal, neither process is cheap. The pilot plant here is as high as a 12-story building.

One of the high cost items in the use of natural gas is the enormous volume of oxygen necessary. A 10,000-barrel-a-day synthesis plant requires 75,000,000 cubic feet of oxygen a day. It is to be obtained by liquefying 375,000,000 cubic feet of air at temperatures ranging as low as 315 degrees below zero.

By-products will reduce the cost of the operation, in Murphree's opinion, but the installation cost is still formidable.

SANDWICH SHOP NEAR POLICE HEADQUARTERS ROBBED OF $27

The White Tower Sandwich Shop, 212 South Twelfth boulevard, a stone's throw from Police Headquarters, was held up and robbed of $27 early yesterday, Charles Marquis, 1225 North Eleventh street, a night employe of the shop, told police that a young man entered the shop with his right hand in a coat pocket and said, "I will give you three seconds to give me the money in the register."

Marquis told police he was startled and was slow in complying with the order. He said the man then came around the counter, took the money from the register and escaped on foot.

ROBBER GRABS WRONG BAG

Sam Straiman, owner of a grocery at 1900 North Sarah street, reported to police that a Negro accosted him as he left his store, Saturday night, grappled with him and fled with a canvas bag containing a pistol.

Stratman, who lives at 5891 Washington boulevard, said he had thrust his hand into the bag to get the pistol when the robber grabbed it. Another bag he was carrying, containing $170, was not taken, he said.

Kate O'Hare Cunningham Dies; Socialist Crusader Once Lived Here

Vice Presidential Nominee on Debs Ticket—Served Term for Opposing World War I Draft.

KATE O'HARE CUNNINGHAM Photographed in 1927.

Kate Richards O'Hare Cunningham, Socialist leader who attracted international attention as a crusader for woman suffrage, prison reform and amnesty for political prisoners, when she lived in St. Louis, died Saturday night at her home in Benecia, Calif. She was 70 years old.

In crusading for prison reform, she drew on her personal experience, having served 14 months of a five-year sentence in the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City for violation of the federal espionage act by opposing the draft for World War I.

Mrs. Cunningham, dubbed "Red Kate" by her opponents, was an unsuccessful candidate for the vice-presidential nomination on the Socialist ticket in 1916 and again in 1920. She was the first woman candidate for the United States Senate, having been nominated on the Socialist ticket in Kansas in 1910. Soon afterward she returned to St. Louis.

A speech in Bowman, N.D., in the summer of 1916, led to her conviction in United States district court at Bismarck, N.D., on the espionage charge. She said at that time: "Mothers who raised their sons to be cannon fodder were no better than a farmer's brood sow" and "young men who are foolish enough to enlist are only good enough for German fertilizer." The statements tended to discourage "obedience to military registration," the courts held.

She entered prison at Jefferson City April 15, 1919, following a farewell reception at the Odeon Theater attended by an audience so large that many had to stand in the street. President Wilson commuted her sentence, after labor and other groups petitioned for a pardon, and she was released in May 1920.

Immediately she began to crusade for prison reform, particularly for changes in methods of handling women prisoners. In 1922 she organized the Children's Crusade and accompanied sons and daughters of political prisoners to Washington. For days they and their mothers picketed the White House in a campaign for amnesty.

The crusade finally was abandoned without any promise of amnesty for political prisoners from President Harding. Later, however, cases of many prisoners were reviewed and releases were ordered. Mrs. Cunningham, then Mrs. O'Hare, called the crusade a victory.

In St. Louis, she was editor of a Socialist paper, the National Ripsaw. In 1902 she married Frank P. O'Hare, circulation manager of the paper, and they spent their honeymoon making speeches in the north and east. They were divorced in 1928. Now retired, he lives at 3435 Magnolia avenue.

He recalled today that she was the first woman delegate to an international Socialist convention, in London in 1913. Among fellow delegates were Benito Mussolini and Ramsay MacDonald.

In her writings and speeches, she championed child welfare, woman suffrage, the labor movement and Socialist causes. She took part in demonstrations in eastern cities and in St. Louis became conspicuous as a street speaker. She served on a committee for the relief of the unemployed named by the late Mayor Henry Kiel. In 1913 she was an unsuccessful candidate for the Board of Education here.

Born on a ranch in Ottawa county, Kansas, she attended a college in Nebraska and became a school teacher. She wrote essays, pamphlets and a play on economic and Socialist subjects.

Following her release from prison and the Children's Crusade, she moved to Mena, Ark., where she founded Commonwealth College, an experimental school in liberal arts. Then she moved to California to open a school there.

Her drive for prison reform won her a position as assistant state director of penology in California and she was credited with helping to make San Quentin prison a model penal institution.

"Missouri and the whole country owe her a debt of gratitude," the Missouri Welfare League said in a statement today. "Her fearless disclosures of abuses and cruelties in the women's department of the prison were of great value and helped end an intolerable situation there."

Another episode in her career was her "kidnaping" July 1, 1921. She disappeared from Twin Falls, Idaho, after going there to visit her daughter, Miss Kathleen O'Hare. The next day she reappeared and said she had been kidnaped by 11 men in automobiles, but managed to escape from them near Montello, Nev. She said she was not mistreated and attributed the kidnaping to persons who resented her lecture appearances.

After her divorce from O'Hare in 1928, she married Charles C. Cunningham, engineer and Alabama landowner. Besides her husband and her daughter, Kathleen, who now lives in Los Angeles, she is survived by three sons, Frank and Eugene, of New York, and Victor, of Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be tomorrow in Benicia.

PRISONERS BEAT U.S. DEPUTY AND ESCAPE

Pair Being Taken From St. Louis to West Coast Recaptured.

United States Deputy Marshal James Kearns was beaten today at Salt Lake City, Utah, on a train by two prisoners he and Deputy Marshal Roy Kirgen were taking from St. Louis to Los Angeles to face charges of threatening a mail messenger with a deadly weapon. The prisoners escaped in a stolen automobile, but later were recaptured near Ogden, Utah.

United States Marshal Otto Schoen said he was informed Kearns had been beaten severely. The deputies left St. Louis Saturday afternoon by train with the prisoners, Edson Leroy Piatt, 50 years old, and Patrick Millard Eddy, 25.

The United Press said the prisoners slugged Kearns and jumped from the train at the railroad station in Salt Lake City, after Kirgan stepped from the compartment in which they were traveling to buy cigarettes. The fugitives commandeered an automobile at a red light and fled northward.

At Morgan, Utah, they were stopped at a road block. Piatt was captured there and the driver of the car, whom they forced to accompany them, was released unharmed. Eddy again fled, but was captured a short time later. Both were placed in the Morgan County Jail. They had been handcuffed together when they escaped from the train, but had broken the handcuffs before being captured.

The two were arrested here Dec. 18 shortly after they held up a liquor store at 923 South Vandeventer avenue. When arrested, Piatt told police he had spent 33 years in penitentiaries.

The charges in California grew out of a post office holdup at Venice, near Los Angeles, on Dec. 12. The offense, upon conviction, carries a mandatory prison sentence of 25 years.

Kirgan, who has been a deputy marshal for seven years, lives at 3834 Chippewa street. Kearns, who lives at 5528 Pershing avenue, has been a deputy for six years.

WOMAN IS KILLED, 2 OTHERS HURT IN AUTO-TRUCK CRASH

Pair at Scene of Minor Collision Are Struck by Machine — One Is Injured Fatally.

Mrs. Helen Smith, 124 West Koein avenue, was killed early today when an automobile driven by her husband, Oscar, collided with a truck on Illinois Route 13, north of Marissa. She was 44 years old.

Smith, an a utomobile repairman, suffered internal injuries, and the truck driver, Blond Edgin, Henderson, Ky., suffered fractured ribs. Both are in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville.

Mrs. Carrie Erwin, Negro, 4045A Cook avenue, was killed, and Mrs. Bernice Goolsby, Negro, 1327 Carr street, seriously injured when they were struck by an automobile at Cook and Sarah street late Saturday. The women were in a crowd that had gathered at the scene of a minor collision.

The driver, Walter Wooten, Negro, 4229E Finney avenue, was booked suspected of careless driving, felonious wounding and driving while intoxicated.

Mrs. Erwin was 48 years old. Mrs. Goolsby, 27, is in Homer G. Phillips Hospital, with fractures of the left arm and leg and a head injury.

Montague Shannon, a salesman, 5934 Plymouth avenue, suffered a fractured pelvis yesterday when the automobile he was driving was struck by a machine driven by Robert C. Evans, 19, a messenger, at Broadway and Utah street. Shannon was taken to City Hospital. Evans told police he lost control when the wheels of his automobile caught in the streetcar tracks.

Tony Yanones, a taxicab driver, was injured seriously last night when he was struck by an automobile in the 2600 block of St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. The driver did not stop. Yanones, who lives at 2505 North Thirty-eighth street, East St. Louis, is in Christian Welfare Hospital.

MAN SHOT IN HEAD IN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE FROM POLICEMAN

Dan Miller, Negro ex-convict, was in serious condition at Homer G. Phillips Hospital today with a bullet wound in the head suffered early yesterday when he was shot by Patrolman Nathan Jordan.

Jordan reported he had arrested Miller for beating his wife, Geraldine, on the street and had accompanied the Millers to their home at 922A North Fifteenth street to permit the woman to replace torn clothing.

At the home, the officer said, Miller struck him and, in the ensuing scuffle, Miller fled. Jordan caught him on Cole street, near Fifteenth, but, after another fight, Miller again escaped. The officer said he shouted a warning to halt and then fired. Miller collapsed in the 900 block of North Fourteenth street.

JUDGES CONSIDER PLEA FOR AUDIT OF SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Dougherty's Lawyer Opposes Writ for Scrutiny of Records, Property Turned In by Police.

The application of the city requesting authorization for Comptroller Louis Nolte's staff to audit the books and records of accounts of Sheriff John F. Dougherty, including records of property turned over to the sheriff by police, was taken under advisement today by the three judges of the circuit court for criminal causes.

The application was filed by Associate City Counselor John P. McCammon in the court of Circuit Judge James F. Nangle, who heard brief arguments by Paul Dillon, the sheriff's attorney, as to why the application should not be granted. The application asks also that the sheriff be directed to allow the audit to be made.

Dillon said "the comptroller has made no examination of these records in the last 20 years because the property is in the custody of the court." He then explained the method of disposing of property, including weapons, held as evidence by the sheriff, indicating that property not claimed after a case has been disposed of is sold and the proceeds turned over to the city by the sheriff.

"This transaction," he said, "is the only proper matter for the comptroller to examine. The last time any money was turned over, it amounted only to $5 or $6."

Held for Court.

Dillon also said that Deputy Sheriff Thomas H. Quinn was in charge of property in the sheriff's office and that he held it for the court.

Judge Nangle broke in then to say: "I want to make this clear. I don't know how the judges will rule on this application, but I assure you we'll allow no one to handle the physical property. If we decide to permit the city to examine the sheriff's books, that is all they'll be allowed to do."

McCammon cited legal authority for the audit and said: "In order for us to know what proceeds are coming to the city, we ask, at least, that the sheriff show us the property. Fickeissen (George Fickeissen, administrative assistant to Nolte who will make the audit) has no desire to handle the property, but he does want to see if property on record is actually held in the sheriff's custody." Dillon said, "There's no point in looking at what's there now.

Quinn Testifies.

Dillon then placed Quinn on the stand. Quinn testified that orders made by the judges in 1945, 1946 and 1947 for disposition of property held as evidence were carried out. "We still have some of the property obtained in 1946 and 1947," he said. "There's a lot of money in the office, too. The weapons were destroyed. I gave some to an army officer during the war, disposed of some by putting them in a sack and throwing it in the river and gave some to the Scullin Steel Co. for scrap."

In addition to Judge Nangle, circuit judges who will decide the city's application are Michael J. Scott and William S. Connor.

Interest in the money, property and weapons held by the sheriff as evidence was aroused after two reporters of the St. Louis Star-Times bought revolvers which had been evidence in old court cases from Robert J. Anderson, then gun permit deputy for Dougherty. Anderson was arrested and subsequently resigned. Circuit Attorney James W. Griffin announced there would be a grand jury investigation of the sale of the weapons.

The audit will cover the entire period of the incumbency of Dougherty, or since Jan. 1, 1945, and will include not only weapons, but all other property confiscated for evidence.

Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell has agreed to make available for the audit all the vouchers for property turned over to the sheriff as evidence in criminal proceedings.

INTERNATIONAL SHOE NET $4.11 A SHARE LAST YEAR

International Shoe Co. reported net profits for the year ended Nov. 30 of $14,002,017, equivalent to $4.11 a share, compared with $5,448,781 or $1.62 a share in the preceding fiscal year. The annual dividend rate was increased from $1.80 a share to $2.40 on April 1 and again increased to $3 on Jan. 1. The latter rate is return to highest on present stock.

The company reported value of all products in 1947 amounted to $304,357,684, compared with $202,458,992 in the preceding year. Of 1947 total $91,139,492 represented values of products made by company to go into its own shoes.

Provision for 1947 Federal taxes amounted to $8,591,763.

The company made 54,000,000 pairs of shoes—a gain of 14 per cent over 1946.

The company stated: "In the face of wide swings in the raw-material markets, our company held its shoe prices virtually unchanged from those established in November 1946. Continuing increases in the cost of raw materials, however, have made necessary a 10 to 12½ per cent increase in prices of lines for the spring of 1948."

COTTON UP 35C TO 85C

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Cotton futures turned irregular in slow dealings today. Mill buying and short covering accounted for early gains, but the market subsequently eased on scattered profit taking and hedging.

England again entered the market for an undisclosed amount of cotton for February-March shipment with prices based on March futures.

The market rallied sharply in the final hour on a flurry of mill buying and short covering.

STOCK MARKET COLD TO BUDGET MESSAGE

Aircrafts Alone See Help — Doubts Regarding Tax Relief Eases Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—The President's budget message left the stock market rather cold today, with the exception of aircrafts, and many leading issues retreated to lower ground without the application of much pressure.

Slowdowns were frequently before and after the White House epistle was released. Oils enjoyed an early runup, then were stalled by profit cashing. Trends hardened here and there in the final hour as Wall Street conjectured that the Government's program might encounter considerable congressional opposition. While assorted pivotals emerged in the plus column, declines of fractions to a point or so ruled at the close.

Sales of 1,000,000 shares compared with 980,000 last Friday.

Gulf Oil was a belated weak spot on report the company would offer additional stock to stockholders. The issue dropped as much as 7 points and ended down 6½ at 66½. Ahead were Follansbee Steel, Caterpillar Tractor, American Woolen, Standard Oil of Ohio, Eastern Air Lines, United States Gypsum and Nickel Plate Railroad.

Of 981 issues traded 531 closed lower, 242 higher and 208 unchanged.

Trimming of Accounts.

Doubts regarding tax relief, in the light of the huge budget, caused the trimming of accounts. Others stood aside pending more light on possible new anti-inflation measures, European relief, business and disturbing foreign affairs. A little reinvestment buying was helpful but, on the whole, ineffective.

Increased spending for military planes, as proposed by the Administration, buoyed the aviations although most finished under the day's best. Highs for the past year were touched by Grumman, Boeing and United Aircraft. In front were Republic Aviation, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Lockheed and Consolidated Vultee.

In the tailing division most of the time were United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Illinois Central, Pacific Western Oil, Texas Pacific Land Trust, Seaboard Oil, Gulf Oil, Chrysler, General Motors.

Trend on the Curb.

Supported in the curb at times were Solar Aircraft, Ryan Consolidated Petroleum, Glenmore Distilleries, Northrop Aircraft and United Aircraft Products. Hesitant at times were Cities Service, Niles-Bement, Technicolor and International Petroleum.

On the constructive side of the market also was the report of the Commerce Department disclosing that personal incomes of individuals in the United States continued to expand during November, reaching an annual rate of $204,900,000,000. This compared with $204,400,000,000 in October and $188,400,000,000 for November, 1946.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Selected railroad obligations pushed forward in today's bond market although the movement was not widespread and considerable irregularity prevailed.

Holding gains ranging to 2 points, near the start of the final hour, were Chicago & Eastern Illinois incomes, Terre Haute & South Eastern income 2¾-4½s, Lackawanna 4s, Katy 5s, Northern Pacific 3s and Western Union 5s of '60.

Trading in United States Government and in foreign issues was dull.

Rock Island 4s of '88 that touched a new high in early dealings, finished off a half point at 98¾.

Chicago Great Western 4s held their gain and were up 2½ at 85. Pennsylvania Railroad general 4½s were off ⅝ at 102⅝, while New Haven 4s of 2007 were up ½ at 67.

Start a little EARLIER when there's snow and ice

On slippery days stalled automobiles cause frequent tie-ups in traffic. That's why it's a good idea to board an earlier streetcar or bus when the weather is bad. Then you'll be sure to get to work on time.

It's true that even in the worst winter weather, Public Service streetcars and buses run with practically normal service. Efficient storm-fighting crews with modern equipment see to that. But, of course, for safety's sake, all traffic moves at a somewhat slower pace when travel conditions are bad.

So, start a little earlier when there's snow and ice. Ride Public Service streetcars and buses for a safer, more comfortable trip.

U.S. AGENCY BUYER OF FLOUR; WHEAT SPURTS

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP) — Substantial gains were scored by wheat on the Board of Trade today following advices from the Southwest stating the Government had re-entered the flour market. Old crop corn contracts also were higher, but the December delivery lagged.

The bread cereal advanced more than 8 cents at times, although holding under seasonal highs. The May contract went above $3. Smaller upturns in corn were sufficient to send all deliveries except December to new seasonal peaks. Lard was strong but soybeans encountered selling.

Wheat closed 5@6⅝ cents higher, May $3.04½@3.05; corn was ½c lower to 3¾c higher, May $2.65⅛@¼; oats were unchanged to 1¼c higher, May $1.25¼@⅜, and soybeans were unchanged to 5 cents higher, March $4.30@4.34.

Trade reports from Kansas City said the Production and Marketing Administration had re-entered the flour market, paying $6.50 for 80 per cent extraction and $6.60 for 72 per cent extraction flour delivered at Gulf of Mexico ports. These prices were unchanged from previous buying levels.

The Weather Bureau forecast temperatures ranging down to five degrees below zero in western Nebraska and from 10 to 15 above zero in Kansas. Analysts pointed out that, unless there is some snow covering for late planted grain, temperatures below zero would do considerable damage.

Lard again was higher in the early trading. Brokers said the upturn in this commodity reflected advancing tallow prices, as well as a good demand for loose lard.

CASH CORN AND OATS SELL AT RECORD PRICES HERE

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 12—In the cash grain market today 51 cars of wheat were received, 2 sold; No. 2 red winter, $3.16@3.17. Bombers, With Fifth Straight Victory, Close In on Leading Stags

Loeffler's Men Hurdle Baltimore

By Bob Broeg

Lyrics won't be written, and the victory hardly would inspire anyone to put it to music, but to the persons most concerned—Coach Ken Loeffler and his players—the Bombers' 69-to-54 triumph over Baltimore last night at The Arena was much more than just a ho-hum basketball game.

Some of the 3740 spectators might have been disappointed at the lack of excitement usually present in the St. Louis professionals' games, and the less enthusiastic might even have been bored, particularly when the Bombers took a commanding lead midway in the first quarter and kept the cushioned advantage thereafter.

But the coach and players of the home team were pleased, and they wore wide smiles as proof positive that in league play, where every victory and every defeat look alike in the standings, it's the won-and-lost column that counts. The thrills and chills must be secondary, if at all.

Five Straight Victories.

The triumph meant something, all right. It was the Bombers' fifth straight and boosted them over beaten Baltimore into second place of the Western Division of the Basketball Association of America. Front-running Chicago, still to be met six times, including four games here, is just a length and one-half ahead.

So Loeffler and his athletes thoroughly enjoyed the chance to win without pressure, to have fun and not to have to come from behind. On the bench the coach lounged back, puffed on a cigarette and, when he made lineup changes, the oft-critical professor of the round ball sport even led the applause for the men he was withdrawing from the floor.

As for the Bombers' dressing room afterward, it strongly resembled the atmosphere of a baseball clubhouse following a nice, soft 8-to-1 game in the bag all the way. Grinning and relaxed, the players were joking and telling one another where they'd meet for that post-game snack. And as usual when a team is heady with victory, theer was a complaint or two about the size of attendance.

Strong Defensive Game.

The game itself demonstrated again that defensively the Bombers rank near or at the top of the B.A.A. With natural abilities augmented by capable direction and close inspection of movies of an earlier defeat inflicted by Baltimore, the Bombers stopped pitchins to pivot men and jammed the middle, the Bullets' favorite avenue of attack. And the visitors, who had won two of four previous contests with St. Louis, weren't equal to the distance or angles from which they were forced to take most of their shots.

So, by holding Baltimore to 18 field goals, just a trifle more than one every three of the 48 minutes, the Bombers reduced the lethal effect of the Bullets to B-B pellets.

Therefore, the St. Louis' cross-screening offense was more than adequate as the Bombers led by 10 points at the end of the first quarter, 15 at half-time and 11 after three period. Only in that third quarter, normally their best, were Loeffler's men cold, making only three baskets and 11 points. And there, incidentally, was where the defensive stoutness came in handy, for in St. Louis' worst 12-minute period Baltimore whittled off only four points of the lead.

BOMBER NOTES.

With Loeffler again using his reserves liberally, Red Rocha and Don Putman paced the scoring with 14 and 12 points. For the Bullets, broad-shouldered Paul Hoffman, Purdue's young bull in a china shop, pile-drived his way to 12, too.

New York's Knickerbockers, Eastern Division leaders, will make their first appearance at The Arena Thursday night. The Knicks, the only team the Bombers haven't defeated this season, took two games from St. Louis at New York.

Normally a sharp team at the foul-line, Baltimore missed 15 of 33 free throws. The Bombers weren't hitting 'em, either, for they blew 11 of 28.

John Logan was assessed a technical foul once because he kicked the ball the length of the floor, more in disgust at himself than at an official's call of traveling or too many steps. And Bob Doll drew a reprimand from one referee (who subsequently was over-ruled by the other), when he stood at the edge of the free-throw ring, facing and staring at a visitor about to tak a foul shot. The Baltimore player, Irwin Rothenberg, complained about "evil eye"—then missed. It's a free country, ain't it?

In a Missouri-Illinois League preliminary the Meramec Caverns defeated the Granite City Fleishmans, 61 to 58.

They Meet Tonight at the Auditorium

Pep Big Favorite Over McAllister

Champion Here Tonight to Fight Baltimore Veteran Who Held Him to a Draw.

By W. J. McGoogan

Willie Pep, featherweight boxing champion of the world, intent on his fight-a-week program by which he is beating back into perfect condition for a forthcoming title defense, takes on Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore Negro in a 10-round bout at the Auditorium tonight. It is the feature of a five-bout card, the first contest starting a 8:30 o'clock.

In two previous meetings with McAllister, Pep was held to a draw the first time, then scored a knockout over Jimmy in Madison Square Garden.

McAllister has yet to gain a victory in St. Louis, although he has fought some good fights. He was knocked out by Phil Terranova and lost two decisions to Charley Riley, one in 10 rounds, another in 12.

It is hardly likely thata Jimmy will see his string of losses here stopped tonight, although Pep may not be the Pep he was before suffering severe injuries in an airplane crash about a year ago.

Pep Likes Lots of Work.

Since he recovered sufficiently to resume boxing, Pep has won some dozen bouts and he is scheduled to take on Joey Angelo in Boston next Monday night. That will make five contests in as many weeks.

That program sounds like the champion is overdoing it but his manager, Lou Viscusi, insists that Willie needs that amount of work to keep fit.

"Pep is a jittery sort of fellow and is only happy when he's either preparing for a fight or engaging in one," said Viscusi. "I know with most boxers the number of fights Pep has would be too much, but not for him. He thrives on it."

St. Louis fans have been hoping for more than a year to see Pep in action in defense of his title here. At first it was thought Phil Terranova might be his opponent, now it is Charley Riley, No. 1 challenger according to the National Boxing Association, who may make the grade.

Viscusi shrugged his shoulders when asked about the possibility of Pep boxing Riley here in a title match and said he'd have to wait and see what kind of an offer he gets.

Promoter Hans Bernstein has offered Pep $25,000 to defend his championship against Riley, but Viscusi intimated that was not enough to interest Willie, who has been ordered to defend his championship by Feb. 22.

It was announced last week that Humberto Sierra, a Cuban, had been signed for the match, but Viscusi said it had not been closed as yet.

All of this is dependent, of course, on Pep beating McAllister, and Willie believes he'll attend to that matter without too much difficulty even though McAllister is the only boxer to hold the champions to draw in his long career covering 121 bouts. Pep lost once, to Sammy Angott, a lightweight.

Gene Spencer, Chicago lightweight, who appeared here once before in a match at the Arena against Joey Pirrone, losing a 10-round decision, opposes Charley Baxter, Cincinnati, in the eight-round secondary feature.

Three six-round contests complete the card. In one Lou Moeckel, St. Louis, opposes Oliver Cobbins, Akron, O. Pat Murphy, Racine, Wis., takes on Capus Benton, St. Louis, in another, while in the third Jesse Turner and Ward Jenkins mix.

Auditorium Program

FINAL MATCH—Gene Spencer, 132¼, Chicago, vs. Charley Baxter, 132¾, Cincinnati. Eight rounds.

FEATURE MATCH—Willie Pep, 128¾, Hartford, Conn., world featherweight champion, vs. Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore, 127¼. Ten rounds.

PRELIMINARIES—Lou Moeckel, 136, St. Louis, vs. Oliver Cobbins, 132, Akron, O., six rounds; Pat Murphy, 129¾, Racine, Wis., vs. Capus Benton 132¼, Cincinnati, six rounds; Jesse Turner, 143, St. Louis, vs. Ward Jenkins, 143½, San Francisco, six rounds.

Mangrum's 10-Under Par 205 Gives Him $2533 First Prize In 54-Hole Bing Crosby Meet

DEL MONTE, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, the man with the nifty golf swing, competitive spirit and sfell personality today pocketed $2533 and the professional championship in the 1948 Bing Crosby tournament, one of the most interesting events of them all.

The Texas-born shotmaker, now playing out of Los Angeles, uncorked the brand of golf that bagged him the 1946 United States open title, to win first prize money in the 54-hole event.

Unique in its progress, the tournament was played over three different courses here on successive days. Mangrum clubbed each one into submission, chalking up ten under par for the three rounds, and a total of 205. He shot the par 72 Cypress Point course in 70; the par 71 Monterey Peninsula layout in 67 and the famed par 72 Pebble Beach test in 68.

The combined display of links skill, with yesterday's garrison finish as the clincher, put Mangrum five strokes ahead of the field.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B. C., grabbed the second spot with 210. It was worth $1550 to the Canadian. Third place among his fellow professionals, but a bigger money winner than Leonard because he was part of the winning pro-amateur combination, was Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa. Hogan's medal score was 211, but he teamed with Johnny Dawson of Los Angeles, to win the pro-amateur best ball competition with a low of 197.

Pressing Hogan but a stroke behind to take fourth position money, was Bobby Locke, knicker-wearing invader from Johannesburg, South Africa. Locke, whose shots usually split the middle and made him second high money winner in United States tournaments last year, wandered off the reservation a couple of times yesterday, but still finished with 212. It was worth $1233.

The first four money winners compiled rounds as follows: Mangrum, 70-67-68; Leonard, 71-67-72; Hogan, 72-69-70 and Locke, 73-69-70.

The rest of the field didn't even come close, four strokes separating fourth place Locke and the next in line. Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., top money getter in 1947, trailed with a weak 217, a $225 effort. United States open champion Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., who started the last round with 146 and a chance to land fairly well up, sprayed his last round shots and failed to turn in a final card.

National PGA title holder Jim Ferrier of San Francisco had a last round blow-up and posted a 54-hole total of 219, a stroke worse than Martin Pose, who paced two fellow Argentinians with his 218. The other South Americans, Enrique Bertolino and Roberto De Vicenzo, carded 220 and 224, respectively. Norman Von Nida of Sydney, Australia, was out of the money at 221, after being the big winner in British tournaments last year.

Mangrum and Bob Simmers of Los Angeles were second in the pro-amateur with 199 and Leonard, coupled with T. Suffern Tailer, Phoenix, Arizona, took third with 200.

Dawson, incidently, paced the simon-pures by finishing with a four under par 68 yesterday. He had previous rounds of 79-72 for a total of 219. Other amateurs who played out every hole, trailed as follows: Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, 223; Lou Jennings, Portland, Oregon, 226; Bob Gardner, Los Angeles, 231 and Reg Taylor, Johannesburg, 234.

Most of the touring professionals headed today for Richmond, Calif., and the $10,000 tournament that will be played over 72 holes starting Thursday.

Marquez Stops Serrano.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 12 (UP)—After seven rounds of thrilling toe-to-toe slugging, Hector Marquez, 116, Juarez, last night scored a technical knockout over Frank Serrano, 115, also of Juarez. Referee Jack Lahman stopped the fight at the end of the seventh because of a severely bleeding cut over Serrano's left eye.

Collinsville Gets Top Ranking in Illinois Baskets

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 12 (UP)—Collinsville climbed to the top perch in the weekly United Press rating of downstate prep basketball teams today as the "top 15" took one of the roughest shake-ups of the season.

The one-two positions were merely reversed, with Collinsville changing places with Pekin, leader in the last two ratings. But there were more drastic changes farther down the line.

La Grange, for example, tumbled from third to eighth, and Decatur slipped from tenth to fifteenth. Canton and Dundee were pushed clear out of the first 15 and replaced by Galesburg and Glenbard.

Salem advanced from eighth to third on the basis of impressive wins over Fairfield and Mount Vernon, and Robinson climbed from ninth to fifth.

Pekin's loss of the top spot was almost inevitable after it dropped a surprise decision to Streator last Friday, 52 to 51. The Chinks appeared to have cooled off somewhat since the holidays—during which they were idle—but they showed Peoria Manual Saturday night that they're not exactly cold.

Collinsville's 42 to 33 win at Edwardsville Saturday night clinched the top spot for Virgil Fletcher's club. The win gave the Kahoks a record of 11 straight this season.

The ratings: Collinsville (11-0); Pekin (8-1); Salem (15-1); Paris (14-1); Robinson (12-1); Lawrenceville (8-2); East Rockford (11-0); La Grange (11-0); Pickneyville (9-1); Galesburg (9-1); Glenbard (12-1); Pana (10-2); Waukegan (8-1); Edwardsville (11-2); Decatur (8-3).

Gonzales Wins From Larned in Net Final; Doris Hart Triumphs

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 12 (UP)—Richard Alonzo (Pancho) Gonzales, 19-year-old Mexican star from Los Angeles, in a thrilling three-set comeback here yesterday upset Gardner Larned of Chicago for the Dixie Tennis tournament championship.

Gonzales, ranked fourth in the tourney, dropped the first two sets to the Rollins College star, 2-6, 3-6, then captured the next three, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2, for the title.

Doris Hart of Miami retained her title as women's singles champion by downing Magda Rurac of Romania, 6-1, 6-3.

Two St. Louisans Elected Central States Officers

QUINCY, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP)—Steps to expand amateur rowing in the Midwest after a wartime lapse were taken yesterday at a meeting of the Central States Amateur Rowing Association.

The conference was attended by delegates from Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Ecorse, Mich., Wyandotte, Mich., and Springfield, Ill.

The group awarded Chicago its 1948 regatta, setting the event for Aug. 14 and 15 at the Lincoln Park lagoon.

Howard Jackson of Detroit was elected president of the Association. Gus Petri of St. Louis was named vice president, Harold Winkelman of St. Louis secretary, and Elmer Mutz of Quincy treasurer.

Mutz said rowing clubs at Peoria, Ill., Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., were resuming activity this year; the Springfield, (Ill.) club has been reorganized and a new group planned in St. Louis. He said bylaws of the organization were being revamped to add events to the regatta program.

Art Tokle Is Winner In Ski Jump Event

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N.Y., Jan. 12 (AP)—Norwegians won most of the prizes in the Franklin D. Roosevelt-Harold Nelson memorial ski jump here yesterday.

Art Tokle, brother of the late Torger Tokle, captured the class A event and also the jumpoff for the Roosevelt trophy. He cleared 125 and 128 feet for 202.1 points to defeat Merrill Barber of Brattleboro, Vt., in the A competition.

Ole Lie of Skreia, Norway, won the class B championship with jumps of 115 and 118 feet for 193.5 points. Vincent Kasky of Greenfield, Mass., was second with 188.6.

The veterans' event went to Karl Tokle, the elder of the famous Norwegian ski-jumping brothers, with leaps of 110 and 114 feet for 180.2 points.

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—New injuries, tough competition ahead and a broken winning streak behind failed to dim the spirits of the St. Louis University basketball team today as it arrived to show its stuff in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Long Island University, easily as strong as it was last year when it trimmed the Billikens in their first visit to the Garden, is the next formidable foe. But the players' conviction was that no team has been or will be as difficult as were the Oklahoma Aggies.

The chess-playing style of Henry Iba's athletes who ended the Billikens' undefeated string at seven games Saturday night, demonstrated once again that A. & M. constitutes a peculiar shoal on which many great basketball teams are likely to run aground.

Wound That Can Heal.

Kentucky's team of a year ago, generally rated first or second in the country at the end of the season, was stopped by the Aggies 37-31. So national prominence is not necessarily marred by failing to defeat the Aggies.

Now the Bills return to the type of opposition most favorable to their training, a fast breaking game with both teams more intent upon scoring than playing keep-away. It's the spectacular game that has made basketball more than a barnyard pastime — an entertainment that three times a week draws around 18,000 fans on each occasion to the Garden.

The main regret over not having beaten the Aggies in St. Louis' first Missouri Valley Conference game of the season was that it gave Oklahoma an extremely important advantage in the Conference race. Triumph in the Billiken backyard set up the Aggies favorably for another victory over the Bills at Stillwater. In the battle for the championship between these two top contenders, such a double victory could easily mean the title.

That would not be so good, because among the top aims of the St. Louis team is a second straight Valley title, captured for the first time last year by defeating the Aggies twice as well as every other Conference opponent except Creighton. The Bluejays, then coached by Eddie Hickey, managed a victory at Omaha.

Hickey believes his St. Louis team this year, however, may square the season account when it faces the Aggies again next month. "I don't think they will be any tougher than they were at St. Louis and I think we can show improvement."

ST. LOUIS	0	1	.000	30	33
Tulsa	0	1	.000	25	40

Postmortems Still in Order.

Among the major faults Hickey found in the Aggie game was the fact that St. Louis moving its patterns didn't pass the ball around enough to properly set up the plays. Ed Macauley's reluctance to take more shots than he did—shots that, at Macauley's scoring rate, might easily have brought victory—were also a deciding factor, Hickey said.

As most big-time coaches know, however, and as Hickey is aware it takes luck to finish on top in basketball these days. He was not perturbed too much by the defeat even though he had been shooting for an undefeated march through the big games that resume in St. Louis Saturday night against Notre Dame.

"There was no law against trying, anyhow," he grinned.

There were 12 players on the Billiken traveling squad but only 10 were hale and hearty after the hard weekend. Bob Schmidt joined the injured list with a bruised thigh, suffered when he tried to blast his way through an opponent in the Aggie game. Lehman, who had hurt his ankle in a practice drill Friday, was limping along with Schmidt.

Others making the trip were Macauley, D. C. Wilcutt, Marv Schatsmann, John Cordia, Henry Raymonds, Joe Ossola, Jack Wrape, Joe Schmidt, Dan Miller and Ray Obie. The squad will work out at the Armory this afternoon and at the Garden tomorrow morning.

Charley Riley In New York Debut Tonight

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 — New York boxing fans who have been hearing quite a lot about the hard-punching Negro from St. Louis, Charley Riley, get their first chance to see him in action tonight. The No. 1 challenger for Willie Pep's featherweight championship invades the East and picks a tough foe for his Brooklyn debut when he faces Maxie Shapiro, a lightweight.

Maxie is tough enough in his own weight class but when he goes to work against a lighter man he should be at his very best.

New York fans are wondering why the Riley camp made this sort of match in so important a bout. But, if the St. Louis boy wins decisively the result would count very heavily in his favor. They are scheduled to go 10 rounds or less.

15-Year-Old Girl Leads United States Ski Team in Meet

GRINDELWALD, Swizerland, Jan. 12 (UP)—The baby of the United States women's Olympic ski team, 15-year-old Andrea Mead of Rutland, Vt., tied for fourth in the giant Slalom for the top American performance yesterday in the finale of the Swiss ladies' ski club contests.

The event ended in a first place tie between Georgette Thioliere of France and Celina Seghi of Italy, both of whom were clocked in 2 minutes, 10 seconds. Sweden's May Nilsson was third in 2:11.3.

Tied with Miss Mead for fourth with 2:18 was Francoise Gignoux of France. In seventh place was Rebecca Cremer of LaCrosse, Wis., in 2:20.6, and other Americans to compete were Gretchen Frazer of Vancouver, Wash., ninth, 2:25.2; Dodie Post of Reno, Nev., eleventh, 2:26.3, and Ann Winn of Gannett, Ida., sixteenth, 2:25.3.

4 Badminton Titles Gained By St. Louisans

Badminton players from St. Louis carried off four titles and gained a second in the Indiana State Open tournament at Lafayette, Ind., yesterday. The matches were played in the Purdue University field house.

In the men's singles final, Dick Casey of St. Louis defeated W. Russell Smith, a fellow-townsman, 16-10, 18-16.

Then, in the women's singles, Mrs. W. Russell Smith won from Mrs. Wilma Shortz, Chicago, 9-11, 11-4, 11-9.

Ken Aderholt and H. Herpel Perkins, both of St. Louis, won the men's doubles competition from Dave Ponitch and William Lasayette, Chicago, 15-10, 15-13.

In the women's doubles, Mrs. W. Russell Smith and Thelma Burdick, Chicago, defeated the Misses Browne and D'Swartis, Chicago, 15-10, 15-11.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell Smith lost to Joe Tiberi and Thelma Burdick, Chicago, in the mixed doubles, 15-10, 15-11.

U.S. Olympia Rowing Tryouts on Schuklkill

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP) — The Schuylkill river in Philadelphia will be scene of the United States rowing tryouts for the Olympic games.

The site was chosen by the United States Olympic rowing committee yesterday over efforts of the Naval Academy to have the event staged at Princeton, N. J.

Two Philadelphians were named to head teams participating in the international contests at Henley, England, next July.

Jack Kelly, Olympic champion in 1920 and 1924, was named coach of the skullers. John J. Carlin, former commodore of the Schuylkill navy, was named manager of the rowing squad.

Babe Ruth Re-enters Hospital for Checkup

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Babe Ruth is in the hospital again for a checkup on the throat ailment that has been bothering him for several months.

Mrs. Ruth said it was just a routine matter and that the Babe would be out "in three or four days."

The former home run king, who underwent a throat operation last winter, entered the Neurogical Institute Saturday.

Fists Fly as Capitals Rout Flyers, 10-5

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Indianapolis Capitals doubled the score on the St. Louis Flyers in a fast and rough American Hockey League game here last night, 10 to 5, before 9097 fans.

Indianapolis jumped off to a two-goal lead on shots by Nelson Podolsky and Gerry Couture late in the opening period, but the Flyers came back the last two minutes of the same stanza and tied it up. Eddie Olson and Don Grosso found the net for St. Louis.

Hugh Millar of the Capitals and Billy McComb of the Flyers began throwing punches at each other two minutes before the first period ended and it was all the officials could do to pry them apart. Both drew five-minute terms in the penalty box.

St. Louis took the lead after a minute of play in the second frame, Paul Gladu rapping in a rebound, but Indianapolis tied it four minutes later on a shot by Calum Mackay. From then on the Caps took charge, getting three more counters in the second period and four in the third.

Buffalo Goes Into Lead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP)—The Buffalo Bisons and Pittsburgh Hornets, battling for the American Hockey League's Western Division lead, took time out today to envy the high-scoring Providence Reds, who are a country-mile in front of their nearest rivals in the Eastern race.

Buffalo defeated the Philadelphia Rockets, 4 to 0, last night and took undisputed first place when the New Haven Ramblers beat Pittsburgh, 4 to 3.

Carl Liscombe, the league's leading scorer, got two goals and two assists to lead Providence to a 7 to 4 victory over the Springfield Indians. The triumph kept the Reds 12 points ahead of the New Haven Ramblers.

Allen Seeking 'Cheap Publicity' Kansas State Official Charges

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 12 (AP)—The inquiry of Basketball Coach Phog Allen of the University of Kansas into the eligibility of Clarence Brannum, star Kansas State College center, today drew charges of "cheap publicity" from Thurlo McCrady, K-State athletic director.

Dr. Allen disclosed Saturday night he had written letters to Jack Gardner, Kansas State basketball coach, and McCrady in which he asked "How Brannum could have played in the National AAU tournament at Denver last March and still be eligible for Big Six competition this season."

McCrady countered from Manhattan, Kan., that last spring Dr. H. H. King, faculty athletic representative, thoroughly checked the case involving Brannum's participation in the Denver tournament and found it violated Big Six rules in no way.

"There never has been any question in our minds about Brannum's eligibility," McCrady said. "If there is any question we want to take the matter before recognized authority.

"It seems to be a tradition with Allen to put blasts in the papers from time to time. It's just a case of cheap personal publicity on the part of Allen."

Allen said that his first letter, directed to Gardner, was answered by McCrady who said Brannum was eligible.

"But he didn't say how Brannum was eligible and that's the information I sought in my second letter," Allen said.

"In my letter to Gardner, I said that since there were two flagrant violations of the eligibility rule on the Kansas State football team last fall I was wondering if the same thing was going on in basketball," Allen said.

Allen contended that Brannum had to withdraw from school to play in the AAU tournament, and that if he did withdraw he was playing on 1945-1946 eligibility "which he used up before leaving Kansas State last winter."

Schumachers and Sts. Mary-Joseph Clinch Muny Soccer Group Titles

Trinity Set Back By Leos

Two league championships were clinched and two title contenders made important progress as Municipal Soccer Association teams moved forward in their weekly round of games in the public parks yesterday. Schumachers, runners up last season for the western championship in National Junior title tourney, eliminated their closest rival, Hoppes, with a 2-0 victory. It was Schumachers' third victory over the Hoppes this season. They are semifinalists in the local division of the National Junior Competition.

The threat of hustling St. Stephen team was successfully met by SS. Mary and Joseph eleven in their game at Marquette Park. The final whistle found SS. Mary and Joseph winners, 4 to 1, and champions of the South No. 1 group of the Catholic Youth Council's senior category. Although they were early knocked out of the National Amateur tournament by Holy Trinity, SS. Mary and Joseph is rated a strong contender for the Municipal title.

Sharpening up for their National Open Cup game of next Sunday against the Steamfitters, the snappy Southern team ran up a 4-1 score in defeating Nooters in the Senior Open group of the Muny. Leaders in this group, the Mike Brehenys, snapped out of their recent depression to whip the weaker Wellstons, 2-0.

Joe Lyons had a big scoring day as St. Teresa was held to a draw by league-leading Holy Rosary. Joe scored one point in each goal, one for his own team and another for Rosary, accidentally nudging a corner kick with his head, deflecting the ball past Goalie Werner.

Holy Trinity, which has reached the semifinal round of the National Amateur tourney, was unexpectedly jolted by the Leo Club, 2-0. The latter club had not previously won a game.

Wedemeyer Scores All 13 Points as His Grid Team Ties

HONOLULU, Jan. 12 (UP)—Hula-hipped Herman Wedemeyer, in his final appearance before entering professional football ranks, today sparked his Pacific Coast All-Stars to a 13 to 13 tie with the Leilehua team by scoring two touchdowns and kicking an extra point.

A capacity crowd of 25,000 jamming Honolulu Stadium for the nation's final football game of the season, saw the St. Mary's College flash live up to his reputation as Hawaii's favorite star. He scored one touchdown in the third period on a twisting 64-yard runback with an intercepted pass.

Wedemeyer plunged from the one-yard line in the first period after engineering a 66-yard drive.

The Leilehuas scored in the second and fourth periods, but their final try for point—which would have given them the game—went wide.

Wedemeyer will play next season for the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference.

Skiier Disqualified After Twice Beating Torger Tokle's Mark

BELOIT, Wis., Jan. 12 (UP)—Clarence Hill of Ishpeming, Mich., soared past the big hill ski jump record of the late Torger Tokle twice yesterday but was disqualified by falls on both jumps.

Ellsworth Mitchell, also of Ishpeming, compiled 147 points on jumps of 201 feet and 179 feet to win the Class A division of the annual meet.

A crowd of 9000 saw Hill leap 216 and 217 feet in his two tries and lose his footing each time. Tokle's record is 212 feet.

Oscar Seberson, Eau Claire, Wis., took the Class B crown with jumps of 201 and 182 feet, and Wilbert Rasmussen, Ishpeming, topped the Class C jumpers with 179 and 161 feet.

The senior division title went to Martin Wingness, Chicago, with jumps of 181 and 166 feet.

DEAN CROMWELL (left) who has coached University of Southern California's great track teams for 38 years, receives congratulations upon news of his appointment as coach of the United States Olympic track and field team to compete at London. Well wisher is MEL PATTON, national college sprint champion. Cromwell is 68 years old.

Dean Cromwell Named Coach Of U.S. Olympic Track Team

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP)—Dean Cromwell, 68-year-old veteran of the winged foot, from southern California, today took over one of the major sports assignments of the year, the job as head coach of the United States Olympic track and field teams.

Cromwell, who has been track and field coach at the University of Southern California since 1908, replaces another veteran, Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania, who retired recently because of illness after directing American teams in the last three Olmypiads.

Emil von Elling of New York University, Tom Jones of Wisconsin and Emmett Brunson of Rice Institute were named as Cromwell's assistants while Al Masters of Stanford will be head manager of the track team. Masters' assistants are Ed Parsons of Northeastern University of Boston and Lloyd Olds of Michigan Normal.

In other assignments made by Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, chairman of the Olympic track and field committee, Ward H. Haylett of Kansas State was named to handle the decathlon, while Fred Travalena of the New York Metropolitan A.A.U. was named manager of the marathon runners and walkers.

Final Tryout Dates Set.

Wilson revealed that the final decathlon trials would be on June 25 through June 27 at Bloomfield, N.J., while the trials for the 50-kilometer walk with a minimum standard of four hours 50 minutes will be at Cincinnati, O., May 16. The 10-kilometer walk trials will be at New York June 6. A 48-minute minimum is required in that section.

The famed Boston Athletic Association marathon April 19 was designated as the final Olympic marathon trial.

Wilson said that in naming Cromwell to the post "we feel we have made the best selection possible."

At Los Angeles, Cromwell said "We intend to take good will abroad."

"There has been more emphasis on sports in late years and when these boys compete in a spirit of good sportsmanship it will create good will," he said. "And the United States expects to win the Olympics — just as we always have."

Has Developed Stars.

Cromwell, during his career at Southern California, has developed more world record holders than any other coach, including Frank Wyckoff and Lou Zamperini. Von Elling, who specializes in producing middle distance and relay runners, has kept New York University on top in the eastern track realm. Jones is the dean of Big Nine track and field mentors with 37 years of service at Wisconsin. Among his star runners were Walter Mehl and Chuck Fenske.

Brunson, a track star at Rice, returned there in 1934 and as track coach developed Fred Wolcott, a premier hurdler, and Billy Christopher a broad jumper among others.

Masters was assistant Olympic squad manager in the 1932 and 1936 games.

Hill Succeeds Cromwell.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12 (AP)—Jess Hill will succeed Dean Cromwell, the new Olympic coach, as track and field coach at Southern California in 1949, U.S.C. officials disclosed today.

Cromwell—who was given an extra year to coach after reaching the retirement age of 67—has now achieved his Olympic goal and nothing stands in the way of the appointment of Hill, former major league baseball player, it was said.

Hill was hired as frosh football and track coach two years ago with the understanding that the varsity track job was his upon Cromwell's retirement. Hill was a four-sport letterman at Southern California in the early thirties.

Hollywood Club Ordered to Pay Player $1000

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12 (AP)—In a far-reaching decision, George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, yesterday ordered the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League to pay a $1000 bonus to player Sam Stassi who performed last season for the Yakima (Wash.) team in the Western International loop.

Trautman said the player had signed with Hollywood July 23, 1946, the contract providing Stassi was to receive a $1000 bonus if retained by Hollywood at the end of the season.

Stassi's contract was optionally assigned to the Albuquerque club, and he was recalled, and reserved, by Hollywood at the end of the season. On Feb. 23, 1947, the bonus clause was carried over in a new contract with Hollywood signed by Stassi. On March 24 Hollywood optionally assigned the player to Yakima, and on April 29 converted the optional assignment to an outright assignment for a cash consideration of $100.

Stassi remained with Yakima through the 1947 season, is still on that club's reserve list, and he asked Trautman for the $1000 bonus or a free agency.

Trautman ruled that since Stassi had been promised a $1000 bonus if retained, it should be paid. "The player was never released," Trautman ruled, "but instead finds himself bound to serve the assignee."

The club, which declared it should not be compelled to pay the bonus since Stassi's contract had been assigned outright 12 days after Yakima's season opened, has 30 days to appeal the verdict to the executive committee of the National Association. Should the committee reverse Trautman's decision, Stassi may appeal to Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Major Leagues To Open, Close Season Later

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP) — President Ford Frick of the National League announced today that the 1948 major league season will close on Sunday, Oct. 3, a week later than usual.

It will open on April 20, also a week later than usual.

The opening date had been announced at the major league meetings here last December, but it had not been planned to announce the closing date until the next baseball meeting in February. However, the National Football League, in a Tuesday morning release statement from its office in Philadelphia, inadvertently revealed the baseball closing date because its necessitated changes in the football schedule.

Frick attributed the later opening and closing to a "break in the calendar."

"About every eight or nine years that happens," Frick said. "If we opened as usual this coming season it would mean that the regular season would close Sept. 25, and that is too early for we would miss all that good October weather."

As usual, the schedule calls for 154 games by each of the 16 teams.

Feller Drew $87,000 Salary, Highest Ever In Game, Says Veeck

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12 (UP)—President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians revealed today that Bob Feller was the highest paid player in the history of baseball last year—with a total salary of $87,000.

Announcing that he will go into a salary huddle for next season with Feller here Wednesday, Veeck said his star pitcher drew $5000 of his top income as expense money and some $40,000 as a bonus based on attendance.

West Allis Team Wins Tri-State Skate Meet

ELGIN, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP)—West Allis, Wis., won the team championship of the Tri-state Open Skating derby yesterday, following up its victory in the Western Open yesterday.

George Fischer of Champaign, Ill., took the individual senior men's crown, repeating his Western Open achievement in the Tri-state competition. However, the Western Senior women's winner, Betty Mitchell of Winnipeg, last year's senior Nort. American champion, was bested for top women's honor in today's derby by Luetta Du Mez of Chicago's Cyo club.

The West Allis team scored 240 points for the team title. Glen Ellyn, Ill., placed second with 210, and Champaign-Urbana, Ill., was third with 170.

Other out-of-town team ratings included the Powder Horn Skating Club of Minneapolis, sixth with 130; the East Side Skating club, Minneapolis, eighth, 110; the St. Paul Skating club, ninth, 90, Aurora, Ill., tenth, 40; Elgin, Ill., and Winnipeg, Canada, eleventh with 30 each; Milwaukee, twelfth, 20, and the Bearcat Skating club, Minneapolis, thirteenth with 10.

Fischer won the class A three-quarter mile race and placed second in the senior two-mile grind to win his 50 individual points. In the senior women's events, Miss Mitchell won the 220, but Miss Du Mez took first in the 880 and the one-mile events, garnering 60 points for top honors.

Janice Christopherson of West Allis, last year's national and North American intermediate girls' champ, competing in the senior division for the first time, was second in the 880 and third in the one miler.

New Britain Bowler Wins Duck Pin Tourney

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 12 (AP)—Nick Tronsky of New Britain paced a record field of 133 entries yesterday as he captured the eighteenth annual United States duck pin bowling classic here with a 15-game total score of 1998. He received top prize of $1000 and a diamond medal.

Ten pins off the pace was Wally Pipp of Hartford, whose 1988 netted him $500. Clarence Miller of Baltimore, Md., with 1987, received $400; Tom Kelley of Hartford rolled 1986 for $350, and Charley Kebart of New Haven and Henry Marks of Bridgeport tied with 1980 each, good for individual prize money of $312.50.

Spunky Jane Willing Victor in Field Trial

PINEHURST, N.C., Jan. 12 (AP) — Spunky Jane Willing, a white and liver pointer female owned by A. A. Albright of Battle Creek, Mich., won the open derby at the Pinehurst Field Trial Club's annual event here yesterday. The derby, with 20 dogs entered, ended the week-long trials.

Aerials Up, a white and orange pointer female owned by A. B. Bobbitt of Winston-Salem, was second and Mark Peerless Twain, a white and black setter dog owned by Calvin Rivers of Chesterfield, S.C., was third.

Mark Peerless Twain was the only setter to place in the trials. Hurrah Bob's Major, owned by J. H. Velott of Williamsport, Pa., won the open all-age event which ended Saturday.

DeAndreis Take on Stature In Soccer Competition; Why Was Licavoli Advertised?

By Dent McSkimming

Looking forward to their National Open Cup match of next Sunday in which they oppose the DeAndreis club, Joe Numi's soccer boys can get small comfort from their performance of yesterday. Unable to score, the Simpkins team went down, 1 to 0, at the hands of the Raiders in one of the St. Louis Major Soccer League games at Sportsman's Park.

A few minutes after that disappointing development, Manager Numi watched the DeAndreis club as it struggled to a 3-2 victory over the Steamfitters.

Putting the two results together it would appear the DeAndreis club is heading for victory over the Simpkins in their cup match.

'Fitters Lack Teamwork.

Steamfitters, too, may feel a bit worried about their Cup game coming up with the Southerns. Their effort against DeAndreis yesterday was thrilling enough but there was a surprising lack of teamwork.

While the Raiders pleased their followers with an important victory (it saved them from falling a notch in the league standing) they disappointed those who expected them to use the young flash, Frank Licavoli, at outside right.

The new player was signed and wanted to play but Municipal League authorities reported he had not been properly released by Manager John Vitale of the Bosco club. To insure friendly relations with the Muny organization, the Raiders decided to go on without Licavoli although they had publicized the fact he would play.

Soccer officials have a way of creating a great deal of confusion where order and peace could prevail. There will be more signing of Muny players and it is hoped the detail of a proper transfer will be completed before a player is advertised as a sure starter.

A couple of fouls by Center Half Charley Colombo turned the Raider tide against the Simpkins club. Colombo's handling of the ball gave the Raiders a penalty kick which Bohlman wasted with a blast over the cross bar. Next Charley fouled Center Forward Sal Noto as they went up to head a ball, 40 yards from the goal. The free kick to the Simpkins' goal mouth resulted in a couple of blocked kicks and finally, with Goaltender Frank Borghi down, Noto scored. It was a very untidy tally.

Offside decisions at critical points took away some Simpkins' scoring chances. And the Raiders' backs, especially Phil Kavanaugh, ploughed through with a brusqueness that upset Bill Bertani's game. Again, the Simpkins' players had the better ball control; only Emil Muniz of the Raiders matched their finesse. But Muniz twice sullied his own fine game by wasting corner kicks, sending the ball behind the goal. When you recall that Alex McNab would go through a whole season without kicking a single corner kick behind the goal it seems strange today's stars can't keep the ball inside the great big penalty area. Emil Gerth of the Steamfitters tried a corner kick, hit the ball with the toe of his shoe and sliced it off at a wide angle, behind the goal. That's as bad as seeing a major league baseball player trying to bat cross-handed.

Willie Welsher, for the second time this season, accounted for two of his team's goals as Eddie Begley's DeAndreis club whipped the Steamfitters. Bob Fuchs gave Willie a nice backward pass for the first score and in the second half Fuchs himself went through for a clean goal. Eddie Marsek and White Gunning were the Steamfitter scorers and in the closing 15 minutes the boys coached by Danny Murphy were all over their opponents.

Felds Increase Lead In Semipro Cage Loop

With only a two-point lead and five minutes remaining to play in an Ill.-Mo. League semipro basketball game at the Maplewood High School court yesterday afternoon, the Felds, led in an offense by George Koby, Don Schultz and Center Bob Heinsohn, crushed the second-place Alton Streepers, 64-48, to strengthen their hold on first place in the league.

Schultz led the local quintet in scoring with 15 points, but he was aided by Elmer Das, who tallied 14 points and Heinsohn, who counted 12. Schoolboy Jones led the Alton attack with 13 points.

Illinois State League to Open Season April 25

The Illinois State League at its meeting at Belleville yesterday adopted a 120-baseball game schedule with six-game home stands.

The season will open April 25 and end Aug. 22. Home openers will be Belleville at Mattoon, Marion at West Frankfort and Mount Vernon at Centralia. These openers will be reversed at the other cities May 2.

Shaughnessy playoffs were adopted with the following committee in charge of arrangements: Joe Mondino, Centralia; W. L. Moore, Mount Vernon, and Charles Hoffman, Belleville.

The all-star game, to be played at a site to be picked later, will be in charge of Charles Heath, Mattoon; Leslie Stilley, Marion, and C. D. Jacobs, West Frankfort.

League officers re-elected were Howard V. Millard, Decatur, president and treasurer; Charles Hoffman, Belleville, vice president, and J. Neil Moore, Centralia, secretary.

Harold Contini was appointed playing manager of the West Frankfort team. He managed the Eastern Shore Salisbury (Md.) team for the last two seasons. Both are St. Louis Cardinal farms.

Setter, Competing in First Trial, Victor in St. Louis Club's Test

Rhapsody II, a Llewellin setter, competing in his first shooting dog stake, was the winner in the St. Louis Field Trial Association's test, concluded at Weldon Spring, yesterday. Rhapsody II, owned by Dr. John W. Hotz of St. Louis, found one covey of quail and handled perfectly.

Hap Waldrip's Duke of Ballas, an English setter, took second place and Big Train, Charles Van Studdiford's pointer, was third.

The field for the stake was limited to 30 dogs and was held under actual hunting conditions, with the trainers on foot.

Two N.L. Hockey Stars Sidelined By Broken Legs

The game was 15 seconds old when Quilty, taking the opening face-off puck, and scurrying towards the Hawk net, ran into Bob Goldham at the blue line. Quilty collapsed and was carried out on a stretcher.

Examination in the dressing room indicated the fractures, but Quilty was taken to St. Anthony Hospital where X-rays will be taken today.

It is believed Quilty will be lost to the Bruins at least eight weeks if preliminary examinations are confirmed.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 (AP) — Toe Blake, Montreal Canadiens' veteran who is within striking distance of the all-time scoring record in the National Hockey League, will be lost to his team for at least two months as the result of the ankle fracture suffered Saturday.

Blake had his right ankle broken in two places when he was checked by Defenseman Bill Juzda of the New York Rangers in a game here and crashed into the boards.

The 35-year-old campaigner said he is sure he will be back in action in March and his physicians agreed this is a possibility.

Blake had collected nine goals and 15 assists this season for 24 points. He has a life-time total of 527 points, consisting of 233 goals and 292 assists. The league's all-time scoring record is held by Bill Cowley of the Boston Bruins, who amassed 548 points in his career.

Detroit Kegler Paces Petersen

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP)—Zig Starr, 29-year-old Detroit shipping clerk, set the pace for the first contingent of the 2550 bowlers competing in the $64,000 Petersen classic which opened with four 32-man squads Saturday.

Starr's eight-game total of 1594 was 31 pins better than the second place score turned in by Leo Bentley of Lorain, O., when the firing ceased early today until the next weekend.

After the next weekend program, the competition will be resumed with daily schedules on Jan. 24 and continue through Feb. 8. The high eight-game scorer in the classic will win the top prize of $5100 and a chance to add $5000 more in a post-tournament series, in which the four leads will roll an additional four games. The winner of each game will receive $1000 with another $1000 for the highest total of the four games.

There are 499 other awards in the competition which has attracted most of the nation's leading keglers.

The 10 high scorers of the first contingent: Zig Starr, Detroit, 1594; Leo Bentley, Lorain, O., 1563; George Chicovsky, Detroit, 1532; Louis Nizza, Detroit, 1520; Arthur Meyers, Springfield, Ill., 1510; Gene Grammis, Milwaukee, 1509; Leo Jeske, Two Rivers, Wis., 1507; John Thon, Minneapolis, 1505; Clarence Porter, St. Charles, Ill., 1503; August Fiebig, Oshkosh, Wis., 1499.

Thompson Gets Release.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP) — The New York Giants last night gave Pitcher Eugene (Junior) Thompson his unconditional release. Thompson helped the Cincinnati Reds to two pennants before going to the Giants. However, he was unable to regain his pitching prowess when he returned to the game after two years in the Navy.

11 QUIT UNDER U. S. LOYALTY INQUIRY

FBI Finds No Evidence of Disloyalty in Records of 190,957.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP) — Eleven persons resigned from Government service while being investigated by the FBI under the new federal loyalty program.

The FBI reported today that it has processed 191,234 of the fingerprint-personnel data information forms which some 2,000,000 federal workers were required to fill out late last year. The processing job was started in October.

Of the total loyalty forms examined, the FBI said, 190,957 have been returned to the Civil Service Commission and the individual agencies with the finding of "no disloyal data in the files of the FBI."

In 277 other cases, "full field investigations" to obtain additional data have been directed.

11 Persons Resigned.

Fifteen of these investigations are now complete and the bureau stated that while they were in progress 11 persons under inquiry resigned. The four other completed investigations went to the agency loyalty boards with a notation that full inquiry "produced sufficient evidence to establish loyalty."

The report thus establishes that no Loyalty case is now pending before an agency head, agency loyalty board or the loyalty review board which acts as the "supreme court" in the program.

The Government loyalty check covers all Government workers. However the Army, Navy, State Departments and Atomic Energy Commission are given special authority by Congress to make summary dismissals for security reasons without clearance through loyalty boards.

Group Urges 'Utmost Care.'

Thirty-five authors, editors, clergymen and other public figures today called on the Review Board to use the "utmost care" to prevent injustices to individuals in the investigations.

In a letter to Board Chairman Seth W. Richardson, released by the American Civil Liberties Union, the group said it did not question "the Government's right to require loyal support of the principles of our Constitution by all employes."

Signers of the letter included the authors, John P. Marquand, H. L. Mencken, Bernard Devoto, Pearl S. Buck, Lewis Gannett, Rex Stout, Carl Van Doren, Pierre Van Paassen, Will Durant, William Rose Benet, Henry Seidel Canby, Norman Cousins, Frederick Lewis Allen and Raymond Swing.

Religious leaders included Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Dr. Reinhold Neibuhr, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Allan Knight Chalmers and Clarence Pickett.

YUGOSLAVIA-BASED ATTACK ON GREEK TOWN REPORTED

ATHENS, Jan. 12 (AP) — Press dispatches said today movements of a large force of guerrillas and a number of Army units were under way in northwest Greece south of the Albanian border, indicating that a major encounter was shaping up. A force of between 1500 and 2000 guerrillas, who had withdrawn from Konitsa, were reported skirmishing near the frontier.

Earlier reports said 200 guerrillas crossed the Yugoslav border and attacked the Greek frontier town of Idomeni. About 20 houses were burned, seven gendarmes wounded and five hostages taken by the guerrillas, who retreated into Yugoslavia, the dispatches said.

Nineteen American field officers who arrived in Athens over the weekend began a week of orientation today preparatory to assignment as advisers to Greek army headquarters at army and corps levels. The five colonels, nine lieutenant colonels and five majors are scheduled to go into the field next week.

LIQUOR AGENT CAN'T GET IN, CUSTOMERS NAB TAVERN MEN

Officers Inside Interrupt Brisk Sunday Business Behind Locked Doors.

William J. Sheehan, operator of a tavern at 4412 Morganford road, and his bartender, Jeremiah D. P. Kenney, were doing a brisk business behind locked doors yesterday when they heard a knock at the rear door.

Sheehan peeked through a window and called to Kenney, who was approaching the door: "Jerry, be careful of that guy at the door. I think he's a state liquor agent. Whatever you do, don't let him in." Sheehan then turned to the customers at the bar and said: "Let's all be quiet for a minute."

Kenney walked to the door and called out: "We don't do any business here on Sunday and you can't come in."

At the point, much to the surprise of Kenney and his boss, two of the customers stepped forward and identified themselves.

Theye were Detective Sgts. Adolph C. Jacobsmeyer and Leslie V. Woodward, who arrested the pair and booked them suspected of violating the tavern closing law and selling intoxicating liquor on Sunday.

WATCHMAN IS SHOT AS HE MAKES ROUNDS AT BREWERY

Frank Potthoff, watchman for the Falstaff Brewery Corp., was shot last night as he was making his rounds at the company's No. 2 plant at 3190 Michigan avenue. About 30 pellets from a 16-gauge shotgun struck him in the face, chest and arms from a distance estimated at 50 feet.

Police said marks on a fence at a company's storage lot on the east side of the boiler room indicated the shot was fired from inside the lot. Potthoff was crossing Wyoming street, west of Michigan, going from the engine room to the boiler room, when he was wounded.

Potthoff told police he did not get along well with some employes, who considered him officious. He was taken to Alexian Brothers Hospital after treatment at City Hospital. Potthoff, 55 years old, lives at 4338A Arco avenue.

'SAMARITAN' ROBS WOMAN

Miss Betty Knopf, 3206A Magnolia avenue, reported to police that a man who came to her home early yesterday and informed her that a friend had been injured in an automobile accident nearby, took her purse, containing $17, and fled while she was dressing to go to the scene of the accident.

Miss Knopf said she admitted the man to her living room while she went to dress. She went to the scene, about six blocks away, but found nothing there, she said. The empty purse was found by police on the front lawn of her home.

MIKOLAJCZYK'S OWN STORY

Poland Turned to F.D.R. for Help Against Reds; Told to 'Keep Your Shirt on,' Ex-Premier Declares

Peasant Leader Heard 'Pro-Soviet Elements' Held Important Jobs in U.S. War Agencies — He Tells 'Complete Story' of Katyn Forest Murder of 11,000 Polish Officers.

By STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK
NINTH OF A SERIES.

(Copyright, 1948.)

THE composite ear of London and Washington began to grow deaf to the plans of the Polish Government-in-exile at the beginning of 1942. The British were determined to do nothing to disturb English-Russian relations, even to the extent of overlooking the interests of Poland, their ally over whose problems they had gone to war in 1939.

So we began to look to America to bring the necessary pressure on the Red chieftain. But the Russians, though hard-pressed in a war of survival, could and did act the part of a conquering power in diplomatic circles. What is worse, they were permitted to get away with it.

The picture of Russia became easily distorted. Ambassador Ciechanowski reported from Washington that pro-Soviet elements had moved into important places in United States war agencies, and that any American who attempted to bring up such distasteful matters as the cold-blooded murders of the two Polish Jewish Socialists — Victor Alter and Henryk Ehrlich—was pilloried as a "Fascist."

We finally had to protest to the United States State Department about the tone of the O.W.I. broadcasts to Poland. Such broadcasts, which we monitored in London, might well have emanated from Moscow.

We turned from Churchill to Roosevelt, then back to Churchill and thence to Roosevelt, without avail. They were sympathetic, but continued to impose silence upon us—reluctant to inject anything into their relations with Stalin which might displease him. Each counted upon making a personal plea to him in respect to Poland at a meeting which Stalin continued to postpone. In the echelons beneath Churchill and Roosevelt, our position worsened.

Polish Protests Ignored.

Our own diplomatic protests to Moscow were ignored. When we took the matter to Washington, Welles suggested that Gen. Sikorski should again call on Stalin, but we pointed out that such a move would be futile unless he could go with the written assurance that the United States would back him up. We had thereafter to reckon with the Roosevelt Administration's definite appeasement of Russia.

As for the British Government, it apparently had begun to fear that Germany might now abruptly capitulate or negotiate a peace with the Red Army before British forces could step back on the continent, and that Britain's position in Europe might thus be irreparably damaged.

After Roosevelt's return from Casablanca, we were told he considered the status of Russian-Polish relations so "delicate and difficult" he did not choose to intervene at just that time—though we pointed out that more than 1,500,000 pawns of aggression, whose husbands and sons were now fighting the Germans, were being held as hostages by Russia.

Roosevelt said he could do nothing except marvel at the workings of the Soviet mentality, and would not at that time restate the principles of the Atlantic Charter to which Russia subscribed.

Our people in Russia, back on starvation rations and increased slavery, were forced at gun-point to sign Russian citizenship papers. Those who balked were jailed, beaten and, in some cases, shot.

We tried to tell Churchill and Roosevelt that our continued silence was regarded by Stalin as an invitation to renew his political aggression against all democracies.

The best answer we got was "keep your shirt on."

Katyn Forest Murders.

The complete story of the murder of 11,000 Polish officers in the Katyn Forest near Smolensk has never been told, but because I am free today I can shed new light on a catastrophe which, while numerically small in the great picture of World War II's mass murders, remains significant because it gave Russia a long-awaited reason to break diplomatic relations with Poland, and because it remains a milestone in the appeasement of the U.S.S.R. by the British and Americans.

As late as March 13, 1942, Russian Ambassador Bogomolov had replied—in a formal note—that the 11,000 missing officers had been released in the so-called "amnesty" of July, 1941, but fewer than 400 of these men, who had been held as prisoners of war at Red Army camps of Kozielsk, Starobielsk and Ostashkov, had reported to Gen. Anders. These 400 were sent to Moscow when the others were sent westward to their doom.

In London, we had been receiving disquieting news from our Polish underground concerning these men. We learned they had written to their families in the spring of 1941 that they would be sent home. Then all mail from the officers stopped. And all we were able to receive from the Russians thereafter were evasive replies or outright untruths.

Here is the true story.

In the spring of 1941, when Hitler and Stalin were still allies, the Germans decided to train 30,000 Ukrainians for service in the German armies. They set up training camps at Krosno and near Zakopane. The Ukrainians had escaped from the Soviet-occupied zone of Poland and made their way to the German zone of occupation.

The Russians soon learned of these training plans and protested to their Axis ally. Then came a deal whereby the 30,000 Ukrainians were to be exchanged for the 11,000 Polish officers the Russians were holding.

But the Germans tired of the whole business, and when the deal was completed, and the Ukrainians delivered, the Nazis remembered certain fundamental Nazi precepts: among these being the need of room, but no more people, and the planned extermination of the intelligentsia of conquered countries.

So the Germans informed the Russians the Polish officers could be murdered, to save transportation and other problems.

Still believing they were going home, the officers were led into the Katyn Forest and, in what must have been a scene that sickened Heaven, were murdered. Each man was shot through the back of the head after his hands had been tied behind him by fence wire.

The Russians threw the bodies in a long, single grave, but they made one mistake. The ground in which they placed the dead officers was of a peculiar composition which virtually mummifies dead objects placed in it. What might have become unidentifiable skeletons in a few months remained almost perfectly preserved corpses, with papers and other means of identification intact.

Germans Announce Discovery.

On April 12, 1943, as the Germans retreated slowly back into Poland, the German news agency announced discovery of the bodies and added that the men had been killed by Soviet political police. On April 14, with Moscow still silent, we asked the International Red Cross to investigate the German claim. The Russians were informed immediately of our appeal. On April 15, the Soviet Information Bureau called the German allegations "vile fabrications."

On April 18, a campaign of abuse against the Polish Government opened in the Russian press. The following day Pravda declared that members of Gen. Sikorski's government had "swallowed a carefully baited hook thrown out by the German propaganda agencies."

Stalin, as I have earlier noted, had set up his own Communist-dominated Polish "government" in the U.S.S.R., and we in London now knew he had seized on the Katyn murders as a reason to break with the government in London.

The blow fell on April 25, when Molotov handed a note to Tadeusz Romer, our Polish Ambassador to Moscow. It was the now historic note which began:

"The Soviet Government considers the recent behavior of the Polish Government with regard to the U.S.S.R. as entirely abnormal, and violating all regulations and standards of relations between the Allied states."

The note accused the Germans of the murders, and it concluded: "All these circumstances compel the Soviet Government to recognize that the present Government of Poland, having slid on the path of accord with Hitler's Government, has actually discontinued Allied relations with the U.S.S.R. and has adopted a hostile attitude toward the Soviet Union. On the strength of the above, the Soviet Government has decided to sever relations with the Polish Government."

The International Red Cross dropped our plea on April 27 because no "corresponding invitation" had been received from Moscow.

U.S. ARMY MAJOR WOUNDED BY RED SOLDIER NEAR BERLIN

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (AP)—A Russian sentry fired at an American major and his wife yesterday following an apparent misunderstanding at a Soviet Army barrier on the highway to Berlin. The major was wounded in the hand. Five bullets hit his car.

United States Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden identified the major as Richard R. Baker of Alexandria, Va. A public relations officer quoted Baker as saying he believed the shooting was accidental. Baker said a Russian lieutenant was "very apologetic." He added that the Russian sentry appeared to be about 16 years old, and explained that he thought Baker's car, a German vehicle, was trying to break through the border barrier. The incident took place at Helmstedt.

Economists for Spending Cut to Curb Inflation

Reduction in Debts and Tariffs, More Goods Among 18 Steps Urged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP). "RADICAL reduction" in Government spending headed a list of 18 steps recommended yesterday by 53 economists as a means of combatting inflation.

The 53, most of them university professors and all of them members of the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, said in a statement that the situation requires "action on a variety of fronts."

The committee, a private organization with headquarters in New York, has been surveying the economic front since it was set up in 1933.

The report showed unanimity on the need of cutting Government spending, but individuals were opposed to some of the proposals advocated by the majority. The list follows, with a parenthetical number after each proposal showing how many had reservations on that point or were opposed to it, fully or in part:

"1. A radical reduction in Government expenditures; in particular, abandonment of all public work projects except those of an emergency nature.

"2. A reduction in taxes. (20).

"3. A reduction in the federal debt. (1).

Gold Standard Recommended.

"4. A return to a gold-coin monetary standard, and a revision of our monetary laws, in order to return to the people of the United States greater control over the Government's use and abuse of the public purse and to reverse the pronounced trend in this country toward a governmentally managed economy. (10).

"5. An increase in production, productive effort, and efficiency of all productive agents. (1).

"6. Abandonment of make-work, feather-bedding, and other devices for collecting pay for work not done. (2).

"7. The maintenance of relatively low inventories and the avoidance of hoarding by business enterprises. (3).

"8. The retention by business enterprises of a large percentage of earnings for improvement and expansion of their businesses, and a revision of our tax laws to permit such retention without penalty. (5).

"9. The cautious use of credit, and an increase, where possible, of margins of safety against extensions of credit. (1).

"10. That sellers make special efforts to maintain the lowest possible prices consistent with a low margin of profit as a means of forestalling a possible large price decline and severe liquidation. (7).

Cut in Tariffs Favored.

"11. Reduction in tariffs and other restrictions to trade, domestic and foreign. (3).

"12. A recognition on the part of our Federal Government that it cannot buy large amounts of already scarce supplies and at the same time not contribute to high or higher prices. (1).

"13. Abandonment of federal subsidies except where matters of national protection—in air, army and naval forces—are involved, and also repeal of price-parity and price-maintenance laws. (2).

"14. That the Government not confuse symptoms with causes and that it not attempt to control symptoms since such 'controls' tend to conceal causes, distort the economic picture, and perpetuate, accentuate and foster new, economic maladjustments. (3).

"15. That people not buy what they do not need and that they not borrow to buy things they can do without. (4).

"16. That the apparent tendency to loan too freely and too much to foreign countries be sharply curbed. (9).

"17. That interest rates be permitted to find their natural levels. (8).

"18. That the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System give greater attention to the type of administration of our monetary and credit structure that should foster more harmonious relationships in the various segments of our economy. (7).

"Orthodox" Group.

The committee is under the chairmanship of Benjamin M. Anderson, of the University of California at Los Angeles. Walter E. Spahr, of New York University, economist and author on financial problems, is executive vice president.

Arthur W. Crawford, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, described the committee as a group of monetary economists of "the more or less orthodox school, of conservative tendencies."

It was formed in 1933 after the Roosevelt Administration had devalued the dollar and taken other fiscal steps, Crawford said, because a lot of the economists "didn't like a lot of the trends taken in the '30s."

Its membership includes the Rev. Bernard W. Dempsey, S.J., St. Louis University, and Roy L. Garis, University of Illinois.

FRENCH MOROCCO OFFICIAL CALLED TO PARIS TO REPORT

PARIS, Jan. 12 (UP) — Gen. Alphonse Juin, French Resident-General of Morocco, has been called to Paris to report to the Government on the latest crisis in French-Moroccan relationships and is expected to arrive Wednesday, it was reported today.

Recall of Juin and abrogation of France's protectorate pact with Morocco was demanded recently by the Sultan of Morocco, Sidi Mohammed Ben Yussef, in a letter to President Vincent Auriol.

It was understood the dispute between Juin and the Sultan centered about an alleged attempt by Juin to reduce the Sultan's personal power by taking away his control of local tribal appointments.

Business Outlook

A $40 TAX GIFT NOT REAL INCOME

By J. A. Livingston

WASHINGTON.

IN his State of the Union message, President Truman set the pace for 1948: More inflation. The President guaranteed that Congress would vote a tax reduction. He made it difficult for himself to veto a Republican-sponsored tax reduction measure. And thus he assured a further insertion of purchasing power into a market already suffering from too much money on the consumer's side of the counter and too little goods on the merchant's side.

The President proposed a bonus —a flat $40-per-person abatement of taxes. The effect would put $3,200,000,000 in the hands of ultimate consumers.

The President was well aware of the inflationary effect of this. He said in his message: "Until inflation has been stopped there should be no cut in taxes. . . ." He should have halted right there. But he went on to say, "unless it (the tax cut) is offset by additions at another point in our tax structure."

Thereupon, Truman proposed to make up the loss by higher taxes on corporations which "can well afford to carry a larger share of the tax load at this time."

That makes good demagogics but poor economics. In a seller's market the corporations can simply pass on the higher taxes to the consumer by raising prices. Result: Further inflation.

So shrewd is the proposal, however, that any opponent of it is apt to be labeled a spokesman for the N.A.M. or an enemy of the laboring man. Unquestionably, as the President pointed out, the lower-income groups are being squeezed by the rising cost of living. Unquestionably, it's desirable to make it easier for them to get by, to purchase goods. But the President's plan won't do that. It hands the taxpayer money, but not real income.

Another Whirl.

So now the business—or inflation—outlook for '48 may be restated something like this: Another round of wage boosts; another round of industrial price rises because of higher costs; an inflationary tax cut; another upsurge in prices of food—because of more consumer competition for the short supply. Over-all result: The cost of living will rise some more, leading to a demand for another wage boost later on.

The nut of it all is this: The new round of wage boosts and the tax cut will both be converted into higher farm prices. Farm income, even though crops may not be so large as in 1946 or 1947, may be higher. And rural areas will make fine spots for increased sales. This was suggested at the Chicago furniture market. Buyers for stores in agricultural centers were more confident than those from industrial regions.

Again in '48, a higher portion of the pay envelope may go for food. And that will put the squeeze on the low-income groups. Last year, buying was concentrated in durable goods newly come on the market—autos, refrigerators, washing machines, etc. Also, income went into monthly payments on new homes. That left less for luxury items and for soft goods, especially clothing.

The big increases in retail sales were in building materials, automobiles, electrical appliances and food. But sales of jewelry and men's clothing in October, for example, were below October 1946. And night club cash registers barely held their own. Clearly, consumers were being priced out of the market for non-necessities. And not so much because night club and jewelry prices were exorbitant, but because the cost of necessities was up.

	1947 Pct.	1946 Pct.
Building materials	5.5	4.3
Motor vehicles	8.1	7.0
Home appliances, radios	1.9	1.7
Food	25.1	24.3
Hardware	1.8	1.8
Furniture, furnishings	3.5	3.6
Filling stations	3.7	3.8
Department store and mail order	9.9	10.2
Shoes	1.4	1.5
Women's apparel	3.9	4.2
Auto parts, accessories	1.4	1.5
Liquor	1.6	1.8
Drugs	3.0	3.3
Eating and drinking places	10.8	12.0
Men's clothing	2.2	2.5
Jewelry	0.9	1.1
Miscellaneous	15.3	15.4

Only three markets seem certain to hold their own in '48—food, autos and housing. The urgency to purchase electrical applicances is abating somewhat. In radios, for instance, price wars again are breaking out. Two concerns have just announced a $9.95 table model. Another has come forth with a $16.95 model, the same price as its lowest model in 1941. And the big electrical concern which made headlines with an announcement of a 3% to 10% price cut on major household appliances, added radios to the list, with markdowns of 3% to 24.6%. Perhaps radio manufacturers fear television and radical change in radio and want to clear out old models.

In 1948, the market may shift

Attlee Aid Says Russian Policy Risks New War

Morrison Declares Nobody Threatens Internal Security of Soviet Union.

LEICESTER, England, Jan. 12 (AP).

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER HERBERT MORRISON declared last night that Soviet foreign policy and "reckless propaganda" risk another war and impede world economic recovery.

His criticism was the second recent pronouncement by high British officials indicating a hardening of the Labor Government's attitude toward the Soviet Union. Eight days ago Prime Minister Attlee denounced Russian Communism as a "new form of imperialism" threatening the rest of Europe.

Morrison's views, addressed to a regional council of the Labor party, were the first a Government leader has voiced on world affairs since the cabinet met last Thursday to survey British foreign policy. Authoritative informants say the cabinet's decision will align Britain closer to the United States in world affairs.

Points to Suppression.

Morrison said:

"We cannot be expected to be happy when country after country in eastern and southeastern Europe find themselves subject to undemocratic and unrepresentative Communist governments, coupled with the suppression of other political parties and freedom of the press, wholesale witchhunting, and even the very unjudicial execution of non-Communist political leaders.

"Nobody is seeking to upset the internal security of the Soviet Union.

"Can they not begin to reverse engines and to discard provocative policies by which they are not only running the risk of war at some time, but which are impeding the economic recovery and progress of mankind?"

Calls Communists Rightists.

THE ALSOPS

Real Power Not Expected to Go To Molotov if Stalin Succumbs

Heads of Secret Police, Communist Party and Army Probably Will Inherit Authority; Struggle Anticipated.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

RUMORS of the impending death of Generalissimo Joseph Stalin are an annual crop, and the present heavy harvest has produced the customary reactions among the American experts. They will believe the story when it has been officially announced. Nevertheless, since the expectation that Stalin must some day die is an important point of American foreign policy, it seems to be worthwhile to set down the known facts.

In the first place, those Americans who have the best means of forming a judgment consider that Stalin has been far from completely well for some years. At one of the war-time conferences, he actually confessed to President Roosevelt that he had trouble with both his heart and lungs. After Tehran, his plane was unexpectedly grounded at Baku, whence he returned by rail to Moscow. The reason for this, and his subsequent refusal to travel anywhere by air, is thought to have been the sharp effect on his lungs of flying at altitude.

In the second place, however, the same men admit that Stalin may last a long while yet. As his frequent trips to Sochi indicate, he has been taking excellent care of himself since the end of the war. His holidays invigorate him greatly—when Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman visited Sochi during the greatest of all outbursts of "Stalin is dying" talk, he found the Russian dictator looking better than he had for years. And everyone who has ever seen Stalin regards him as one of the toughest specimens of the tough Georgian race.

Thus there is no telling whether this crop of rumors, or the next one, or the one after that, may be right or wrong.

Changes Believed Sure.

Meanwhile, whatever reliable facts can be obtained on Stalin's health have an interest far greater than mere gossip. Stalin's death is in fact considered likely to produce changes in Soviet policy. The argument for this view is as follows:

After Stalin is removed from the world scene the experts expect control of the Soviet Union to pass to a sort of inner committee of the Politburo. According to this theory, Molotov will be Stalin's official heir, inheriting the outward trappings of leader of the Soviet state. Beria, meanwhile, will control the MVD—the changed but unchanging secret police; the Russian Communist party will be headed by Zdhanov, hero of the Cominform organization meeting; and to Bulganin will go the leadership of the Russian military forces. In other words, while Molotov will get the trappings of power, the fundamental levers of command will be held by his three juniors among the Politburo's inner group.

History teaches, and the experts believe, that there can be no stability in this quadripartite division of the power of an autocratic state. What is anticipated was suggested by George Kennan, State Department planner, in his famous "Mr. X" article. There will be a conflict, paralleling the conflict that convulsed Rome after the death of Augustus. Then the Roman imperial house, the senatorial plutocracy, the state bureaucracy and the legions fought it out together, until only the legions survived to rule the empire.

The inevitable similarities of the situation that will obtain in Moscow after Stalin's death are strikingly obvious. Moreover, in this modern case, the conflict should be rendered all the more embittered by each of the different forms of state power being personified in a single individual. The prediction is that this inner conflict will rage in the Kremlin from the day of Stalin's funeral for an indeterminate but probably considerable period. There will probably be several permutations and combinations—first three against one, then one against two, and so on. And at last another sole ruler will be chosen for the Soviet Union by the ruthless law of the survival of the fittest.

Effect Is Pondered.

What interests the experts about these struggles is, of course, their probable effect upon the Soviet state and power. The best prediction is that the form of the Soviet state will remain always outwardly unaltered, whatever dark melodrama may be enacted within the Kremlin's guarded walls.

But in such struggles, the starting points, at least ostensibly, are always disputes over policy. In the similar contest which took place after the death of Lenin, both the Soviet bureaucracy, and the Communist parties at home

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Boom and Bust Are O.K.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Chester C. Davis, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, expressed his views recently regarding the inflationary situation facing us and the possible preventives for a severe deflation unless our present tendency is checked.

When will the men well versed in the capitalist economy learn to be realistic about a "boom and bust" cycle? Inflation and deflation are as normal and necessary to free enterprise as inhaling and exhaling are to the human organism. If it were not for the "bust" that comes periodically, we would maintain in business a sufficient number of wasteful operators to make business bad for everyone. If it were not for the "boom," we would fail to attract a sufficient number of new business enterprises to keep our economy from becoming stagnant.

Let us stop complaining about our ups and downs. It is an observable fact that sound enterprise with sound management weathers the economic storm and continues to serve the public with its product. We should remember that nobody but the stupid ever starved in America. With a little honest introspection we are forced to conclude that the percentage, even of this group who have fallen by the wayside, is pitifully small.

Perhaps the most unfortunate thing that Mr. Davis said was: "So far the agricultural population loss has been a healthy development for the long term economic future of the farmers. It has raised individual productivity on the farm and per capita farm income."

As a farmer, I can tell Mr. Davis that the loss of the agricultural population has been too selective for the healthy development of our long-term economic future as a nation. The bright boys went to the city where the big money was. The fact is that it takes the same sort of brain to earn $1800 a year on 80 acres that it does to earn $16,000 a year as a business executive.

As a nation we are in the position of the riverboat that pays the engineer 10 times as much as the pilot. We may get up a tremendous amount of steam but our odds on winding up on a sandbar are pretty good.

My point is that the production of food and materials for clothing is the only really important business we have.

I can't think of any more inspiring future for our children than to live in a land of well-tended and productive topsoil like some of our grandfathers had, well fed and broke.

DAVID ARTHURS.

Sit-Sloppy

How many more politicians, big and little, must get sit-sloppy before something is done about our inflation?

The mystery of our Government at Washington is, Who stole the most bills, folding and enacted?

Agreement With Mr. Davis

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I agree with the letter on the question of another World's Fair by J. Lionberger Davis.

The pussyfooters must be pushed aside by the pioneers in order to establish progress in our twentieth century, since progress is what the world is striving for.

If we have another World's Fair, it would attract people from all over the world and provide a common interest for the public-spirited citizens in our city.

L. H. HANS.

An Explanation About Toilets

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A recent letter raised the question of the lack of inside water closets in some of the older residential structures in St. Louis. An explanation of the procedure followed by the Health Division in eliminating illegal toilet facilities (privy vaults) is probably in order.

City ordinances require that a landlord provide flush-type toilet facilities (water closets) in sewered areas of the city. However, in view of severe shortages of material the past few years, the Health Division has observed the practice of requiring the replacement of only the privy vaults found to be definite nuisances or hazards to the public health.

In addition, all those privy vaults which are found by the housing and neighborhood survey currently being conducted by the Health Division are required to be replaced by water closets.

It is the purpose of the Health Division to require replacement of all privy vaults as rapidly as plumbing supplies become available, both through court action, if necessary, and by encouraging owners to make such changes voluntarily.

ROBERT M. BROWN.
Chief, Sanitation Section, Division of Health, St. Louis Dept. of Public Welfare.

Not Obsolete at 60

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Hasn't the man who signed himself G. L. ever heard of the quaint old American custom of saving a little of your wages to tide you over in an emergency? Does he really mean "obsolete at 41"?

My husband is one and a half times as old as that and is partly incapacitated due to a back injury, but he does work that doesn't call for strain on the weak part, and we get along fine.

In the 20s, 30s, 40s we saved, and the expensive things are paid for and some put aside for old age.

Better get your plan of working reorganized and dig in to be a success while you are still in your productive and accumulative years, instead of waiting to be shelved at 50.

That Kansas Dismissal

Dismissal in Kansas of Southwestern Bell's petition for a 20 per cent rate increase was on a point which is largely procedural and it leaves the door open for further consideration of the application. Nonetheless, the action is significant. Certainly it has special interest for Missourians before whose utility regulating body the same company now has pending a rate increase proposal.

The Kansas dismissal reflects an established public policy of the state, written into its lawbooks. This policy is that a utility must bear the full burden of achieving a rate increase. Thus, a utility is required to pay the costs of the state's investigation of a rate increase schedule, special counsel fees for the state and so on.

Similarly, Kansas requires a utility to itemize the services on which the requested increase in rates is based.

When the Kansas Corporation Commission, counterpart of the Missouri Public Service Commission, read the Southwestern Bell petition it did not find a detailed statement of the services and materials furnished to Southwestern Bell by the parent A.T.&T. and the Western Electric, equipment manufacturing subsidiary of the holding company.

So, without taking time to hear the state's argument against the petition, Chairman Jeff Robertson and his fellow commissioners, De Witt M. Stiles and Charles Warren, sustained a motion to dismiss. It caught the lawyers for the telephone company flatfooted. The most Southwestern Bell has done to explain its predicament is to criticize the statute as unreasonable. According to the company, strict compliance would mean listing of more than 100,000 items purchased from Western Electric and proof that each individual insulator bought from that company met the cost requirements of the law.

The telephone company has 10 days in which to decide its next step. Followers of the case in Topeka expect that it will first ask for a rehearing by the commission. If this rehearing is denied, the probable second move would be to go into the Shawnee County Court, judicial body for Kansas state capital litigation.

There Southwestern Bell might ask the court to enjoin the commission from prohibiting the company from installing its proposed rate increase. Should any one of three judges of the Shawnee County Court so enjoin the commission, the new rates would go into effect. This, however, would be under bond and if the rates were not finally sustained, the bond would assure repayment of the increased rates to telephone users.

Thus in Kansas, eyes are turned to the Shawnee County Court. The three judges take cases by lot and the public has no way of knowing which one might handle an injunction application by the telephone company.

Should the County Court issue an injunction against the Corporation Commission, the State undoubtedly would appeal to the Kansas Supreme Court. This would tend to make the rate increase at least an indirect issue in the judicial primary and election which are held along with the regular primary and election in Kansas this year.

So the Kansas telephone rate case is not closed. If the company gets an increase, it will be required to do more than go before the State Commission with a general statement of what it would like to have. There are many hurdles ahead.

Dr. Bredeck's Outhouse

Dr. Bredeck is in an equivocal position. He is charged by law with enforcing the anti-privy ordinance, yet he is the administrator of property at 826-32 Farrar street where eight families use a single outside toilet. He has two excuses. One is high costs and a shortage of plumbing supplies. The other is his reliance on an interpretation of the law to mean merely that outside toilets should have sewer connections and be kept clean. He claims these virtues for the toilet on the Bredeck property.

The anti-privy law was enacted in 1909. For how many years, when costs were low and plumbing supplies adequate, has Dr. Bredeck delayed in making the improvement? Whether the Bredeck outhouse is clean or not, should not the Health Commissioner have bent over backward to obey the strict letter of the law? As it is, the owners of the 33,000 dwellings in St. Louis that have outhouses can take aid and comfort from the situation at 826-32 Farrar street.

Three Men in the Same Boat

It is ironical that the Kremlin, Henry Wallace and Senator Taft should all see eye to eye in their opposition to the Marshall plan. The Kremlin is against it because it sees it as a means of helping Western Europe to remain independent and free from Russia's crushing domination. Henry Wallace is against it because he believes in peace at any price. Taft is against it because he is still a Victorian and has not learned the lesson of our atomic age, that all nations, that all peoples, are today inevitably interdependent.—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. at Jackson day dinner, Springfield, Mo.

We're Betting on the Bruins

We want to horn in on the controversy between Mr. Vierheller's bears and Weather Man Wahlgren. As all St. Louis is aware, the bears refuse to hibernate this winter and have not put on their usual amount of fat. Therefore, a mild winter's ahead. But with an intellectual snobbery that distinguishes the biped from the quadruped, Mr. Wahlgren says he is depending upon his records and that St. Louis can expect the worst in the way of winter weather.

Of course, everyone knows that the bears, as well as other animals, have a wisdom denied to Little Man. The bears, who can't even read or write, know when to put on fat. The squirrels know how many acorns to stash against the cold season. Without even a calendar to consult, the wild goose knows when to fly south and when to come north in the spring. All this is part of life's sweet mystery.

Let Wahlgren grub over his records. Let him pore over his statistics and consult his books on meteorology. Let him lean on so-called science. We'll bet him a North Dakota blizzard against an Alabama zephyr that he's wrong. To make it thoroughly plain, our money is on those stream-lined, wide-awake bears.

Gold in That There Taylor

Until just now, there must have been 20,000,000 living Americans who couldn't remember who Zachary Taylor was and another 20,000,000 who remembered but wondered why teachers had made them clutter their minds with things like that. Now, however, the obscure General and President has paid off in some fame and much fortune for a thin-pursed young man from Denver, whose schoolboy's knowledge in a radio quiz brought him $5100, a Florida honeymoon and a good job.

The terrific popularity of giveaway radio shows is giving some earnest moralists no little concern, but a certain virtue can also be claimed for them. Boys and girls are still going to complain, "Aw, why waste time memorizing ancient history like Zachary Taylor," and teachers, for once, are going to have an answer that stops them cold.

Mr. Chapple's Departure

Stanley Chapple's appointment as Director of Music at the University of Washington means that St. Louis will needlessly suffer a loss that cannot be easily repaired.

Mr. Chapple is directly responsible for the establishment of the Civic Chorus, the Opera Guild Workshop and for raising the technical and artistic efficiency of the Philharmonic Orchestra to the highest level in its history. Mr. Chapple also extended the influence of the Little Symphony through his wise choice of programs and his generally sympathetic leadership.

Nor should the value of the many musical lectures he has delivered from time to time be underrated. His charm and facility of expression and his copious scholarship enabled him to make musical analysis fascinating as well as intelligible.

Many of the activities in which Mr. Chapple was the prime mover will be seriously crippled if not lost. This could have been avoided if the resources of the community had been so utilized as to provide him with a job that commanded all of his imaginative zeal and rewarded him proportionately.

Specifically, he could have been made Director of Music at Washington University with funds that were available for such a purpose if the university had been responsive to the sort of program, already undertaken elsewhere, which he advocated. In effect, this was designed to make music a dynamic element in the whole academic community through the formation of choruses and bands, through student operas and through lectures that induced a cultural rather than a professional view of music.

Strong representations in Mr. Chapple's behalf were made to the university authorities by a large number of representative citizens. It is nothing against the musician finally chosen that the university wanted a music department that was limited in its functions. It is disheartening, however, to realize that the university could have made a start at placing itself on a level with other great schools in this important department of its instruction in the humanities. The university muffed its chance and the city has lost Mr. Chapple.

The Board Wins, But—

On the issue of inspecting school lunchrooms, the Board of Education has been upheld by Circuit Judge Francis E. Williams. He has decided that it is not legally compelled to submit school lunchrooms to inspection by the city's health department under the clean-restaurant ordinance.

It is sad to think that the board ever should have raised the question, or that later, under the pressure of public opinion, it should have made the half-concession of inviting the Health Department to make "courtesy" inspections. This Health Commissioner Bredeck refused to do; and, certainly, inspection is meaningless without authority to order improvements and to close an eating place in case of non-compliance.

Since other restaurants are now graded A, B or C, the people of St. Louis are more concerned than ever about the conditions under which their children eat. Law or no law, the Board of Education would do well to satisfy this legitimate interest.

Not Worth It

State Representative Edwin A. Smith's bill to reduce the salary of the Sheriff of St. Louis from $10,000 to $8000 has more to commend it than novelty. On present salary scales, the Sheriff gets as much as the Mayor and $1000 a year more than a Circuit Judge. This is a joke at the taxpayers' expense. The Sheriff has no responsibility whatever in the detection and apprehension of lawbreakers. Since his duties are entirely administrative, the post is regarded as a political sinecure. There is not even a remote comparison between it and the burden which must be borne by Mayor Kaufmann in conducting the affairs of a city of 900,000 people. Representative Smith puts the case in one sentence: "The job just isn't worth $10,000 a year." The alternative to reducing the Sheriff's pay is to abolish his office.

The Gambling of Senator Thomas

In a way, Senator Elmer Thomas is the biggest fish taken yet in the commodity speculator dragnet. His operations may have been smaller than Edwin Pauley's but they have at least equally great implications.

The Senator says that he only tries "to represent the people of Oklahoma" but has to play the markets to supplement his salary. However: "At no time have I had any information about any security and commodity that was not at the same time available to the public."

Recall, however, that Elmer Thomas was chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee in the previous Congress. He was the very spearhead of the powerful farm bloc. Recall that he unremittingly tried to raise the price of cotton by legislation.

It is not true that, in this situation, even a speech by Senator Thomas could raise the price of cotton futures? While he was making those bullish speeches, did the Senator tell the public he was gambling in cotton?

The Senator's conduct calls for censure.

A Necessary Airport Step

One bill which the Missouri Legislature may check and then pass without debate is that which Senator Horn of St. Louis has introduced to create a Municipal Airport Commission for St. Louis. Such a commission was recommended by the Governmental Research Institute to bring order to the present complicated regulation of aviation matters by several city departments and agencies. The proposal has the indorsement of Mayor Kaufmann as providing integrated handling of airport problems and decisions until a metropolitan area authority can be set up on a two-state basis.

This meritorious bill may lag, however, unless it is pushed by the city and county's legislators. The metropolitan area enabling bill was caught in the jam at the end of the last session and failed after the Illinois Legislature passed the companion measure at Springfield. Senator Horn and his associates should be on the alert to assure early passage of both bills.

"WELL?"

How Colleges Balk Tax Collectors

The Mirror of Public Opinion

More and more business firms are taking advantage of tax-exempt status of universities, says magazine; their property is transferred to institutions and thus taken off collector's books even though they continue to use it; Congress worried; heavy Treasury loss feared.

From the United States News

A device by which colleges and corporations are combining to save millions of dollars a year in federal taxes is coming under fire in Congress.

This tax-saving device, which takes advantage of the exempt status of educational institutions, is catching on around the country at a rate that is causing alarm among federal tax authorities. The cost in federal revenue eventually could run into the hundreds of millions.

What is happening is that business firms in growing numbers are selling out to colleges and universities. In some cases, colleges actually are operating the businesses they buy, and pocketing the tax-free profits. In other cases, colleges are buying only the plant or the buildings in which the business operates, and then leasing the property back to the former owners. The rental is tax free to the college, and is deductible from the business's taxable income because it is an expense of doing business. This deduction normally is greater than deductions the business has been taking for such expenses as maintenance, depreciation and real estate taxes.

Alumni Sometimes Help

How the device works, in more detail, is seen in the following typical deal:

A university is approached by a business man, who offers his business for sale, in whole or in part. The university may not be able to go into such a deal in its own name, and the proposition is referred to a group of alumni or friends.

This group sets up a nonprofit corporation to buy the business for the university. To finance the purchase, it often is able to draw on the university's endowment fund. This may be supplemented by an issue of university bonds or by a loan from a bank.

If the business is bought outright, it is operated by the alumni association. Profits are earmarked for the university. The alumni corporation has no tax to pay because it makes no profit for itself. The university pays no tax, because it is exempt by law. As for the former owner, he often is rehired to run the business.

Operation as Before

If only the plant or building is bought, operation usually remains in the hands of the former owners or managers. The university merely leases the property back to the management of the business. The cash paid to the business for its property can be used for expansion, for operation or for other investment. The money paid by the business for rent on the property it formerly owned can be deducted for tax purposes. There is no practical change in the operation of the firm except that it gets a tax advantage and some extra cash.

To the university, the deal produces new tax-free income. If it operates the business, directly or through its own non-profit corporation, its earning position usually is good, because it has a tax advantage over private competitors. If it leases the property back to the former owners, the return generally is better than the university could expect through other types of investment, such as Government bonds or private securities.

To the Treasury, the transaction adds up to a dead loss. As long as the business is operated by a private taxpaying corporation, the profits are taxed at 38 per cent. When the business is owned and operated by a university, it goes off the tax rolls.

If the university becomes merely the landlord, with operation of the business remaining in the hands of the former owners, the revenue loss is smaller, but still might be substantial. An extra burden falls on other taxpayers.

Educational Department Store

Colleges in business, as official studies show, are multiplying. According to recent testimony before a House committee, institutions that have gone into business on a large scale include New York University, University of Pennsylvania, Washington University of St. Louis, Union College of Schenectady, N. Y., Yale University, Cornell University and University of Rochester. Here are some specific cases:

A big department store building in Philadelphia, sold to a university, has been leased back to the private management for 23 years at an annual rental of $275,000. A leather company, with assets valued at $35,000,000, has been bought by a nonprofit group that signed over all the earnings to a university.

A railroad freight station and more than 50 business buildings in Missouri are owned by Washington University. Income from these properties is close to $500,000 a year, on which no federal tax is paid.

Schools Not the Only Ones

A retail chain recently sold its real estate, valued at $16,000,000, to Union College in Schenectady. The chain now leases the property from the university. The college, thus, gets a tax-exempt rental income and the chain gets a cut in its income tax because it can deduct the rent it pays.

A spaghetti factory, one of the largest in the country, has been converted into a nonprofit business, with all earnings earmarked for New York University Law School. If it had remained in private hands, the Government would be collecting an income tax of more than $200,000 a year.

These are typical of the tax-saving deals that are worrying Congress, the Treasury and private competitors. Colleges and universities are not alone in this field of tax-exempt business. Foundations of various kinds own businesses that pay no federal taxes. Many churches and charities are in business on a tax-exempt basis.

The problem is how far to go in heading off this trend toward tax-free business. Congress dislikes the idea of taxing money that is to be used for education or charity. But it faces a problem of revenue. It also faces complaints from private business about tax-free competition.

The One Shangri-La

From the Courier-Journal

If the official astrologers of Tibet advise the Dalai Lama to close his country's borders until 1950, far be it from us to disagree. Tibet has been getting along with more or less success since the seventh century without our suggestions.

For all that time it has been one of the classic examples of national isolationism. And though it has relaxed its traditional policy a mite—enough to permit one telegraph connection with India and an occasional exploration visit—it has not responded to the stresses of time. It remains a fantastic outpost of the past.

Nature has helped, of course. There is nothing in Tibet's barren uplands that anybody wanted. Yet who knows, now, what minerals precious to science those high peaks hold, or what strategic weather stations or commanding positions for rocket launchers might be hewn out there?

So the British view seems realistic—that it is no mystic danger that the official astrologers profess to see, but the danger that Tibet may suddenly have become valuable strategically. If this is true, the world's last relic of isolationism has been erased, even though the Tibetans reach back in fear to the only protection they have needed in the past.

Between Book Ends

John Smith to John Hersey

PANORAMA OF AMERICAN LITERATURE, by W. Tasker Witham. (Stephan Daye Press, New York.)

There have been thousands of books on American literature but none on the plan of this one. It presents so many pictures of writers from John Smith to John Hersey and of scenes which inspired literary efforts as to be an album of our writing over nearly three and a half centuries.

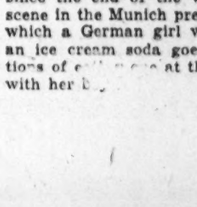

Second, it uses captions for these pictures to give succinct information about the subjects. For example, beside a characteristic photograph of Baltimore's Sage of Hollins street appear these words: "During the '20s H. L. Mencken was known for his biting literary criticism and for his attacks on tradition and stupidity in American life. Now he is better known for his scholarly study 'The American Language.'"

Bronson Alcott

Third, its easily read text, printed in clear type, combines biographical treatment and a running commentary to provide what the author (head of the English department at Hartwick College, Oneonta, N. Y.) calls a panorama.

A good way to sample the work is to look at Prof. Witham's comments on several of the figures who impressed him as he conducted his inventory of our poets and essayists, our novelists and dramatists and story writers. For example, Bronson Alcott (1799-1888), who ranked next to Emerson and Thoreau in the Transcendentalist group at Concord, is described as "an impractical, mystic idealist, more important as an educator and as a conversationalist than as a writer."

Pointing up Alcott's interest in education, Prof. Witham says that while the kindly thinker "had little education himself, his ideas of teaching, based on the simultaneous and harmonious development of the child's physical, intellectual, esthetic and moral natures, influenced ideals of education in England and America."

William Dean Howells

William Dean Howells (1837-1920), author of some 40 novels, is appraised as "the father of American realism." The Howells stories are pretty much neglected today, and few contemporary writers would consider the creator of Silas Lapham a realist. For "he condemned French and Russian literatures for their 'tradition of indecency' and felt that English and American literatures were more true to life for subordinating it." Yet even though Howells avoided "the guilty intrigue, the betrayal, the extreme flirtation as the exceptional thing," still he "made his characters appear real." Certainly he broke from "the stiff, conventional figures of imitative literature."

Much space is given to living writers and among these Thorton Wilder is credited with having "no trace of a formulated style or limited field of interest. His "novels and plays show great variety in mood and setting." They also show erudition, irony and interest in man's spiritual nature. They reflect his "deep interest in eternal problems," his "familiarity with works of great writers from Hebrew prophets," and his "humor which ranges from the faintly ironic to the uproarious."

Wilder's "Our Town," which presents "typical life in an American village," it might be added, is a favorite among American plays which have been presented by French and German actors in translation since the end of the war. A memorable scene in the Munich presentation is that in which a German girl who had never had an ice cream soda goes through the motions of e[illegible] at the corner drugstore with her b[illegible]

WALTER LIPPMANN

Progress in Policy for Europe

THE evolution of United States foreign policy has reached a point where it may be said that a considered general conception can now prevail over improvisation at scattered points all over the globe. It is now possible, I believe, to discern the new pattern of American policy.

It has developed as a result of responsible re-examination of the problem of European reconstruction in relation to the Marshall plan, and of the European political situation, and of American military strategy.

Lippmann

The grand result of all these studies is that it is not possible, nor desirable, nor necessary to treat Western Europe plus western Germany as a military bastion against the expansion of the Soviet power. It is not possible to do this because the Germans cannot be relied upon as allies. It is not desirable to rebuild western Germany as a military arsenal because in the event of war on the Continent the Red Army could easily capture it.

Sea, Air Keys.

Finally, it is not necessary to do it because the effective way to check the expansion of the Soviet power is not on land in continental Europe but by the use of sea and airpower to dominate the heart of Russia itself.

From this it follows that American military policy need not be based on the organization of an anti-Soviet coalition which would have to be subsidized, stiffened and held in line with American money, American troops, and endless intervention in the internal affairs of our allies. American military policy would, on the contrary, be based on the revolutionary development of airpower, which can strike from a distance at the center and bypass the periphery.

Chance to Rebuild.

This alters radically our fundamental relationship to the nations of Europe. To put it bluntly, their protection against the Red Army is not in their fortifications and in their troops, and in our troops, but in our power to strike at the Russian homeland from bases outside the Continent of Europe. Since in the event of war their role is not to be the bridgehead, the aircraft carrier, and therefore the battlefield, they can devote their energies to internal reconstruction and to European economic co-operation.

This conception, which is based on military considerations, is fortified by the conclusion of all the studies which underlie the Marshall plan. They have shown that the restoration of trade between Eastern and Western Europe is necessary both to the West and to the East. Without it Western Europe must undertake a revolutionary change, which could not be achieved in a generation, in the character of its trade. Without it Eastern Europe must pass through a long period of economic stagnation.

Marshall Plan Unifies.

Therefore, despite all that the Communists say against the Marshall plan, despite all that some Americans say about not trading with Eastern Europe, the fact is that the nations on both sides of the Iron Curtain are eagerly and persistently reaching out toward one another. The remarks made by Mr. Ripka, the Czechoslovak Minister of Foreign Trade, reflect the realities.

The Marshall plan is a plan which will unify, which will not divide further, the Continent of Europe and, if it works at all, every European country will participate in it and will benefit from it.

This general pattern of policy which has gradually emerged during the past year will not be confirmed and established until Congress has adopted the Marshall plan and the military policy which is its corollary. But already the new conception has had important practical results.

Thus the idea has been abandoned by all responsible men that western Germany should be formed as a state and that we should make a separate peace with it. We have avoided thus far, and in all probability we shall succeed in avoiding, entanglement as active participants in the Chinese civil war. We have avoided also direct military participation in the Greek civil war.

Growth in Wisdom.

The disposition to intervene in the internal affairs of Great Britain, France and Italy is decidedly less strong than it was in the heyday of the so-called Truman doctrine. There has come also a better understanding and greater wisdom in our dealings with the nations in the Soviet orbit. And we have learned, as is indicated by our conciliatory approach to the problems of the Little Assembly, that the United Nations should not be treated as expendable in the cold war with Russia.

All these things do not indicate a weakening of American policy. They are, on the contrary, evidences of an increasing strength, efficiency and lucidity.

EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

Etiquette of the Marshall Plan

CONGRESS has come together to discuss the reconstruction of Europe with American goods and money. The total proposed by the Administration is something over 16 billion dollars in four years. And no matter how disguised, most of what Congress eventually authorizes will be in the nature of a gift.

Therefore the problem facing our august legislators is less one of politics than of etiquette. And this column is less concerned with the maxims of Machiavelli, Alexander Hamilton and William Jennings Bryan than with the teachings of Emily Post and Dale Carnegie and the rhymed precepts of Eddie Guest. For instance:

Emily Post

If you were going to send flowers to a lady, would you insist on fresh blooms right out of the garden or the florists' ice box, neatly done up with fresh ferns in an impeccably clean package with a silver ribbon? Or would you take the flowers one at a time and finger them while you made up your mind whether the said dame rated two dozen roses or three dozen? Would you take them out of the box and put them back in the counting process, until they had begun to wilt? And, the number once decided, would you then send them off wrapped in a bit of dirty newspaper?

If you did, you would violate all the rules of etiquette and ignore the psychology of successful packaging.

"Dollars Don't Wilt."

The legislators in Washington would kick over the traces at this point. "Nuts!" (I can hear them explode.) "We are not discussing how to make our 'present' to Europe attractive but how to make it as small as possible while remaining effective. Moreover, we are not going to send roses but good hard dollars. Dollars do not wilt with handling.

"Therefore your simile is all wet. What the American Congress is asked to decide is less a matter of courtship than a matter of business. Emily Post does not apply."

I disagree. To me the Marshall plan is essentially an attempt to make friends and influence people. Dale Carnegie is here a greater authority than J. P. Morgan. Nothing will convince me that a political move cannot suffer just as much from dirty finger prints as a first edition.

But for the sake of argument, let us assume that the Marshall plan is not a social gesture but a deal. The members of the Western European family of nations have queued up at Uncle Sam's bank to ask for a reconstruction loan. "And therefore," Congressmen and Senators interrupt, "we, as Uncle Sam's trustees, have the duty of looking into the borrowers' books, their credit records and their real needs."

Public Humiliation.

Quite so. But would you suggest doing all this in public? Would open discussion of the morals, way of life, economic theory and practice of its several customers enable a bank to prosper? Or would it drive away all but desperate clients? And would not even the most bankrupt borrowers—after such handling—receive the ultimate loan with more resentment than gratitude?

I suggest that the United States wants Europe's friendship as much as it wants Europe's reconstruction. To extend our aid in a mean, surly and carping way might defeat the ends we seek.

See Eddie Guest.

While it is true that these European countries have no other banker than Uncle Sam, they have another course of action open. They can set fire to their houses—as Russia and their native Communists are urging. This would ruin them—and might ruin us.

The less pinch-penny analysis of the Marshall plan in Congress, the shorter and fewer the critical speeches, the less shop-worn the final loan and the sooner granted —the more advantageous for the United States.

freedom for which brave men risked their all in the European revolutionary efforts of a century ago."

He also attacked the Soviet Union for opposing the European recovery program and said he could not understand Russian motives "unless it be the old and evil doctrine that the more misery there is in the world, the better it is for revolutionary Communist success, the doctrine of triumph through chaos."

Mayor Runs for 24th Term.

SYMPHONY OF FASHION TICKETS THIS WEEK

Mail Orders for Program Will Be Filled Beginning Thursday.

Tickets for a fashion show to be held Feb. 14 at Kiel Auditorium may be obtained by mail beginning next Thursday from the St. Louis Symphony Society office in the Arcade Building, it was announced today. Proceeds will go to the maintenance fund of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The orchestra and a special corps de ballet will take part in the show, which has been named "Symphony of Fashion." It will include exhibitions of more than 200 women's spring garments made by well-known United States fashion designers. Models, both professional and amateur, will include debutantes and young married women.

Four ballets, representing youth, courtship, marriage and maturity, have been arranged by Mme. Victoria Cassan for the occasion. Music will be selected by Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

After each ballet has been performed, clothing appropriate to the depicted age group will be shown. Included will be designs of St. Louis junior apparel manufacturers, sophisticated dresses made by well-known couturiers, dresses in soft flower colors, and hats. A special collection of jewels will be brought here for the performances.

A special preview of the show will be held at 8:30 p.m., Feb. 13. Invitations to the preview, at which formal dress will be required, have been sent to St. Louis Symphony Orchestra subscribers, members of the St. Louis Fashion group and clothing concern executives. All seats have been reserved for both shows but formal dress will not be required Feb. 14.

CARNEGIE INSTITUTE WINNER NAMED ARTISTS' GUILD JUROR

Zoltan Sepeshy, head of the painting department of Cranbrook Academy of Art, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., has been named a member of the jury for the 1948 Exhibition of Oil Painting and Sculpture of the Artists' Guild of St. Louis, Carl C. Mose, art section chairman, announced today. Sepeshy will replace Ivan LeLorraine Albright, Chicago artist, who is ill.

Sepeshy, born in Hungary, studied in Budapest, Vienna and Paris. He has been winning major prizes in the United States since 1925. His "Marine Still Life" won the $1500 first prize at the annual exhibition of Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, last October. "Morning," another Sepeshy painting, is in the permanent collection of City Art Museum here.

Entries for the Artists' Guild show in which prizes totaling $1200 have been announced, are to be delivered to the Guild, 812 Union boulevard, next Thursday or Friday between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. The competition is open to anyone over 18 years of age living in St. Louis or within 50 miles of the city. The exhibition will open next Sunday and end Feb. 14. Other members of the jury are William S. Schwartz, Chicago artist, and Albin Polasek, Chicago sculptor.

and abroad were constantly rent and riven by policy disputes. These were chiefly mere outer manifestations of the Stalin-Trotsky rivalry. Yet the end result was the temporary crippling of the Communist parties outside the Soviet Union, and a drastic change in the Soviet Union's foreign policy. The Stalin theory of "Socialism in one country" was officially adopted, while the secret police hounded all dissenters to the fitting end of heretics.

No wonder Stalin's health is now a subject of such intense interest; for his death is also considered likely to result in another great change in the direction of Soviet policy. No one is predicting whether the change will be for better or for worse, but all are hoping for the best.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MISS MARY JANE BARTLETT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bartlett, 6150 McPherson avenue, is having seven parties given for her before her marriage Jan. 20 to John Edwin Conrades.

The series began Wednesday with a dessert bridge party given by Miss Janet Dixon at her home, 6157 Waterman boulevard, and continued Saturday with a cocktail party for which the prospective bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Conrades, were host and hostess at their home, 16 Picardy lane, Ladue.

Events this week will start tomorrow night with a bridge party planned by Mrs. E. E. Elzemeyer, 7545 Hoover avenue, Richmond Heights. A dinner will be given Saturday by Mr. Conrades's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Conrades, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Wischmeyer, at the Conrades home, 7390 Westmoreland drive. Mr. and Mrs. Wischmeyer will be best man and matron of honor, respectively, at the wedding.

The last two parties are to be the spinster dinner Sunday night, Jan. 18, with Miss Rosemary Quirk hostess at her home, 6059 McPherson avenue, and the rehearsal dinner the following night in a private dining room at Chase Hotel. This party is to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett.

The ceremony is to take place at 8:30 o'clock in Danforth Chapel of Pilgrim Congregational Church, with a small reception afterward at the Missouri Athletic Club.

March Weddings Planned.

TWO young women, both of whose engagements were announced recently, have chosen dates in the first week of March for their weddings. Miss Elizabeth Reed Miller, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy I. Miller, 7563 Buckingham drive, Clayton, and Leo C. Miller, 7305 Pershing avenue, University City, will be married March 5 at Central Presbyterian Church to Byron A. Roche. The evening ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Benjamin Franklin Hall, and will be followed by a reception at the Winston Churchill apartments.

Miss Miller will have as her matron of honor Mrs. Eugene E. Fitzgibbons, and as bridesmaids, Miss Betty Jean Frost, Miss Doris Walters, Miss Grace Ness of Great Falls, Mont., and Miss Alice von Brunn. Mr. Roche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Roche, 6936 Hi-View place, has not yet completed his list of attendants.

On the following day, Miss Gloria Jean Forester will become the bride of Albert W. Gruer Jr. at a late afternoon ceremony at Webster Groves Baptist Church. An informal reception will follow the ceremony, at which the Rev. Dr. Harold L. Reeder will officiate. The bride-elect whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. Schell Forester, 822 Clark avenue, Webster Groves, will be attended by her sister, Miss Carol Forester, maid of honor, and Mrs. Walter Miller, bridesmaid. Mr. Gruer, whose parents live at 719 East Big Bend road, Webster Groves, has asked Charles W. Armstrong to be his best man, but has not yet chosen his other attendants.

JOHN L. GILSINN FUNERAL TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for John L. Gilsinn, a retired postal employe, will be held at 9 a.m. Wednesday at St. Leo's Catholic Church, 1601 North Twenty-third street. He was 73 years old and died yesterday after a long illness at his home, 2201A Howard street.

Mr. Gilsinn was manager of a branch post office and retired in 1941. He was a member of the St. Vincent de Paul Society and of the De Andreis Council, Knights of Columbus.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Charles E. King, Mrs. Paul Hume and Miss Loretta Gilsinn, and a son, David Gilsinn of Washington, D. C., who is attached to the American embassy in Afghanistan. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS MAYOR WON'T RUN FOR RE-ELECTION

Mayor Brainerd W. LaTourette of Richmond Heights will not be a candidate for renomination in the municipal primary elections in March. He was Mayor since 1932, serving four two-year terms and two four-year terms.

He announced his decision at a meeting of Richmond Heights officials Saturday night. Lee Duggan, city clerk and collector, will seek the nomination for Mayor. Councilmen F. W. Keene, Lester Watson and Frank D. DeBolt will seek renomination.

LaTourette, an attorney, is a former president of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities and served a term as vice president of the state league.

ORCHESTRA STUDENT CONCERTS THIS WEEK

Boy in University City High School Will Be Cello Soloist.

The second program in a student concert series for elementary students will be presented by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, with Vladimir Golschmann conducting, tomorrow and Thursday afternoons at 3 o'clock in the Opera House of Kiel Auditorium.

Soloist for both concerts will be violincellist Leslie Parnas, 15-year-old student of University City High School who will play the first movement from Lalo's Concerto in D Minor.

Tomorrow's concert will open with Schubert's overture to "Rosamunde" and will be followed by the Minuetto and Finale from Haydn's Symphony No. 13, the third movement from the Fourth Symphony by Tschaikowsky, "Holiday for Strings" by David Rose, and "Surrey With the Fringe on Top" from the Rodgers-Hammerstein production "Oklahoma." The program will be concluded with Skilton's "War Dance" from "Suite Primeval."

The "Oklahoma" and Skilton pieces will be replaced in Thursday's program by the Debussy Nocturne No. 1 and "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" by Dukas.

The student concerts are being sponsored for the twenty-fifth year by the Women's Association of the St. Louis Symphony Society.

Parnas has appeared with the St. Louis Little Symphony and last summer was soloist with the Junior Symphony Orchestra of Chautauqua, New York.

again—from durable goods to soft goods. Some of the urgent demand for refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, lamps, etc. has been filled. The January white sales in Philadelphia, Chicago, and New York offer a hint of this. Even though price reductions were small, some stores quickly ran out of stock. Stinted closets and wardrobes and the New Look may make it harder for manufacturers of durable goods to glom on to the consumer dollar.

NEW GROUP PROTESTS U.S.-VATICAN RELATION

Says Tie Violates Principle of Separation of Church and State.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)— A new demand that the post of Ambassador to the Vatican be abolished was voiced today by an organization set up for "maintenance of the American principle of separation of church and state."

The group, which has taken the name Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, called the ambassadorship, held by Myron C. Taylor as personal representative of the President, an "unconstitutional entanglement of a particular church with the American state." It expressed resentment toward "the privileged access to the ear of the state which this relationship creates."

In a "manifesto" setting forth a series of aims, the organization said President Truman last year "assured a Protestant delegation" that the post of envoy to the Vatican would be discontinued at an early date. But, it added:

"The powerful political pressure which the hierarchy is able to bring to bear against the fulfillment of this promise plainly makes it necessary that a strong and determined public opinion shall express itself."

The manifesto declared it no part of the group's purpose to "propagandize the Protestant faith" nor to "oppose the teaching or internal practices of the Roman Catholic Church." It declared it is motivated only by "patriotic and religious concern" for separation of church and state in our government.

Other objectives include: repeal of any state law allowing use of public school money for church schools, to seek reconsideration of Supreme Court decisions upholding use of tax funds for providing parochial school students with free text books and transportation, to fight passage of a law by Congress allowing church schools any part of a federal appropriation for education, and to aid citizens locally in "seeking to protect their public schools from sectarian domination."

The organization is headed by Dr. Edwin McNeill Poteat, president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School. Its manifesto was signed also by president John A. Mackay, of Princeton Theological Seminary; G. Bromley Oxnam, Bishop of Methodist Church, New York area, New York City; president Louie D. Newton, of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Charles Clayton Morrison, former editor of the Christian Century.

ELIZABETH MORSE FUNERAL TO BE IN DE SOTO TOMORROW

Funeral services for Miss Elizabeth Morse, founder and principal of the Morse School of Expression who died Saturday of a heart ailment at the Bernard Nursing Home, 5861 Cates avenue, will be at DeSoto, Mo., tomorrow. Burial will be in the Old Cemetery at DeSoto. She was 79 years old.

Miss Morse founded her school at 457 Boyle avenue, in the Musical Arts Building, in 1907. She retired from active management about 18 months ago, when she became ill. Prior to her ailment, she lived in an apartment at 4254 Olive street, across the street from the school, for 20 years. Among her graduates were persons who achieved national prominence on stage and in radio and the teaching of speech.

She was a charter member of the Society of St. Louis Authors and a member of the Cornelia Green Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She is survived by a brother, Wilkinson C. Morse, Seattle, Wash., and a niece, Mrs. Kurt W. Franz, 13 North Elizabeth avenue, Ferguson, who was associated with Miss Morse at the school.

Program to Supply Free Blood Launched by the Red Cross

First Unit of Nation-Wide Setup Being Dedicated in Rochester, N.Y.—Plan Will Also Provide for Any War Need.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Jan. 12 (AP)—The American Red Cross today launched a nation-wide program to supply life-saving blood and many amazing blood products free to all sick and injured citizens.

The program is an outgrowth of the wartime mobilization of blood which sent millions of pints of blood and plasma overseas, saving untild lives among war casualties.

It gets under way formally with dedication this afternoon of the first unit here of a network of regional and local blood centers to be operated by the Red Cross in co-operation with physicians and hospitals.

Plans call for eventual establishment of about 140 metropolitan centers, with 250 more secondary centers in smaller communities, and several hundred mobile units reaching into rural and suburban areas.

It will be three to five years before all communities can be reached, said Basil O'Connor, national Red Cross president.

Physicians estimate that donations of 3,700,000 pints of blood, which cannot be made synthetically, will be needed annually. This will meet demands for treating the sick and victims of accidents, and begin a supply in case of catastrophe or war. The centers will serve all hospitals.

As in wartime, citizens will be asked to donate blood in a simple and relatively painless procedure. The Red Cross will pay costs of processing and distribution. Patients receiving blood or blood products will pay only the charges by physicians or hospitals for administering it.

Most of the blood, O'Connor said, will be used as whole blood for transfusions for persons who have lost dangerous amounts by hemorrhage from accidents, surgery, childbirth, shock or some diseases.

Dried blood plasma, the straw-colored liquid part of the blood, will be stored as a ready substitute for whole blood. It is particularly valuable in cases of shock or burns, or when whole blood cannot be given quickly or in sufficient amounts. Whole blod can be stored only 18 to 21 days, but then can be made into plasma. Wartime supplies of plasma are expected to be exhausted by July.

Derivatives on products of blood also will play a vital and probably increasingly important role in the program.

Medical authorities predict further discoveries of life-saving or disease-preventing substances from human blood.

The new Rochester center will serve 27 hospitals in 11 counties, and will involve 17 Red Cross chapters. Within the next few months, regional centers will begin operating in Atlanta, Ga.; Stockton, Calif.; Washington, and Louisville, Ky. The Wichita center already is functioning in Wichita, Kan., and will be integrated into the national system on Jan. 16.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, retired surgeon-general of the Navy, is national director of the new project, which was started after consultations with the American Medical Association, American Hospital Association, United States Public Health Service, and the Army, Navy and Veterans' Administration.

For the first year, costs are estimated at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000, increasing with each stage of expansion.

ARKANSAS COURT HELD ILLEGAL; 1750 DIVORCES INVALID

Supreme Court Rules Legislature Lacked Power to Create Tribunal.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 12 (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court today invalidated an estimated 1750 divorces granted here in the last 11 months by holding unconstitutional a 1947 legislative act creating a second division of Pulaski (Little Rock) Chancery Court.

The Supreme Court, in a 5-to-2 decision, that creation of the court by the Legislature not only was unconstitutional but that the actions of the court and the second division chancellor, Mrs. Ruth Hale, who was placed on the bench by the legislative act, did not have the (de facto) standing of accomplished fact.

Chancery officials estimated that at least 1750 divorce petitions have been granted since the law became effective last Feb. 8. Many of them were filed under the 90-day Arkansas divorce law by persons now living outside the state.

The decision today was based on two divorce cases, but Chief Justice Griffin Smith, who wrote the majority opinion, told reporters that its effect would extend to all other acts of Chancellor Hale's court. The dissenting opinion argued only that the acts of her court should have de facto standing.

MERCANTILE-COMMERCE BANK PROFIT $1,546,997 IN 1947

Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. had a net profit of $1,546,997 in 1947, it was shown in the annual report to the stockholders at a meeting today.

In a review of restrictions on bank credit to curb inflation, the report stated "there will be ample credit for all useful purposes, but applications will be more carefully examined than during the years when banks were seeking loans, and the rate of interest will be higher."

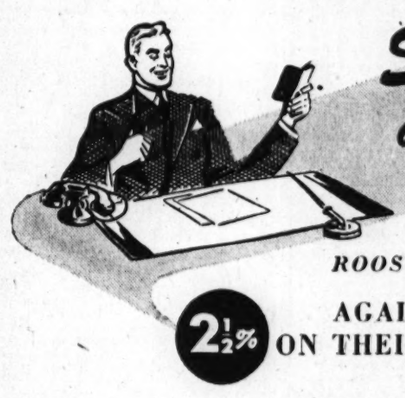

One of the factors cited by the bank as providing a favorable outlook and a needed insurance against depression is "the continuation of thrift habits of many individuals."

Royal Couple in U. S.

Close-Up of Greek Prince and Princess

By Dorothy Doan

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.

THE princess munched a chicken sandwich and looked mildly amused while the prince offered to stick a pin in his finger to prove that royal blood is definitely red—not blue.

PRINCESS IRENE . . . LOOKED AMUSED.

Prince Peter, third in line for the Greek throne, and Princess Irene, nis Russian-born, Paris-bred wife, are perfectly willing to stick pins in themselves to prove that Greek royalty is not living off the fat of the land while American housewives save bacon drippings for Greece.

In fact, the prince says frankly he's in the United States to turn an honest dollar from a five-months' lecture tour of principal American cities.

She honestly wanted a hot dog, which she ate shortly thereafter at a stand on Times Square. She got to Times Square by subway and the man hanging on the strap next to her didn't know he was standing next to Greek royalty.

BUT LEST we deceive ourselves, the royal couple are not that hard up. The prince is an anthropologist and he viewed this excursion in democracy with the same scientific approach that he observed polyandry in Tibet.

At luncheon, the prince explained candidly why he is an anthropologist which also explains what it's like to be a prince or the wife of a prince.

This is what he said:

"We've never been allowed to go in for politics. So mostly we went into the military. (His cousin Prince Philip, husband of British Princess Elizabeth is in the Navy. Prince Peter just finished nine years in the Greek army.)

"But now the military is mixed up with politics, so that's out."

HE EXPLAINED that some princes had settled on navigation. Others had become explorers. His mother became a psychoanalyst, so he tempered this curiosity about the human specie by taking up anthropology.

Prince Peter is a scholarly young man in his early thirties. But he chats easily with an Oxford accent. He's tall, sandy-complexioned, with blue eyes and a casual, unpressed look. When he drops things he looks sheepish.

Not so the princess. Irene grew up in Paris where she met Peter some seven years ago. Everything she says is intense and final. She never makes a false move. She has red hair, a clothes-horse figure, and she said at luncheon that any woman who lets herself get fat is stupid.

HER CLOTHES are chosen with faultless taste. For the prince's news conference, lunch and the trek around Manhattan she wore a suit that was elegant but not chi-chi.

It was a black and gray small check with a black velvet chesterfield collar. The blouse underneath was sheer because she thinks "America is overheated."

Yes, she had the new look in that the coat was nipped in at the waist and long enough to look well-rounded over the hips. The skirt was long but not too long, for the royal limbs are something to behold.

She is shrewd without being a shrew, and being beautiful, lecture audiences probably will look at the princess while the prince makes a scholarly appraisal of "Greece—its place in the world today."

IT CAN BE TOLD that the princess has a wardrobe by Balenciaga and some picture hats, conservatively a mile wide, but American taxpayers are not paying for the hats because the prince can't draw on the Greek treasury where our funds are going.

As we were leaving, the prince asked the princess:

"Shall I go with you to Times Square?"

"No," said the princess, "you've got to meet the archbishop."

Meanwhile the princess' maid did the royal wash in the bathroom and hung it on a string tied around the shower rod and a hook.

Winter Vacationists

By Christopher Billopp

SO the Joneses are setting out for the sunny south on a winter vacation. You don't know where the money comes from, but the Joneses somehow always manage to do these things.

Well, at any rate, you are glad you haven't had to struggle to get accommodations for the trip down. And, from what people tell you, there is even greater difficulty engaging accommodations for the trip back.

It may be all right for the Joneses, but you wouldn't relish contending with the crowds in the hotels. And it will cost them a pretty penny, too. As for you, you can think of many better ways of spending your money.

PEOPLE SPEAK of "the sunny south." But, after all, there is no guarantee against rain. Then you have been told of occasional unseasonable weather there when the thermometer gets down around freezing. And, to make matters worse, they are not really prepared for it.

Bathing in the ocean in midwinter sounds very nice. However, nobody mentions sunburn and similar annoyances which probably are quite as bad as they are farther north in summer. And, very likely, after a few weeks the Joneses will find the life monotonous and wish they were back at home.

WHEN ALL is said and done, even the facilities of the most luxurious hotel are not equal to the humble comforts of home. It's hard to find any privacy or even a quiet place to read or write letters without being interrupted by somebody asking you to make a fourth at cards or join them on some outing.

So, on the whole, there is no reason to envy the Joneses and wish you were in their places. That is, except the inescapable fact that, while they are in the sunny south, they are going to escape a lot of nasty ice, sleet and snow.

What Am I Saying!

ALL politicians, they say, have three hats—the one they wear, the one they throw into the ring, and the one they talk through. Which leads me to the observation that bad candidates are elected by good citizens who don't vote. FRANK MORGAN.

NEBRASKA PRISON BUILDING SWEPT BY FIRE

Smoke rolls skyward as flames destroy a section of an old building at the Nebraska state prison at Lincoln, after fire of undetermined origin broke out in a furniture shop yesterday. Guards maintained patrols of the walls and planes circled overhead to prevent a possible break, but prisoners remained orderly and helped firemen combat the blaze. The building recently had been condemned as a fire hazard. Loss was estimated at $40,000.

Broadway Elegy

RESOLVED: To cut my drinking down a bit
And let the nags pursue their merry way,
You have to have your health to make a hit
And sink some cabbage for a rainy day.
I'm going to try and get a lot more sleep,
I've even thawt that I might read a book,
Those bags beneath my eyes are pretty deep
(Which happens when you Leap before you Look).

Now, as for love, my record is a mess,
No hits, no runs, but loads and loads of errors,
This Cupid guy brings some birds happiness,

So, Dreamy-Boo, though I may live to rue it—
I'll give you up—before you beat me to it!

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE P-237: Flossie D., aged 20, is a college senior. "Dr. Crane, you have said that this is an age where consumer surveys are in vogue," she began. "If progressive business concerns try to find out the attitude of the customer, why wouldn't it be a good idea to do the same thing in high school and college? Why don't the students rate their professors each year to see if the teachers put them to sleep or inspire them to read further in the field? Students soon get the number of their profs, you know. We know the lazy ones and the poor speakers. Would you be in favor of having students rate their professors?"

A FEW YEARS AGO at a university in Chicago, this very question was hotly debated. The motion was finally tabled on the ground that "students are incompetent to judge effective teaching."

Do you believe that? I certainly do not! On the contrary, I am entirely in agreement with Flossie's viewpoint. Those professors who tabled that motion were simply scared. They knew they weren't doing their best.

Students quickly learn the names of the professors who put them to sleep by dull, dry lectures. And no such instructor is fit to be in any high school or college factulty! He should go back to school himself and learn the first principles of public speaking, or else get out! Public speaking ability is the first requisite of effective teaching, for teaching is simply "salesmanship" where the commodity is "ideas" instead of vacuum cleaners, insurance or automobiles.

A GOOD SLICE of our taxes go into the schools, so we ought to make sure our children get our money's worth. Moreover, students of high school and college age are far smarter than their professors may often think.

They can't be bribed with high grades into thinking an incompetent teacher is a topnotcher. Oh, they may smile sweetly while in his presence, but they'll tell the truth about him in later private interviews.

If teachers object to being rated by their "consumers" who are the students, there must be a very good reason! But it may not be what the professors would like to have people believe.

Thanks to the excellent suggestions of a Michigan science teacher, H. L. Connelly, I have constructed a "Rating Scale for Teachers." Send a 3-cent stamped envelope, plus a dime, for your copy. Be sure your school board members and principals have a copy. Write to me in care of the Post-Dispatch.

GIN RUMMY—Game of Many Variations

Famous Card Expert Begins Series of Articles on How to Play It

By Oswald Jacoby

IN starting to write a column on gin rummy, I am faced with an unusual situation. The game is intensely popular, but in its rapid growth numerous variations have developed in different cities, and in fact in different parts of the same city. In my book on the game I recognized this fact and prepared a code of laws that covers all these variations.

It is my intention eventually to discuss them all thoroughly, but as a starter I am faced with another situation. Many of you readers will never have played even one game of gin rummy but would like to learn. So, I intend to devote my early articles of this series to beginners only. If you already play gin, I trust you will read them and bear with me until I get around to stuff that will prove of more interest to you.

Gin rummy is primarily a two-handed game, so let's assume that you and I are going to play. To start with we take a standard deck of 52 cards and cut for deal. The player cutting low deals the first hand. Ace is low, duece next, and so on up to the king, which is high. If we both cut cards of the same rank, the tie is broken by ranking the suits as follows: clubs, diamonds, hearts and spades (high). Except for the cut all suits rank alike.

Suppose you cut low. Now you shuffle the cards, I cut them and you deal the top card to me, the next to yourself and continue until we each have ten. The twenty-first card is then placed face up in the center of the table and becomes the up-card. The remaining cards are placed next to it face down and become the stock.

If I wish, I may take the up-card into my hand. This gives me 11 cards, and I must discard one of them to get back to my proper number—ten. Discarding is simple. I take one of the cards from my hand and place it face up next to the stock. Later on, there will be more discards; and each discard is placed on top of the previous one.

MANY PEOPLE FIND GIN RUMMY A FASCINATING GAME.

If I don't want the up-card I refuse it by saying "No" or otherwise indicating that I don't want it. In this case you have the right to take it. If you do, you discard some other card.

If we both refuse the up-card, it is up to me as the non-dealer to begin play by drawing the top card from the stock and adding it to my hand. I now have 11 cards and discard one, placing it face up on top of the up-card.

The same card may not be used as part of two matched groups. Thus, if you hold the 8-7-6 of spades, the six of hearts and six of diamonds you may use the spade six in one of the two groups only. You may, of course, wait until the end of the hand to decide which one. If you draw the nine of spades you will use the spade six with the other two sixes, as your 9-8-7 of spades will form another matched set; if you draw the six of clubs, you will use the spade six in the sequence and the other three sixes as a matched set.

In drawing and discarding you will endeavor to match as many cards as possible, at the same time paying attention to what your opponent is doing. Eventually one of you will terminate play by knocking.

The general object of the play in gin rummy is the same as in most other games. You want to win points. In order to win points you endeavor to match up as many of your cards as possible in matched sets and sequences.

A matched set consists of three or four cards of the same rank, such as four kings, three jacks, etc. A matched sequence consists of three or more cards of the same suit in unbroken order of rank, such as the king-queen-jack of spades or the six-five-four-three of hearts. The cards in each suit rank in the order K-Q-J-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-A.

At the end of any hand that is played to a decision (some hands result in a standoff) your unmatched cards will be counted against you while your matched cards will not be counted at all. Each unmatched spot card is counted at its pip value; an ace counts one point, a deuce two points, a threespot three points, etc. All picture cards are counted at 10 points each.

This operation completes my play and it is your turn to make your play.

You have your choice between taking my discard or the top card of the stock. In either case you put the card in your hand and then make a discard.

There is an important difference here. When you draw from the stock you may discard that card, but when you take the top card of the discard pile you may not discard it to complete that play. You must discard one of your other 10 cards.

In general this practice of drawing and discarding continues until the hand ends.

In the next article (Wednesday) I am going to discuss the general object of the game.

Compromise Necessary in Family Life

By Angelo Patri

MEMBERS of a family have to learn to co-operate if anybody in the family is to have peace, if the atmosphere of the home is to be pleasant. There always is some friction where a group live in close contact, such as all families must do, but with a little thoughtfulness, a little consideration for one another, it is reduced to the vanishing point.

When a young person reaches the age of reason, which should be somewhere in his later teens and early twenties, he should be conscious of the wishes, the feelings and the needs of the older members of the family and modify his wishes, feelings and needs accordingly.

JUST MODIFY THEM. Nobody asks that he completely change them, only that he modify them to where it is possible for the whole family to live in peace and some degree of comfort together.

The temperature of the rooms often causes argument. Young people are likely to want the place cooler than their elders find comfortable. Father roars, "Shut that door, that window. Think this is a barn, or what?" Now the young person can, if he wants to, create a fine uproar. The stage is all set. If he is really mature, really well brought up, he will say nothing beyond, "Oh, I'm sorry. I forgot you didn't like it open," and shut out the breeze.

AND ABOUT the matter of evening hours. The elders go to bed early because they need to. They need rest, sleep and the quiet of a restful night to fit them for the day's work ahead. They have not forgotten that they once liked to be out of a night and have the fun of dancing and eating sweets with a group of other youngsters. But that time has gone by for them and, while they have every sympathy with the young people, they do need their sleep, sleep without interruption. They do need to go to sleep without worrying about the homecoming of the youngsters.

There must be compromise and adjustment between these two sides of family life. The elders must be willing to go halfway with the youngsters, and the latter must do their full share to adjust to the family's situation.

Argument for Military Training

By Dr. Daniel A. Poling

AFTER months of intensive study, the President's Advisory Commission on Universal Training, composed of eight men and one woman, reached a unanimous conclusion — that an adequate program of defense for America is definitely a program toward peace.

An "adequate program" is first of all mental, moral and spiritual. A religious faith is a mightier bulwark for a people than armies and fleets. But when physical defenses are undergirded by such a faith, and when we seek for ourselves no security we would share, then the bulwarks are doubly strong. The only security for any nation today is world security. Just as war could not be isolated, so peace cannot be. Peace is for individuals, and must become an inner experience nationally and internationally, before it can be permanently a world reality.

THE FOUNDING FATHERS believed and practiced religious faith. To them, "In God We Trust" was more than a trademark upon a coin. To us, if we would win the peace for which so many have died, that faith must again become dynamic.

America herself is a faith, but always a marching faith. It is written in the Scriptures, "Faith without works is dead," and universal military training as recommended will help in our time to relate faith to reality.

To us who constituted the President's commission, the unanimous report was a momentous "God helping us, we can do no other" conclusion. We were a free commission. We came together representing many viewpoints. In the second session, Chairman Karl Compton said, "From these initial discussions, it would seem that we may bring in nine reports!"

FOUR COMMISSIONERS had suggested to the President that he might wish to withdraw his invitation, since they themselves were undecided and uncertain. One commissioner had previously signed an adverse resolution. Objectively and without pressure from any department of government or from any public official, the commissioners conducted the hearings, considered the evidence, and reached the verdict. Whatever the final action of Congress, were were guided by one purpose alone—to promote the security of our country and in so doing to help make the world secure; to strengthen the United Nations and thus to advance a just and an enduring peace.

In a later article or two I shall explain why I, as a member of that commission, as a clergyman, as an American, believe that universal military training can render a service to youth, to national defense, and to the cause of world peace.

Raspberry Apple Whip

One package raspberry flavor gelatin, one cup boiling water, one cup cold water, one-half cup strained applesauce (15-ounce container baby food applesauce), one-fourth cup cream, whipped.

Add the package of gelatin to the boiling water, stirring until completely dissolved; stir in cold water. Pour one cup of the mixture into individual molds, and chill until firm. Chill remaining gelatin until it begins to thicken, add applesauce and whip or beat with rotary beater until frothy. Fold in whipped cream and pour on top of clear gelatin which should be firm by this time. Chill until firm. Unmold by dipping in warm water and loosening with sharp edge of small pointed knife. Four to six servings.

There is economy. And then there's the big economical family package holding five times as much as you'll ever use.

REJUVENATING WINDOW SHADES.

If you happen to be saving your pennies in the hope of some day owning a whole pound of golden butter, try rejuvenating your old dirty, faded window shades instead of buying new ones.

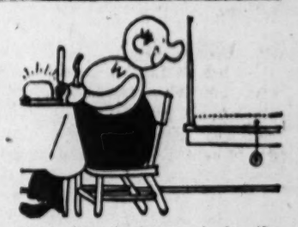

Cloth window shades can be washed, painted or turned upside down on the rollers if they are faded and torn at the bottom.

Washing a shade is done with warm water and a little soap. Take the shade down and unroll it (a brilliant piece of advice). Leave it unrolled after washing until dry.

There are special paints for shades and these will not crack easily. The shade should be washed first and allowed to dry before brushing or spraying on the paint.

Taking a shade off the roller so it can be turned upside down is child's play. The shade is held on the roller by little staples. Pry these off and then trim off the end of the cloth where the staples have left holes.

Now take the opposite end of the shade and cut off the hem with the stick of wood inside. Fold about one half inch of the shade under and tack this to the roller with staples or tacks the same size as were used originally. Fold the unfaded end over the stick and sew the hem. Cut a hole for the shade string and the pound of butter is yours—almost.

For best results in surface cooking, follow these 3 tips...
1. Use pots and pans with flat bottoms which cover the heating unit. Straight sides are preferred.
2. Cut fruits and vegetables in pieces of uniform size. Steam in as little water as possible. Keep covered while cooking.
3. Lower heat as soon as foods reach the steaming point.

Try this easy, delicious Bacon and Bean Rarebit
What you need:
½ cup diced bacon
2 tbs. finely minced onion
2 cups canned baked beans
1 cup condensed tomato soup or tomato puree
1 tsp. dry mustard
2 tsps. Worcestershire Sauce
½ cup minced American Cheese

How you do it:
Place the bacon and the onion in a saucepan on the small surface unit of your electric range. Cook on "medium" heat until golden brown. Add the beans, tomato soup or puree and the seasonings. When the mixture is heated thoroughly, turn the switch to "low." Add the cheese. Stir occasionally until cheese is melted. Serve on top of thin slices of toast or on toasted crackers. Serves 4 to 6.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

THERE is a young man, a very close friend of our family, about whom we are all much concerned. He is 31, has been married six years, has a boy age four. The marriage took place while he was in the service. He has a job and an excellent one, but is allowed by his wife only a very small amount of spending money. She takes over his pay check as soon as he brings it home. Whenever we see them together she is continually nagging him, and he tells us this goes on also at home, without ceasing. He once tried to leave her but the child cried and he finally returned for his sake. The wife will not allow this child to see the paternal grandparents nor will she allow her husband to visit them either. What do you think about this?

FAMILY FRIEND.

What I think is that family friends should stay out of the picture and allow this young man to work out his own salvation. If he is so mousey that he can't stand up for himself and actually prefers being pushed around to doing anything about it—that's up to him. But, if he has any loyalty at all he should not be guilty of complaining about his wife to any outsider. I am getting a little weary of people who have to come complaining about other people's affairs. Most of us are kept on a pretty steady 24 hour job minding our own if we really mind them!

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM WRITING YOU concerning my niece who is 12 years old. Her mother lets her have boy friends, and I do not approve of this at all. They claim I am dumb and old fashioned. How old do you think a girl should be before she should be allowed to go out alone with boy friends? MRS. M.

If by "boy friends" you mean this 12 year old is going to movies, etc. and on single dates with boys and thinks of them in terms of boy friends and going steady, etc., then her mother is making a great mistake. She is allowing her daughter to grow up too fast, and by the time she is 18 everyone will give a girl who has been seen around so many years, credit for being much older than she really is. And what gal craves that? She should have friends, of course, among boys as well as girls, go to mixed parties, have fun with the crowd. But dating within the group should wait till high school age and going steady until she has finished high school and is sufficiently mature to begin looking toward marriage. I don't think you are old fashioned in the least to feel as you do concerning the matter. I have a leaflet which will answer your questions which I'll be glad to send if you will mail me a stamped, self addressed envelope and ask for my "Sub-deb leaflet."

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM NO "WOMAN HATER" but certainly it has been proved to me that very little appreciation of a man's courtesy is shown by the women. Many a time I have given up my seat to a woman, or stood aside to let her have the one just vacated, only to have no polite "Thank you" uttered, but daggers looked at me instead, as much as to say "You shouldn't have a seat in the first place." Are we men the only ones supposed to have manners? If you think it's the men who do all the shin kicking just try to board a bus bound for East St. Louis some evening.

IN ANSWER TO "H.M.H.": Either you gave your girl friend an unusually hard wallop with the basketball and she is still nursing her wounds and doesn't feel conversational, or else she is the unforgivingest gal in town. Try once more to make peace, then give it up as a bad job. If she wants to be friends again let her make the next move, you have really done your part.

IN ANSWER TO "Tim": It is difficult I know to get your faith back in human nature once you have experienced the blow you have lately received. But try to think that you simply fallen in with a group of people who are the exception rather than the rule, get away from them if possible, and try not to allow this to make you suspicious and unhappy—and resolve yourself never to become like them.

IN ANSWER TO "Clarabel": If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I'll mail you both my Stork Shower and my Showers for the Bride. As to naming the baby I have a leaflet of "Names for Boys and Girls" which I am sure will give you more than enough to think over and choose from.

IN ANSWER TO "J. Johnny": If you mean should you go up to a perfectly strange girl the answer is "No." If you mean how should you ask a girl you know to dance or to skate with you simply ask her if she would like to have this dance, or skate this number. Nothing to scare you to death about that, is there?

IN ANSWER TO "Wondering": You know perfectly well the only right thing for you to do is to stop seeing him. What possible justification can you have for breaking up another woman's home?

IN ANSWER TO "Two Dumb-bells": Sorry, yours is a legal question and I am not qualified to answer it. Consult a lawyer or the Free Legal Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts building.

IN ANSWER TO "Jas.": If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I'll mail you my "Names for Boys and Girls."

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: I recently injured my third finger, left hand, in an accident. As a result, I never again will be able to wear my wedding and engagement rings on that finger. On which finger of what hand may I properly wear them now?

Answer: Notwithstanding the fact that the right hand indicates one who is widowed (or divorced), in your case the third finger of your right hand would look better than the second finger of your injured hand.

DEAR MRS. POST: It is customary at our weddings to have a reception preceding the ceremony and then a dinner afterwards for the immediate families. I would like to ask many friends and relatives to the reception and to the ceremony afterwards, but the problem is how can I word my invitations so that they will leave after the ceremony and not stay on for the dinner.

Answer: I never have heard of this custom before, but would suggest that you word your invitations to the reception and the ceremony which follows. Those few expected for dinner would have to receive special messages telling them that dinner will follow later. The only way you can be sure that all of the guests will not linger on and on after the ceremony would be for you and the bridegroom to leave immediately after the ceremony, thus ending the wedding. You then return later for the dinner.

Spring Styles Call for Slim Figures

'It Will Take Plenty of Dieting to Achieve Look That Designers Intended When They Created New Silhouette'—Skirts Are Very Full

By Sylvia Stiles

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.

AS fashion writers and editors from all parts of the country gather here today for the semi-annual inspection of women's fashions arranged in a series of showings by the New York Dress Institute, there is approval and praise of the "new look" as it is interpreted for spring, although some are adding "but not for me."

Those very full skirts, circling from the waistband to ripple extravagantly at the hemline; built-out hiplines with generous pads in the linings of jackets, huge sashes that tie in bouffant bows at the back of printed dresses and the limp shoulder theme are among the advancing trends calling for youthful, slender figures that too often are lacking. It will take plenty of dieting and exercise for many to achieve the look that the designers intended when they created these latest silhouettes.

Skirt lengths aren't likely to cause as much protest as they did last fall. Several of the designers show their dresses at 10 inches from the floor but the majority have compromised at 13 inches—a length which everyone here agrees is universally becoming. While moderation is the rule when it comes to length, extremes are evident in the matter of width. Most of the designers are recommending the very full skirt, either circular or gored, but there are some sensatoinal hobble skirts in the collections. Wrapped themes, usually allied with short flaring capes, vary the silhouette. Regardless of its width, the hemline seems to be a focal point of interest. There is no moderation about it.

Petticoats that rustle as the wearer walks indicate that the sound of a dress is part of its interest for spring. Some of these petticoats peep below the hemline, others make up for their lack of appearance by their crisp crinkle. Gay taffeta and starched eyelet embroidery are used extensively. Flounces and ruffled tiers are other means of emphasizing the importance of skirts. Tricky yoke effects appear both on blouses and skirts while pleated godets contribute interest.

Briefly here are some other fashion highlights to consider in the selection of a spring wardrobe:

Capes and capelets instead of coats — some of them circular, others hanging in pleats from shoulder yokes.

Suspender skirts to be worn with contrasting blouses.

Collars that are high, wide and extremely girlish in their design, some having huge bows tied under the chin.

Throughout the next few days, New York designers will promenade different versions of these and other trends for the consideration of the visiting newspaper women. The styles they are showing have been purchased by many of the retail stores but their general acceptance is yet to be determined. All of them definitely are representative of a new era—and many hope before this semi-annual Press Week has ended there will be some apt term to take the place of the quite expressive but definitely overworked "New Look."

A MODIFIED VERSION OF THE "NEW LOOK" DESIGNED BY WILLIAM BASS TO SUIT ANY WOMAN'S FIGURE HAS SKIRT FULLNESS PROVIDED BY WIDENING TUCKS. THE FABRIC IS SOFT BEIGE WOOL, THE JACKET HAVING SMOOTH SHOULDERS AND ROUNDED HIPLINE.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

DEFEATING the three no trump contract in today's deal required exceptionally keen defense.

South, dealer.

NORTH: ♠632 ♥10943 ♦KQJ8 ♣K5

WEST: ♠K1074 ♥Q5 ♦942 ♣Q1086

EAST: ♠Q98 ♥KJ876 ♦7653 ♣7

SOUTH: ♠AJ5 ♥A2 ♦A10 ♣AJ9432

The bidding:

South.	West.	North.	East.
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the spade four and declarer captured East's queen with the ace. A low club was now led to the king and a club returned. When East showed out, discarding the eight of hearts, South passed the trick to West, since he would have to give up two clubs in any event to clear the suit.

West observed his partner's heart signal by laying down the queen—and it was at this point that the fate of the contract hung in the balance. If East had followed suit with a low heart, South's course would have been clear—simply to duck, and in that way keep West on lead. Then, since West started with only two hearts, it would not matter that the ace was knocked out on the next round. Declarer could concede another club trick and soon claim his contract.

East, however, sizing up the situation perfectly, did not permit his partner to be kept on lead with the heart queen. He overtook with the heart king! He was well aware that this play risked the establishment of a second heart trick for declarer, but he felt sure the timing advantage it gave the defense would overbalance any defect!

East was right! When the heart king was put up on the queen, declarer was helpless. The best he could do was win with the ace and clear his club suit, in the hope that West had no more hearts. West, however, did have another valuable heart, and when East got in with the jack, the spade return defeated the contract two tricks.

Quiz on Good Manners for Boys

By Elinor Williams

HERE'S a quick quiz on good manners for boys. What's your score?

1. Should you rise when introduced? Yes. Rise when you are introduced, whether you're meeting an older man or woman or a boy and girl your own age.

2. Who offers his hand first? Men always shake hands when introduced. When you are introduced to a girl or a woman wait for her to extend her hand. If she doesn't, omit the hand-shake, merely saying, "How do you do?" to acknowledge the introduction.

3. How far ahead of time should you ask a girl for a date? Several days ahead, if possible, for movie dates and basketball or record dances; two weeks or more in advance for a big dance, then telephone her (or write, if you go to school away from home) to remind her of the dance, so she'll know you haven't forgotten your invitation and are still planning to go.

4. Who leaves the bus, streetcar or train first—a boy or the girl he escorts? The boy descends first, so he can help the girl alight. This is also the correct thing to do when escorting your mother, sister or a girl friend of the family.

5. When a girl invites a boy to a dance, who pays the expenses? The girl pays for the tickets; the boy provides a corsage if necessary and makes arrangements for transportation unless the girl knows somebody who has space in his car for another couple.

6. How do you refuse a second offer of food at the table? Simply by saying, "No, thank you" or "no, thanks; it's delicious, but I've had enough." Anything else is bad manners.

7. What's the correct attire for informal social doings in the evening—dates, school affairs, etc.? A suit, shirt and tie. Or, sometimes, a sports jacket, harmonizing slacks, shirt and tie.

THESE BOYS ASKED FOR A DATE TWO WEEKS IN ADVANCE OF THE PARTY.

Tomatoes With Green Pepper and Onion

Two tablespoons butter or fortified margarine; two-thirds cup thinly sliced, halved onion rings (one medium-sized onion); two-thirds cup thin strips green pepper; one medium-size green pepper; one No. 2 can (2¼-2½ cups) tomatoes; two tablespoons all-purpose flour; one and one-fourth teaspoons salt; one-eighth to one-fourth teaspoon pepper; one teaspoon sugar.

Melt butter or margarine over low heat; add onion rings and break apart with wooden spoon. Add green pepper and cook, stirring occasionally, until partly tender, about 10 minutes. Blend about one-third cup tomato juice with the flour until entirely smooth. Add with remaining tomatoes salt, pepper and sugar to onion and green pepper. Turn heat to medium and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly and continue to cook from three to five minutes more. Serve over meat loaf or in sauce dishes if desired. Four to six servings.

Drinking Gals Get a Blast From Elsie

By Elsie Robinson

AS a newspaper woman I'm not fussy but I admit these drinking females of today rile me. It must be mighty discouraging for a man to discover a row of slightly deflated zeppelins resting on his favorite stools. For that's how you look from the rear, sweetie, honest it is.

Of course your congealed livers and perforated kidneys are your own concern. Maybe I shouldn't mention them. But you waste such a lot of good undertaker time that healthy guys who die of natural causes don't get a chance. And you ain't—honest you ain't—pleasant to have around even before they tote you off in the Long Basket.

BUT ALL OF THAT IS, of course, up to you, sweetheart. Your kidneys may not matter, but America is at stake. The part that concerns me and a few million other mothers is the family you leave at home.

The teen-age boys and girls you leave roaming the streets after school while you are gargling at some boozerie. The babies who die of pneumonia in some unheated room while you belly up to some bar. The little tads you leave shivering, crying and terrified in some car until 2 a.m. while you and the Old Man crook your elbows. The helpless ones who burn to death or are eaten by rats in some firetrap while you are gargling your tenth old-fashioned.

YES, IT'S A filthy, tragic picture. I have read the stately phrases with which judges, club women and society leaders have condemned it. But I do not think such booze tramps deserve all that lace work. I think they deserve the language they'd have gotten when America was new and Americans talked straight.

In my mind—

Without apologies or patty-cake—

They stink.

Take My Word for It

By Frank Colby

Words to Watch.

OVERHEARD on a bus: "And all he gave me for Christmas was a bottle of per-FUME." The word perfume has two pronunciations. In best usage the noun is accented on the first syllable, as, a bottle of PER-fume. The verb is accented on the second syllable, as, the rose perFUMES the air.

Overheard in a furniture store: "I want to see something in a refractory table." Refractory is the wrong word; it means "obstinate, unmanageable," which hardly describes a table anyone would want. What the shopper wanted to see is a refectory table, a kind of extension-type dining table. Pronounce it: ree-FEK-tory.

Overheard on a radio commentation: "His answer was a little too rye-balled to be repeated on the radio." The word the broadcaster used is ribald, "coarse, offensive, obscene." He used it correctly, but he should not have rhymed it with "high-balled." The proper rhyme is with "dribbled, scribbled." Correct pronunciation: RIB-ld.

Watch the word quantity. It is a common fault to omit the first "t," as "KWAN-uh-tee.' Be sure to sound boh "t's" plainly' thus: KWAHN-ti-tee. Also, be sure to sound both "t's' in identity, thus: eye-DEN-ti-tee.

HOW RICH IS AMERICA?

How rich is America? As rich as the hungry people of the world think we are? As rich as we ourselves think we are?

Our wealth goes far beyond what we or others estimate it to be. It can't be measured in the number of automobiles we produce or counted in the bushels of wheat we grow. Our wealth is our people: creative men and women of good-will!

They are beyond statistics and budgets and all theoretical calculations. They make America!

There is Drew Pearson. No one would call that battle-scarred newsman a wistful visionary. Yet when he saw the politicos sputtering into a dangerous slowdown on the problem of helping to feed a starving Europe, he wrote a letter on October 11th, made a nationwide broadcast the following day and, within two months, sailed with the first of four shiploads of food!

By now the whole world knows the story of the Friendship Train. But let us not forget that it was Pearson who, single-handed, cut through a tangle of red tape and filled 266 box cars with a nation's generosity. He generated a wave of good-fellowship that made America's great railroads produce scarce box cars as if by magic. The "wave" reached hard-boiled teamsters who had fought against a forty-hour week but worked a twenty-four-hour day for Pearson. American shipping companies jointly provided four ships; American airlines collaborated to furnish planes which flew pamphlets of hope and the promise of succor to desperate people.

The spirit stimulated by this crusading newsman spread to Hawaii, where planters rushed a plane load of sugar. It reached across to France, where dock workers stopped squabbling long enough to unload the Friend Ship. From the Atlantic to the frontier of Yugoslavia packages were welcomed by hungry children. One man had initiated more good-will in two months than scores of politicians and billions of dollars could make or unmake in years.

Because Pearson is a working newsman himself, press and radio comments have underplayed his role in the story. He knew that he would get small credit for what he did. And that is as he would want it. But as we see it, projects like the Friendship Train do not spring full-blown from the soil. Someone has to strike the spark, interest others, organize them for fast work; someone has to fight off the Cassandras who say it can't be done.

All his life Drew Pearson has had to get things done. The son of a Quaker minister, he earned his own way as a boy by trapping small game. He became a traveling lecturer and broadened his horizons. At the end of World War I he went overseas for the American Friends Service Committee and spent two years doing relief work in the Balkans. In Yugoslavia they named a town, Pearsonavatz, to honor him and his good work. Pearson never forgot the starvation and agony that are the backwash of war. That memory and a big, bold heart are what launched the Friendship Train. And it's that kind of generous, spontaneous urge to do the right thing that is our greatest national resource.

It is Americans like Drew Pearson and the many who made the Friendship Train possible who give our country its prestige in the world and enrich it beyond all calculation.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

OYSTERS are a rich source of nutritionally necessary minerals—iron, copper, manganese and the vitamins A, B, C, D and G, and also protein and glycogen. One Government scientist connected with the Bureau of Fisheries says "Oysters are more nearly balanced nutritionally than possibly any other single food—resembling milk in this respect. And when oysters are cooked in milk as in a cream soup or stew, we can be sure the combination is a most nutritious one, for it permits the formation of rich red blood and good growth, reproduction and lactation."

Pan Fried Oysters.

Allow one pint oysters for three or four servings. Drain the oysters thoroughly and dry lightly between two towels or sheets of paper toweling to remove as much moisture as possible. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; then dip in beaten egg mixed with one tablespoon water, roll in fine cracker or break crumbs. Heat enough shortening in a shallow skillet to one-fourth inch depth. Fry oysters until delicately browned on both sides. Serve on hot platter with lemon slices and garnish of cress.

Oyster Bisque.

One-third cup butter, one slice onion, one-third cup flour, one quart milk, two stalks celery, sprig parsley, bay leaf, small piece, one pint oysters, two teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, chopped parsley or paprika.

Melt butter in top of double boiler, add onion and saute, blend in flour, add milk slowly, stirring constantly to keep smooth. Cook until sauce boils and thickens. Add celery, parsley, bay leaf. Place over hot water. Cover and continue cooking 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove onion, celery, parsley and bay leaf and discard. Meanwhile look over oysters and remove any pieces of shell. Drain juice from oysters and save. Chop oysters, add juice and heat slowly to boiling point. Add seasonings and oysters to white sauce and heat. Serve immediately with chopped parsley or paprika. Serves six.

Low Cost Menus.

TUESDAY.

Breakfast — Stewed prunes, French toast with butter and powdered sugar.

Dinner — Escalloped oysters, French fried potatoes, stewed tomatoes, cole slaw, bread and butter, banana cream cake.

It is urged that lawyers be kept out of domestic brawls. If anyone is to intercede let it be skilled social workers who have learned to duck.

Apple Crisp

Three medium sized (about one pound) apples, one half cup all-purpose flour, one half cup brown sugar, one fourth cup butter or fortified margarine.

Slice the apples in thin slices and put them in layers on the bottom of a small baking dish. Mix the flour and brown sugar and cut in the butter or margarine with a pastry blender or two knives. Spread this mixture over the apples and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 45 minutes or until apples are tender and topping is lightly browned. Serve warm or cold with plain or whipped cream. Four servings.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

THERE is one fear about our policy in Germany which I have heard of late and which I think our Government should disprove. Many people think that the great industrialists of our country are still closely allied to the great industrialists of Europe, and that all are imbued with the desire to build up Germany's economic power in order that she may stand as a buffer against the USSR.

To many, this seems a strange idea. Germany started the last two wars and, in addition it seems possible that Germany might find her interests more closely tied to Russia than to western Europe. If we permit her, therefore, to build up the type of industrial strength which could again serve as a war machine, our only guarantee of peace would lie in closer ties with Russia than Germany herself can build. At present, the prospects for such understanding do not look too bright.

I FEEL that it would be very much to our advantage to have an economic mission to Russia at the present time, studying how to improve her economy and how to tie it in with our own so that both of us could profit. I have a feeling that if the USSR could produce raw materials for us and we could furnish her with the finished products she needs, many of our difficulties would disappear.

For instance, we could furnish her with building materials, which would make it easier for her to put through a tremendous building program. We could furnish material for building roads and for extending rail lines so as to open her country. And we could send her a great variety of agricultural labor-saving devices which we are only beginning to enjoy in this country and which she certainly has had no opportunity to enjoy.

In my opinion, this would be the level on which we could begin to understand each other. And the iron curtain would melt away, I believe, under the need of bringing in skilled people to oversee and teach the various new skills that would become essential to the development of this great but at present undeveloped giant.

YEARS AGO, people were afraid of our development, but it is that very development which makes us today a nation desiring peace and fully conscious both of our strength and weakness in the face of another war. Modern warfare would be more disastrous for the highly organized United States than for the undeveloped Soviet Union.

When life is more comfortable and people see themselves constantly progressing, with limitless possibilities opening up before them, they are not concerned with expansion outside their own territory and the advent of war is truly a catastrophe. In the case of Germany, it has not only been a desire to dominate the world which has driven them to war. They have been a nation hemmed in on all sides—they have wanted to expand but have found little opportunity to do so. That was not and is not the case with us in the United States, nor need it be the case in the USSR.

A thin dude around town has discarded the large, hand-painted necktie. Says it makes him look like an easel.

Bathroom Is Called Easiest to Decorate

OF ALL the rooms in the house, a bathroom is the easiest to decorate. And today, all the accessories have been restyled to new heights of color and design.

In the first place, with an imaginative choice of towels and bath mats, you can change your color scheme practically at will. The bath and window curtain designs are almost without exception wide enough in their color combinations to give you a good range of color choices for towels and mats. You can match, harmonize, or use sharp color contrasts to your artistic content. Just now there is great interest in high colors, such as the gayest of red, and deep colors — brown, navy and even black.

Laundry hampers have bowed in with a new range of styling. The trend here is toward a much more decorative effect than in the past. Even the familiar fiber hampers are appearing with solid panels which are used as background for colorful floral designs. While the softer colors predominate, high colors also are in demand.

Small shelves and brackets of clear plastic are now being made in the greatest variety—practically all of them highly ornamental. Matching thhem in decorative effect are the new glass bottles, which you buy empty according to your needs. If space is at a premium, look into the possibilities of some of the corner shelves, which come in several different sizes.

Strictly utilitarian shelves and cabinets are in better supply now. Among the new ideas are large wall shelves—usually open tubular construction and chrome plated—that can be quite high on the wall to hold a supply of extra towels in addition to those in use.

New Look in Faces As Well as Clothes

THERE is a new look in heads, and fares, too, as well as in clothes. The goal to strive for is a delicate flawlessness—a gentle, proud head. Coiffures are head-hugging and simple. Make-up is softer, more subtle. Even lipsticks and nail laquers have become genteel!

More than ever a foundation tint is essential—to get that lovely pallor of the great beauties of the past. We cheat, of course, with cosmetics that cover minor skin flaws and give our faces a glamor of camellia petals. To help do this, a prominent cosmetic firm has introduced a creamy, tinted film with six shades keyed to the worldly look of fashion. It is non-drying, lasts for hours and is suitable for all skin types.

Rouge is used today, but not so much to create a school-girl blush. It is used more subtlely. It is patted on beneath the eyes and smoothed in with the foundation. A bit is put on the lobes of the ears and on the tip of the chin—a coy way of adding a little sparkle to your face. Only the softest of shades is used and the cream rouge serves better with your tinted foundation (which is creamy, too) than the dry rouge.

Naturally, your face powder must be matched perfectly to your foundation [illegible]. Be certain that it does not contain coloring which deepens when it is applies over a moist surface. Some powders turn a deep orange when moistened with foundation lotion or cream.
